No 'Munich' Peace Again, Legion Told By Truman

President Denies, However, That U. S. Threatens War With Soviet Union

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Miami, Oct. 18.—In its desire for peace, the United States will never be a party to a second Munich, President Truman told a cheering crowd of 12,000 Legionnaires here today.

While he declared firmly that "this country will never consent to any compromise of the principles of freedom and human rights," Mr. Truman denied any threat of war or challenge to Russia.

"The Government of the United States," he declared, "utterly rejects the concept of war as a means of solving international differences."

Cooperation Desired

And he added this assurance:

"Our policy is not now and never has been directed against the Soviet Union. On the contrary, we recognize that the peace of the world depends on increasing understanding and a better working relationship between the Soviet Union and the democratic nations."

Throughout his speech to the American Legion national convention, which he had promised would be "nonpolitical," Mr. Truman mixed conciliation with firmness. He alluded to the horrors of modern war and described war as a means "detested" by the American people. He said that as long as he is President, "there will be no chip on the shoulder of America."

But he coupled these assurances with this warning:

"We have taken, and will continue to take, a firm position where our rights are threatened. But our firmness should not be mistaken for a warlike spirit. The world has learned that it is weakness and appeasement which invite aggression. A firm position on reasonable grounds offers the best hope of peace, and we have been open to reason at every point.

"Munich" Compromise Out

"We recognize the principle of mutual conciliation as a basis for peaceful negotiation, but this is very different from appeasement.

"While we will always strive for peace, this country will never consent to any compromise of the principles of freedom and human rights. We will never be a party to the kind of compromise which the world sums up in the disgraceful name of Munich."

Mr. Truman drew applause and a burst of cheering when he interpolated in his speech a declaration dear to the hearts of Legionnaires.

"At the same time," he said, "we must keep up our economic strength and keep up our military establishments commensurate with our needs."

The President reiterated a previous explanation that his propo-

Cocktail Party For Miss Truman Is Called Off

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 18 (AP).—A cocktail party here tonight for Miss Margaret Truman has been called off and the Raleigh Times said it was because State Democratic leaders feared the affair might cost the President votes in dry areas of the State.

Mrs. Charles Bradshaw, classmate of Miss Truman at Washington's Gunston Hall, confirmed the party had been "officially called off," but declined to discuss it further without consultation with State Chairman Capus Waynick.

Waynick said he hadn't talked to Mrs. Bradshaw about the party before it was abandoned. He said he understood the action was taken because "after a discussion of plans at the White House Miss Truman had called to say that she could not attend."

Mrs. Bradshaw first said "we might have it as a 'coffee hour' if the committee approves," but later announced cancellation of the whole affair.

Dewey Lauds Chest Aims As 'Noblest'

Broadcast Comes As Area Donations Reach 18.73% of Goal

The Community Chest Red Feather is "a symbol that is above difference and beyond debate," Gov. Thomas E. Dewey said last night, and added, "I am happy to give my wholehearted support to this cause."

In a radio speech delivered from Albany, N. Y., over the Mutual Broadcasting System, Dewey told his listeners that the planks of the Red Feather platform "represent the best and noblest impulses of the human heart."

He said these planks included "the right of all children to be safely born, to be cared for, to be loved;" "the right of boys and girls to health and fun," and "the right of the handicapped and aged to live useful, happy lives."

"In the Community Chest we keep alive the volunteer spirit so vital to the health of our free society," Dewey said, concluding:

"When the Red Feather volunteer comes to our door, let us have our latch-string out and our purse-strings ready. Out of warm believing hearts, let us give enough for all Red Feather services."

Meanwhile, Community Chest volunteers in the Federal Government here reported 44.06 per cent of their $1,524,557 quota filled at a Government unit report luncheon in the Washington Hotel yesterday.

They boosted total Chest contributions in Greater Washington announced at 14.81 per cent last Thursday, to 18.73 per cent of this year's $4,566,790 goal.

Six agencies with records of 100 per cent or better received Red Feathers for their prompt achievement, at the luncheon. The National Capital Park and Planning Commission reported 204 per cent of its goal reached with 100 per cent participation among employes.

Other agencies "over-the-top" now are: United States Court of Appeals, 159.75 per cent; Export-Import Bank, 150 per cent; International Relief Organization, 129

Dewey Back In N. Y., Sure Of Victory

Thirteen-State Tour Convinces GOP Candidate Voters Already Decided

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

Albany, N. Y., Oct. 18.—Gov. Thomas E. Dewey ended his second campaign swing this evening. He came back to Albany after a 13-State tour firmly convinced that the American voters have made up their minds, and that two weeks from tomorrow he will be elected President of the United States.

The Republican standard bearer was in great good humor today, as befitted a winner. There was a flurry of snow this morning in Buffalo. But then the sun came out to glorify the route of the 17-car special. The nominee himself remarked on the Indian summer loveliness as he moved southward through the Mohawk valley.

Not even a flying tomato could upset him. One was aimed at him while he was addressing a crowd in Rochester, but, in the jargon of baseball, it was "high and outside."

"What Was That?"

"What was that?" Governor Dewey exclaimed, laughing. "We've got enough flowers up here already."

"That was a tomato," yelled the tow-headed youngster who had thrown it.

His pride seemed to be hurt, for the missile went over Dewey's head and far to the left to burst against a car of the "Victory Special."

The band at Syracuse played "This Is the Hour." This was pretty, but the GOP candidate must have thought a piece played at Buffalo was more to the point. It was "Hail to the Chief," usually reserved for a President in office.

Musical honors of the day went to the Dewey-Dora octette at Rochester. The white-sweatered girls, representing the Women's Republican Club, sang a lilting parody on an old Spanish-American war favorite, and it went like this:

"Why, Mr. Dewey, our Mr. Dewey,
"For he's the gent to pull our country through
"This tribulation and head our nation.
"Oh Mr. Dewey, ewey, ewey, ewey, ooo."

All that can be said for it is that it sounded better than it must read.

Cocksure Attitude Reflected

Governor Dewey's attitude was reflected in every speech he made in up-State New York today. After the music and introductions were out of the way, he would tell these in the crowds the same thing—that he knew they would vote for him, and that, therefore, a political speech seemed highly superfluous.

Just to be courteous and give the crowds their money's worth, however, he always made a speech. He talked like a man who knew that the jury had made up its mind, but simply wanted to give them a summing-up.

He reiterated his proposal that a new Government department be

Naptha Blast Injures Score At Texas City

Texas City, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP).—More than a score of persons were injured, some critically, here tonight when naphtha exploded at a refinery and threw flames across a highway where a number of automobiles were waiting for a train to pass.

An estimated 25 cars were still burning late tonight. The fire at the Stone Oil refinery was reported under control.

The injured were taken to Danforth Hospital here for first-aid treatment. Others were sent to nearby Galveston.

There was no indication the blast bore any resemblance to the great disaster in April, 1947, in which a French freighter exploded, killing 500 and injuring 3000.

14.4 Billion Arms Budget Means Cutback

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Military officials said yesterday that a 14.4-billion-dollar defense budget—the figure announced by President Truman Saturday—will require a drastic cutback in the rearmament program voted by Congress last summer.

It will upset the 70-group Air Force program, force a scaling down of Army weapon modernization and Navy shipbuilding plans and mean a smaller, Army, Navy and Air Force than authorized for this year.

Another two billion dollars, said military budget experts, will be necessary if the aircraft procurement program is carried forward so as to give the Nation a modern 70-group Air Force by 1952 and manpower is maintained at the levels to be reached next spring.

Rising costs account for part of the answer, but the main reason is that the services are not supposed to reach their new expanded strength of 1,950,000 officers and men before next June.

They are now gradually building up to 790,000 in the Army, 552,000 in the Navy and Marine Corps and 446,000 in the Air Force, plus 161,000 trainees.

It will cost hundreds of millions more to pay, fed and equip such a force for a full 12 months in the fiscal year beginning next July, and equally large sums to further expand to 2,176,883 officers and men, as projected last year.

Another factor is that the aircraft procurement program ap-

Tractor-Trailer Smashes Auto, Killing Six

Bodies Scattered for 50 Feet in Collision Near Elkton, Md.

Elkton, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—Six persons were killed and another critically injured late today when a tractor-trailer plowed into an automobile on Route 40 near here.

The dead included four members of one family. A 2-year-old boy in the automobile escaped with only cuts and bruises.

Witnesses said the car's body was sheared off the chassis, the wheels twisted off and the engine broken into two pieces. Bodies were reported scattered 50 feet from the point of impact.

The tractor-trailer crashed down an embankment and overturned, but the driver was uninjured, police said. The accident apparently occurred, police said, in the northbound lane of the highway.

Pronounced dead by Dr. R. C. Dodson, Cecil County medical examiner, were: Arthur Brooks, 49; Alice Brooks, 44; Betty Brooks, 13; Dolores Brooks, 9; Gertrude Allen, 26; and Stanley Wesley, 17.

Critically injured was Carl W. Brooks, 15, who was brought to Union Hospital here. The 2-year-old boy who escaped serious injury was identified as Rudolph Alexander.

Police said all the victims lived in Childs, a nearby Cecil County community.

Driver of the tractor-trailer was listed by police as John R. Laubscher, 22, of Vass, N. C. Driver of the automobile, police said, had not been determined.

A fire truck was pressed into service to remove the dead and injured.

Several of the victims, police said, were employes of the Columbia Manufacturing Co. here and were reported returning from work when the accident occurred, near the Red Mill railway bridge, a mile south of here.

Season's First Killing Frost Hits Area

Widespread Cold Wave Brings Snow To Some Sections Of Nearby States

The season's first killing frost edged into Greater Washington early today as the mercury was expected to dip to around 34. Tonight's low is expected to be 41.

Mostly sunny with the mercury reaching a high of 60 is forecast for this afternoon.

A foretaste of this wintry weather was felt here yesterday, the mercury dropping to 38 degrees at 4:28 a. m. while communities in the Appalachian mountain ridges from New York to southwestern Virginia had up to 2 inches of snowfall.

Forecasters expected temperatures as low as 25 degrees in western Maryland, western and central Virginia last night, 29 to 34 from Prince Georges County northward to the Pennsylvania line, and 31 to 36 on the Eastern Shore and in southern Maryland. The Virginia coast was also due for light frosts.

First Cold Wave

The season's first cold wave spread over much of the Nation yesterday, setting a record of 20 degrees in Chicago for the date. Joliet, Ill., had a low of 17 degrees, and Wisconsin was similarly chilled.

A 2-inch snowfall was reported from the resort town of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., and from communities in Rockingham County, Va. More than 1½ inches fell at Summit, Pa., while flurries were reported at Oakland in the northwest tip of Maryland.

Gulf States Also Hit

A chilling rain, on the front edge of the cold front from the Mid-West and Great Lakes regions, fell in much of Maryland, Virginia and in the District. Though skies cleared during part of yesterday here, the day's high was 52 degrees at 3:18 p. m.

The cold air mass rolled into the Gulf States yesterday, bringing an unusual 39 degrees to Mobile, Ala.

However, a warmer mass of air was reported moving behind the cold front last night in an easterly direction across the Plains States. The weather was generally normal on the West Coast.

Yesterday's 38-degree minimum here—only 4 degrees higher than the 34-degree record low for the date in 1876—reminded many District motorists that radiator-freezing weather was just around the corner.

Permanent Antifreeze Scarce

They found, according to the American Automobile Association, that permanent-type antifreeze mixtures are not available except in cases where dealers have saved some for their regular customers. One large dealer said expected October supplies had not materialized. Alcohol-base mixtures are available at $1.25 a gallon and up, compared with last year's general prices of $1.

Temperatures predicted for Washington suburbs, the central and Eastern Shore sections of Maryland and the Virginia coastal area would destroy such crops as tomatoes, seed and sweet potatoes, peppers, eggplants, lima beans, melons and cucumbers, according to Victor R. Boswell of the Bureau of Plant Industry at Beltsville, Md.

Heavier frosts, such as were forecast for western Maryland, west and central Virginia, would kill most cabbages, turnips, beets, spinach, kale, collards and the like, he said.

U. N. Council to Meet Today on Palestine; Israel Rejects Truce

Jews Agree to Talk Peace With Arabs After Blasting Open Negev Supply Road

Tel Aviv, Israel, Oct. 18 (AP).—Israel rejected tonight the latest United Nations proposal for a cease fire in the Negev fighting, but agreed to hold peace talks with the Egyptians.

Israeli infantry and armor, with air support, have already blasted open a supply road to 23 Jewish settlements in the Negev — the southern Palestine desert.

The Israeli Foreign Office said the Jews could not accept the U. N. proposal for a three-day truce in the Negev fighting unless the U. N. can guarantee that the Egyptians will refrain from taking advantage of the truce to improve their positions.

As to U. N. proposals for peace talks in Jerusalem, the Foreign Office said Israel was ready to meet the Egyptians any time and any place for such discussions.

Negev Issue All "Confused"

The Jews launched their offensive in the Negev last Friday after the Egyptians attacked a Jewish convoy which had been dispatched for the obvious purpose of seeing whether it would draw fire.

A strategist close to the Israeli high command said he believed that, in addition to opening the road to the Negev, the Jews had succeeded in throwing "the entire Negev issue into doubt and confusion just as it was to come before the United Nations."

Count Folke Bernadotte, the assassinated U. N. mediator, had recommended that the Negev be given the Arabs. The original U. N. partition plan made it Jewish territory. Israel has protested the Bernadotte recommendation.

The strategist said he believed also that the Negev campaign has driven the new Arab Palestine government out of its capital in Gaza. Yaakov Dori is chief of staff of the Israeli forces.

Gaza Population Being Moved

This belief apparently stemmed from reports received by the Jews that the Egyptians were moving the civilian population out of Gaza, their main military base in Palestine. The Palestine Arab government is sponsored by the Arab League, which has its headquarters in Cairo.

United Nations personnel has already withdrawn from Gaza except for a skeleton staff. Those remaining informed Haifa headquarters their equipment is on a truck and "ready to roll."

The Jews permitted newsmen to visit the area of the Negev fighting for the first time today. Jewish supply trucks were moving unmolested on the desert track east of Gaza and far south of what was, until three days ago, the front line of the Egyptian army.

The fighting had simmered to a standstill in the area visited. Only intermittent shell fire was heard. One or two planes circled overhead, but they were from the Israeli air force.

French Merge Zonal Trade With 2 Allies

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP).—The western powers took another big step today toward unification of their occupation zones in Germany.

After long delay the French agreed to fuse the foreign trade of their zone with that of the British and American zones.

It was not a complete economic merger like that achieved last year in the British-American zones. But it went a long way toward the unification sought by the British and Americans in their efforts to build up western Germany for an active role in the European Recovery Program.

The move emphasized further the isolation of the Soviet occupation zone. A similar fusion along political lines will be accomplished by the tri-zonal government for which a constitution is being drafted by Germans in Bonn. This will result in a virtually complete new west German state.

Under the new tri-zonal agreement all foreign trade of the three Western zones will be under supervision of the Joint Export-Import Agency (JEIA), which has been handling such affairs in the British American zones. French members will be added to the JEIA control board.

JEIA regulates both exports and

French Reds Admit Defeat In Elections

Spokesman Says Party Seats in Council to Drop From 80 to 12

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—France's Communist Party tonight conceded a sharp defeat in elections for the upper house of Parliament. The Communists admitted that Gen. Charles de Gaulle's rightist party and the middle Radical Socialists probably will dominate the house.

De Gaulle's Rally of the French People (RPF) in turn protested that the figures from yesterday's election did not show their real winnings.

The last count of the Ministry of the Interior was:

Rightist Independents, 21,178; Socialists, 17,590; De Gaullists, 12,998; Radical Socialists, 12,324; Communists, 10,259, and Popular Republicans (MRP), 8980.

Flormond Bonte, a Communist spokesman, said the results showed that his party's strength will fall from 80 seats to 12. He castigated the indirect method of voting for the council as "anti-Democratic" and said the Communist defeat "will not fail to lead to considerable protests by all the Democratic forces by the country."

A De Gaulle spokesman said the general claimed 50 to 60 per cent of the rightist independent vote. He said the allegiance of many political leaders in the group had been obtained during De Gaulle's recent campaign tour.

Final choosing of the 320 members of the House—known as the Council of the Republic—will take place November 7 when 100,011 electors including those picked in yesterday's voting will cast ballots. National Assembly deputies and departmental officers also sit in the electoral college.

Polish Youths Enlist

Warsaw, Oct. 18 (AP).—The government today started a nationwide enlistment of youths 16 to 18 years old, inclusive, to work for national reconstruction projects and for military training. About 1,500,000 are expected to be in the service by December 15.

Bunche's Request For Special Session Accorded Priority Over Berlin Talks

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council tonight was ordered into emergency session to cope with the new war in Palestine. The session was set for 10:30 a. m. (5:30 a. m. EST) Tuesday, only a few hours ahead of another meeting on the Berlin situation.

Dr. Ralph Bunche, U.N. mediator, requested the special meeting after Israel rejected his plea for a three-day cease-fire in the Negev, southern Palestine desert region, where Israeli and Egyptian forces are battling.

In an emergency report to the council, Bunche declared that a "serious breach of the truce is involved in the new Negev outbreak" and demanded "prompt intervention" by the council.

"It would seem clear," Bunche said, "that the military action of the last few days has been on a scale which would only be undertaken after considerable preparation and could scarcely be explained as a simple retaliatory action for an attack on a convoy."

Red Boycott Continues

This apparently was a reference to an Israeli complaint earlier tonight that a Jewish convoy had been attacked by the Egyptians on its way into the Negev.

The Berlin session will be the Council's fourth since the United States, Britain and France charged that the Soviet blockade of Berlin is a threat to world peace. Soviet Deputy Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky was expected to continue his verbal boycott, but there was a possibility that he might answer questions posed by the Council's six neutrals in writing. The Western powers planned to reply orally.

Argentina sources reported that the Kremlin was offering a "new Soviet stand" for settlement of the Berlin dispute outside the Council. These sources regarded it as "providing more flexibility" but added that Russia still is refusing to discuss Berlin in the Council.

Wants Big 5 to Act on Atom

On the eve of the Council doubleheader, United States delegate Warren R. Austin said agreement on international control of atomic energy is impossible in the United Nations and the whole problem should be tossed to the Big Five and Canada for direct talks. Austin told the Assembly's political committee that a Russian proposal to ban the atomic bomb and set up a control organization simultaneously was really not a concession.

Austin said it was simply a maneuver designed to provide for the destruction of atomic weapons in one country before there could be any real investigation to find out if there were any atomic bombs in other countries.

"Communist states," Austin added, "desire to live in a secret world of their own, behind which, for all we know, they may arm and prepare their people for war. We do not desire to live in such a world. That is the impasse in which the United Nations Atomic Energy Commission finds itself. This is an impasse which cannot be over-

Pvt. H. R. Kershner discovered the automobile, put a ticket on it and had it towed into the Fourth Precinct. Then he phoned Lewis, of 506 H st. nw., to tell him all about it.

Lewis breathed a big sigh of relief and informed Kershner he'd just reported the car stolen—in the First Precinct. A lookout hadn't yet gone over the police teletype.

Lewis' traffic ticket was cancelled.

For Evidence in Will Fight

Countess Asks Court for Right To See Mrs. Patterson's Papers

By John London
Post Reporter

Countess Felicia Gizycka yesterday asked District Court to authorize her to examine the private papers of Mrs. Eleanor Patterson for evidence in the contest over the publisher's will.

In a motion filed yesterday by Harold A. Kertz, one of the countess' lawyers, the court was requested to order Riggs National Bank to produce Mrs. Patterson's papers and permit the countess "to inspect, copy or photograph" them.

The bank, by court order, has been serving as collector of the Patterson estate pending settlement of the challenged will. Under the will, the countess, only daughter of the owner of the Washington Times-Herald, was left $25,000 a year as well as real estate and personal property. The newspaper, however, was left to seven staff members.

The countess is asking that the $16,586,571 will be set aside, alleging that it was obtained through fraud, deceit, duress and undue influence, and that her mother was of unsound mind when she made it.

Yesterday's motion for inspection of Mrs. Patterson's papers will probably be contested by executors of the will, a spokesman said, when informed of the legal action.

First Overhauling in 23 Years

Far-Reaching Revisions Urged In D. C. Traffic Regulations

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

A streamlined set of far-reaching revisions to the District's traffic and motor vehicle regulations—the first major overhauling of the law in 23 years—was proposed to the Commissioners last night.

Virtually everyone in the District who is not a shut-in, even children, would be directly affected by the revisions of the old rules — designed to make the D. C. code conform with those of States and other cities.

The Commissioners Traffic Advisory Board unanimously approved the proposed changes and asked the Commissioners to hold a public hearing on them in January. The board also asked that it be given a chance to pass on any further changes proposed before the new rules are considered by the Commissioners.

The group, meeting at the Municipal Center, resolved to send copies of the proposed changes to all judges of the Municipal Court.

Highlights of the proposed changes:

Bicyclists, who make up a small but potentially hazardous segment of the traffic population, would be required to curtail "look, no hands" antics.

The proposal says: "No person operating a bicycle shall carry any package, bundle or article which prevents the driver from keeping at least one hand upon the handlebars."

Parents, for example, would be forbidden to permit their children to violate any provision of the proposed regulations.

And the owner of a vehicle "shall be presumed to be the operator" if his car is involved in a traffic violation. That is, until he proves otherwise.

These are three of a wealth of new rules which would be included. At the same time, obsolete regulations would be changed or wiped out.

Consider the District's vast array of different signs governing speeds, parking, stopping and other everyday problems of the motorist.

Unless the sign is in its proper position and "sufficiently legible to be seen by an ordinarily observant person," an alleged violator of the regulation concerned would not be liable. This is a new proposal.

Emergency vehicles — ambulances, police cars, fire engines—in executing their duty would be

'Answer' to FCC Freeze

New Television Set Uses Low Or Ultra-High Frequencies

Television receivers that will operate on low frequencies now in use and on ultra-high frequencies being considered for telecasting are already being produced by Zenith Radio Corporation, it was learned here last night.

The new sets will be one manufacturer's answer to the freezing order which the Federal Communications Commission issued on September 30. While the commission studies the allocation of frequencies to TV, no additional licenses are to be issued. No one knows whether the commission, at the end of the freeze period, will authorize new channels for TV or continue the old ones.

Zenith's new sets are made to operate in the 54-216 megacycle band now in use, and in the 475-890 megacycle band being considered for TV. J. E. Brown, assistant vice president and chief engineer for Zenith told the commission on September 20 that his company had designed and was now producing for sale the new receivers. He said the price would be "strictly competitive."

Announcement of the new receivers will be made on November 18 and sets will start moving to distributers by that date, it was learned yesterday. Exact price of the table and console models could not be learned. Nor are any figures available on the volume of production the corporation will reach.

PEOPLE In The NEWS

By Sam Stavisky

The commander of the Israeli army, Brigadier Yaakov Dori, was born in pogrom, raised in riot, matured to manhood in war.

YAAKOV DORI
Chief of Staff

Until a few weeks ago the military leader of the infant state was a man of mystery. He was known merely as "Yaakov" (Hebrew for Jacob), and no more than a score persons knew his real identity.

Yaakov Dori disclosed himself publicly for the first time on July 27, when the infant state paused amidst battle to mark "Nation Day" on the forty-fourth anniversary of the death of Dr. Theodore Herzl, father of Zionism.

On that day the small, thin, wiry man of 49, brown hair, graying, face leathery and ascetic, reviewed his troops, renounced his birthname of Jacob Dostrovsky, assumed the name of Yaakov Dori.

Born in Odessa

At the same time, many of his key lieutenants of the underground days, also cast aside their foreign family names and adopted Hebraic surnames. It was a symbolic action—the striking of new roots in new soil.

Jacob Dostrovsky was born in Odessa, Russia, just a year before the turn of the century. His people fled that unhappy Czarist land when the pogroms broke out in 1905-6 and eventually settled in the port city of Haifa, Palestine, then ruled by the Turks.

At the age of 15, Jacob—already called Yaakov—became inspired with the tales of the Shomrim (Watchmen), a volunteer band of Jews organized to defend outlying Jewish settlements from the raids of Arab bandits. At school, Yaakov organized a Boys' Training Club.

When World War I broke out, Yaakov joined the Jewish Legion in the British army. The legion was made up of three battalions of the Royal Fusiliers, fighting under General Allenby. Yaakov rose to sergeant and was appointed regimental instructor in small arms.

No sooner was he demobilized in 1920, then Yaakov began training young men for Haganah (which means defense), successor to the Shomrim. He wasn't too soon. Riots broke out between Arabs and Jews and continued for two years. During the height of the fighting, Yaakow participated in the defense of Tel Aviv by a handful of Jewish Legion veterans against Arabs pouring out of nearby Jaffa.

Then for five years, Yaakov gave up battle for books. He went abroad, attending school in Belgium and becoming a construction engineer.

Yaakov returned to Palestine in 1926 to enter business, but immediately rejoined Haganah. During the 1929 riots he rose to distinguish himself as commander of the Jewish forces in the Haifa area. Since then, he has devoted all his energies to Haganah, which became Israel's regular army on May 14, 1948, when Israel was proclaimed an independent country.

Coordination and training were Yaakov's forte, and in those fields he concentrated in Haganah. During the rioting and bloodshed of 1936-9, he helped famed General Wingate (then a major) organize special night squads of Jewish-British commandos to meet Arab ambush with counterambush. Many of these SNS troops fought later in World War II with the British and, after the war, formed the nucleus for Palmach, shock troops and elite corps of Haganah.

During World War II, Yaakov quietly was named chief of staff of Haganah, and thereby highest commander of the Jewish forces. He held this post until 1945, when he took a year's sabbatical and came to the United States to study housing. He returned to Palestine early in 1947, resumed his top command, and began to prepare for the day of independence. When the Arab forces attacked the next day—May 15—Yaakov's compact, mobile and highly trained army was prepared.

Although Yaakov wears thick-lensed glasses, he's a tough-looking hombre and stern. Those who know him say he has no sense of humor whatever. He's married, has two children, is Spartan in his habits. His Hebraic surname, Dori, means "my generation."

Italians Hear Marshall on Peace Hopes

Rome, Oct. 18 (AP).—U. S. Secretary of State Marshall arrived in Italy on a brief visit today and told the Italian people he hopes for a long peace.

Marshall is en route back to the United Nations meeting in Paris following a weekend visit to Athens. He and Mrs. Marshall will be received by Pope Pius XII at Castel Gandolfo tomorrow.

What they discussed remained a secret tonight. None would talk afterward except De Gasperi. He said only that he had thanked Marshall for America's aid in Italy's effort to "rise again and rebuild a free and independent economic life."

However, it was believed Marshall touched upon the following subjects in his talks with Italian leaders:

1. Italy's role in the European Recovery Program.

2. De Gasperi's estimate of his ability to contain an aggressive Communist opposition that polled almost one third of the votes in the April national election.

3. Sforza's latest proposal, made to France in August, for a gradual extension of European economic collaboration into political solidarity—a new move for a European union.

A source close to De Gasperi scoffed at reports in the Communist press that Marshall was personally negotiating military pacts.

Sforza hailed Marshall's visit as "a new proof of friendship between us and the United States." He said the visit would be "consecrated to the purposes of peace."

Truman Asks For Data On Ilse Koch

President Truman has asked Secretary of the Army Royal for information concerning the case of Ilse Koch, Nazi war criminal, whose reduction in sentence stirred a protect.

The blonde mistress of notorious Buchenwald Prison Camp was originally given life imprisonment but a reviewing board cut this to four years imprisonment. Proposals were made for a new trial.

Gen. Lucius Clay, commander of United States forces in Europe, indicated recently that a new trial is unlikely. He noted that the original charge was a broad one. However, Germans themselves were planning to bring her to trial in a war crimes court of their own.

An Army official, who disclosed the Truman letter declined to give any details of it. It was received yesterday.

Bunche declared an "indispensable condition to a restoration of the situation (in Palestine) is an immediate and effective cease fire."

After that he suggested these conditions:

1. Withdrawal of Arabs and Jews to positions occupied before the new outbreak.

2. Acceptance by Arabs and Jews of U.N. conditions covering convoysin the fighting area.

3. Agreement to negotiate through the U.N. problems such as the return of Arab refugees, crop harvesting, evacuation of Jewish settlements held by Egyptian forces, and the stationing of U.N. observers throughout the area.

Bunche said Egypt had complained October 15 of a series of attacks by Israeli planes on Egyptian positions in the Negev beginning early that morning. The following day, Egypt complained to the Security Council of "renewed aerial attacks by Israeli forces and also of a land attack south of Karatiya."

Attached to Bunche's report was a ruling by Bernadotte on the supply routes for Arabs and Jews in that district. The assassinated mediator ruled that the Jews could use the supply route which crossed the Egyptian supply line to Jerusalem. The Jews were to use the route from 10 p. m. to 4 a. m. and the Egyptians from 5 a. m. to 11 a. m. daily. Bernadotte's decision on this was issued September 14.

Germans Hear Jackson

Germans Told Press Freedom Assures Facts

Freedom of the press is "the best insurance against being deceived" as to the true facts of governmental moves, Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson declared last night.

The jurist spoke at a dinner in the Statler Hotel given 15 German publishers and editors who have been guests of the four Washington daily newspaper on a two-day visit here.

They will leave for New York today to attend the American Press Institute of Columbia University.

"Freedom of the press here is a legal right, enforcible in court, and is not a mere privilege possessed at sufferance of the existing government," Jackson said.

Jackson, who was chief U. S. prosecutor at the Nuernberg war crimes trials, asserted that "except for the press . . . the head of government would be in the hands of his own bureaucracy for information far more than would be wholesome."

The speaker pointed out that the ill-fated Weimar Republic which immediately preceded Hitler's Fourth Reich, also provided for "press freedom" but with the "fatal exception" that all rights could be suspended by the government in an emergency.

The presence of emergency powers, he declared, "tends to invite emergencies."

Jackson saw war and economic collapse as the greatest menaces to liberty, declaring: "I doubt very much if our freedoms can go through another total war or serious economic collapse without serious impairment."

Earlier in the day, the visitors were luncheon guests at the National Press Club with Washington correspondents as hosts.

During a question-and-answer period there the Germans were told that American newsmen would welcome correspondents from German news agencies. It was pointed out that Tass, the Russian agency, has representatives here.

Answering a question as to the particular value of the traditional American press conference, Barnet Nover of the Denver Post explained that such conferences are the unofficial counterpart of the question period, as held in the British government, when cabinet officers are required to answer the questions of legislators.

Prior to the Press Club luncheon, the visitors met with Howard Bruce, a deputy administrator for the Economic Cooperation Administration.

Dulles Calls Red Blockade West Victory

Paris, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—John Foster Dulles said today upon returning to the United Nations meeting from a tour of Germany and Austria that Russia's blockade of Berlin has backfired into a Western victory.

Dulles, foreign expert for Republican Presidential Candidate Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York, declined to be quoted directly or answer questions about his trip, but it was understood he felt there was no likelihood Russia would try to blockade Vienna.

In a statement to correspondents, he said the Berlin blockade produced five major results, all favoring the West.

imports, directing German sales and purchases to the best advantage of the entire economy of all zones. Such central control will help fit German industry into the European Recovery Program.

American informants said the French held out for some time against the trade merger, asking assurance that France would continue to receive as much of some German products as she has been getting.

This pledge was refused, the informants said, with the British and Americans insisting that JEIA have the same control over French zone trade as over the other two zones.

Need for More Professionals in Health Work Seen

Need of more professional people in public health work was stressed last night at the first of four seminars on "community health" by the National Conference of Christians and Jews at the Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw.

Dr. Estella Warner, chief of States relations division of the United States Public Health Service, spoke of community health in relation to hospitals, clinics and health centers. Dr. James A. Gannon, physician member of the District Board of Education, was chairman of last night's session.

Other seminars in the series will include discussion of community health in relation to housing, schools and recreation.

Mysterious Blast Rocks Airlift Plane

Berlin, Oct. 18 (AP).— An American airlift plane was shaken but not damaged by a mysterious land explosion today in the Soviet zone of Germany near Berlin's Gatow airport.

The C-54 transport had just taken off when a concussion jarred the craft. American and British officials said they believed the jolting came from a ground explosion which occurred so near Gatow Field that it rattled windows. The officials said there was no indication of antiaircraft guns being fired.

Ammunition Blast?

The Frankfurt German newspaper Neue Presse reported in a dispatch from Berlin that the blast was caused by the explosion of 35 railroad cars loaded with ammunition at the Soviet airport of Rangsdorf. The report said 16 Russian soldiers and one German civilian were believed killed. There was no confirmation of the report.

Three more American fliers died early today in the airlift operations. The crash of their C-54 near Frankfurt increased to 13 the number of Americans killed since the Western powers began flying supplies over the Soviet land blockade.

Allied Officials Puzzled

American and British officials were puzzled by the Berlin blast which shook the airlift plane.

There were no marks on the plane when it landed, and air officers said any flak bursting near enough to rock the plane would have pitted it.

In another air accident, a fighter piloted by Dr. John B. Daust of Berkeley, Calif., crashed into a farmhouse near Neubiberg in southern Germany. Daust was injured in the crash, which had no connection with the airlift.

Despite accidents, the combined British and American airlift task force flew 4087 tons of supplies into Berlin today in 530 flights.

Berlin Land Blockade Tightened by Russians

Berlin, Oct. 18 (NYHT).—The Russians tightened their land blockade of Berlin today by banning all vehicle traffic between West Berlin and the surrounding Soviet occupation zone. From now on, all traffic between the Soviet zone and Berlin will have to pass through the Soviet sector of the city.

This action was taken to stop the supply of food and other commodities which has been brought into the western sectors by German travelers.

Buenos Aires, Argentina, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Spain and Argentina today concluded four agreements expected to bring a million Spanish immigrants to this country during the next 10 years.

U. S. Fighters Kept on Alert Because of Forays Over Zone

Berlin, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—A group of United States fighter planes have been kept at continuous combat alert since last winter because of forays by foreign aircraft over the American zone of Germany, pilots at Frankfort said today.

Thunderbolts of the Eighty-sixth Fighter Group, commanded by Col. C. T. Edwinson of Topeka, Kans., are maintaining a 24-hour vigil to inspect strange planes whose flights over United States occupied territory average one a day, the pilots said.

American radar stations which can identify "friendly" and "enemy" craft by the plane's radio signals are constantly sweeping border areas searching for maverick planes. Most of them come from the Russian occupation zone and from Austria, the pilots said.

Pilots are on 15-minute call and the men have proved that the entire fighter group can be air borne in 18 minutes. One night 13 planes were sent up.

Eruption of Chilean Volcano Is Reported

Santiago, Chile, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Volcanic Mount Villarica, 400 miles away, erupted for several hours today. The countryside for several miles was showered with snow, water, stones and lava.

Police in nearby Temuco informed the interior ministry that several farmhouses had been buried and a main highway blocked. There was no report on casualties.

President Acts to Forestall Railroad Walkout of Million

By The Associated Press

President Truman yesterday created an emergency board to head off a possible strike of a million railroad workers.

Sixteen rail unions already have begun taking a strike vote. They are asking an eight-hour cut in the basic work week—from 48 to 40 hours—with an increase in pay.

They also have demanded an increase of 25 cents an hour in basic wage rates.

Mr. Truman said in an executive order tha a strike would "threaten substantial interruption to interstate commerce" and "deprive the country of essential transportation service."

Under the Railroad Labor Act, a work stoppage is forbidden while the emergency board is studying the dispute. The board has 30 days to make its findings. Thereafter, neither strike nor lockout can be ordered within 60 days after the board's recommendations go to the White House.

The unions involved represented the so-called "nonoperating" workers who are not actually engaged in running trains. They include switchmen, yardmen, maintenance workers, telegraphers and others.

Some 800 union members left their jobs two weeks ago today after the old contract expired. They asked a 13-cent increase.

Conferences last week brought an offer from management to grant the 7-cent increase and retain the seniority and security provisions of the old contract. The union negoiating committee and international officers recommended that the offer be turned down but the workers voted at a meeting Sunday to accept it.

Grain Handlers' Strike In Twin Cities Settled

Minneapolis, Oct. 18 (AP).—The prolonged strike of 1200 grain handlers of five major Twin Cities flour mills ended today.

Raleigh H. Meyer, business agent for Local 1, AFL American Federation of Grain Handlers, announced the union had voted to accept a compromise offer of 13 cents an hour wage boost retroactive to June 1.

The grain handlers walked out September 8 over a demand for a 57-cent hourly wage increase, after a Governor's fact-finding commission had recommended a 12½-cent boost. The union later scaled down its demands to 25 cents.

Police Stop Battle At California Plant

Richmond, Calif., Oct. 18 (AP).—A pitched battle flared briefly at the Standard Oil refinery today. Strikers supported by a crowd of longshoremen clashed with men entering the plant.

Police broke up the fight after the two sides had pelted each other with stones, bricks and other missiles for five minutes.

Strike at Hagerstown Victor Factories Ends

Hagerstown, Md., Oct. 18 (AP).—The two Victor products plants here were humming again today after agreement on a 7-cent hourly wage increase ended a two-week strike.

The management and representatives of a CIO-United Auto Workers' Union signed a temporary agreement, and said a new work contract will be drawn up in a day or two.

It will retain previous seniority and job security provisions, also a matter of dispute.

World Bank Never Busier Than Now

By Ferdinand Kuhn, Jr.
Post Reporter

The World Bank never had so much business on its books as it has now, President John J. McCloy told a press conference yesterday.

Applications for loans are coming in from so many countries and at such a rate, he said, that the Bank probably will have to go to the New York investment market for new funds sometime between April and June of next year.

The Bank now has 478 million dollars available for loans and for the necessary reserves, McCloy said. Without mentioning a total of the applications now pending, he indicated that the figure was big enough to make new borrowing necessary.

Spurred by Board Meeting

Some of this revived interest in World Bank loans, he said, was the result of the recent meeting in Washington of the Bank's board of governors, which brought together finance ministers and heads of central banks from all over the world.

"Generally speaking, the applications we are now getting look much more realizable than some of the global-type applications we got at the start," he said. "Member countries are becoming more aware of what they can expect from the Economic Cooperation Administration and from us."

Although ECA is lending 800 million dollars to western European countries this year, at 2½ per cent interest, McCloy said "substantial" applications from western Europe were reaching the World Bank as well. He said the Bank's relations with ECA were being "crystalized," and the Bank's work in underdeveloped countries was making progress.

Directors Held Overpaid

McCloy also announced that the Bank was studying the possibility of saving money on the salaries of its executive directors. Each of the 14 directors now gets $17,500 a year, net after taxes, and each has an alternate who gets $11,400 a year, also net after taxes.

There has long been a feeling, especially among dollar-starved foreign governments, that the directors do not have enough to do to justify these big expenses in Washington. In the case of the International Monetary Fund, which also has directors and alternates and pays them handsomely, there is need of keeping them here in week-to-week contact.

But some foreign governments do not see the same need in the case of the Bank, where transactions are fewer and do not require such quick decisions. The subject was discussed informally at the London meeting of the Bank's governors a year ago, but without any action.

Committee Studies Pay Question

This year the governors appointed a committee of six, headed by Finance Minister Gaston Eyskens of Belgium, to consider the problem. The committee was instructed to recommend to next year's meeting of the governors any changes it might think desirable in "the duties and remuneration" of the directors and their alternates.

McCloy was careful yesterday not to pronounce any judgment whether it was possible or desirable to cut spending on the directors' salaries. He emphasized that the special committee would make "a purely objective study without any preconceived notions" on the subject.

He did say, however, that the actual expense was less than it seemed, since some of the directors happen to be employed by their embassies and take no compensation from the Bank. He estimated that the actual expenses of the executive directors were between 350 and 400 thousand dollars a year.

By-Law Change May Suffice

He also expressed the belief that their duties and pay could be changed in the Bank's by-laws, without requiring each member country to seek new legislation from its Congress or Parliament.

McCloy said several governors had expressed interest in his proposal, first made at their recent meeting here, that member countries let the Bank lend some of their subscriptions in nondollar currencies now in the Bank's hands.

He said that contrary to newspaper reports and headlines at the time, Sir Stafford Cripps, the British Chancellor of the Exchequer, had not rebuffed the proposal.

The suspects, both Reds, are accused of trying to cast blame for their murder on the Greek government in an effort to stop American aid to the Greek army

Friends Claim Polk 'Slayer' Died Earlier

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 18 (AP).—An emissary of Greek Guerilla Gen. Markos Vafiades asserted today that Adam Mouzenidis, accused by the Greek government of murdering American Radio Correspondent George Polk, died before Polk did.

The spokesman was Miltiade Porphyrogenis, "minister of justice" in Markos' mountain regime. He is living here while seeking a French visa to attend the United Nations meeting in Paris.

Porphyrogenis said Mouzenidis was killed in guerilla fighting April 5. Polk was shot and thrown into Salonika harbor May 8.

He said that Evangelos Vasvanas, whom the government likewise named as a Communist fugitive implicated in Polk's murder, also was dead.

Experts Fear Arms Cutback

proved by Congress last session—the so-called 70-group plan—calls for higher outlays during the second year than the first.

Clarification by Experts

At the same time, defense experts cleared up several misapprehensions regarding Mr. Truman's Saturday press conference remarks on the military budget:

1. The 14.4-billion-dollar figure referred to by the President is not a further cutback from the 15-billion-dollar ceiling set this summer, as far as military chiefs are aware. The difference, they state, is that Mr. Truman on Saturday apparently referred only to the national military establishment budget and did not include an additional 600 million for defense stockpiling which the Treasury Department would spend. The 15-billion-dollar ceiling covered both.

2. The 14.4-billion-dollar military budget ceiling covers both cash and contractual authority scheduled for 1950 and compares with 13.8 billion dollars voted for 1949—a 600-million-dollar boost over the current year—not two billion dollars, as was widely reported.

3. President Truman has not yet acted on the 1950 military budget, as many took his Saturday statement to mean. Pentagon chiefs have not yet submitted a final recommendation, though Bureau of the Budget hearings are underway.

Chinese Aid Boost Urged By ECA Agent

Increased American economic help to China next year was urged yesterday by Roger Lapham, chief of the Economic Cooperation Administration's special mission in China. Lapham, former Mayor of San Francisco, returned to Washington last week after four months at his new post.

He declined to say how much he thought China should have, although he told a press conference that it ought to be more than this year's figure of 275 million dollars. The Bureau of the Budget is working on a new request to Congress which has been reported as high as 500 million dollars for economic aid alone, with another 200 million intended for military supplies.

A high official also confirmed the fact yesterday that ECA would need new funds for its European recovery spending after April 1. Edward T. Dickinson, ECA's director of program coordination, said all of the $5,055,000,000 authorized for Europe will have been pledged by that date.

This was no surprise, since Congress appropriated the money until June 30 with a proviso that it could all be spent by April 1 if President Truman thought it necessary. The next step, Dickinson said, would be for ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman to ask the President to authorize the use of the entire sum by April 1.

If this year's precedent is followed, ECA will get its next twelve months' funds authorized by April 1, so that there will be no interruption in the program.

Dealing with China, Lapham not only called for bigger appropriations next year, but expressed the personal view that the United States should work out "a long-term program to help the Chinese over a period of years."

He said next year's program should be along the same lines as this year's, which has been used for food, fertilizer, cotton, petroleum products and other industrial supplies. Asked whether he thought China could get on its feet economically with American help, he recalled the "difficult times" China had gone through ever since 1912, and said,

"Whoever is in charge of China has a very difficult task. You've got to be sympathetic to the efforts they are making. If you think of all the things you'd like to do in China, a billion dollars would be small—but, of course, we have to think of our own resources."

He made it plain that he had not yet made any recommendation to ECA Administrator Paul Hoffman, and he declined altogether to discuss military help for China, saying it was outside his province.

The exact amount of next year's request would have to be weighed "very carefully" in the next month, he said. He added that the National Advisory Council, the chief inter-departmental body deciding American economic policy abroad, was now considering how China should use the so-called "counterpart funds" of local currency, set aside as the equivalent of American aid.

He denied newspaper and magazine reports that serious irregularities had been found in the use of American relief funds appropriated last year. The books of the China Relief Mission are now being audited by the State Department, he said, and "there is no reason to believe that there's anything really wrong."

No 'Munich' Peace Again, Declares Truman in Miami

sal to send Chief Justice Vinson as his personal envoy to Premier Stalin had 'no relation to existing negotiations." But for the first time he indicated he would not hesitate to repeat the gesture if he thought it justified.

"At this time," Mr. Truman said, "I want to make it clear that I have not departed one step from my determination to utilize every opportunity to work for peace.

"Whenever an appropriate opportunity arises, I shall act to further the interests of peace within the framework of our relations with our allies and the framework of the United Nations."

At one point Mr. Truman, despite the "nonpolitical label to his address, appeared to inject an answer to critics, among whom Progressive Candidate Henry A. Wallace is foremost, who charges that his policy is directed toward war. He declared:

"Lately, in Europe and even here in the United States, there has been loose and irresponsible talk to the effect that the United States is deliberately following a course that leads to war. That is a plain and deliberate lie."

And he repeated an oft-given assurance that "I would rather see the peace of the world preserved than be President of the United States."

President Truman underwent a transformation into Legionnaire Truman when he stood up to deliver his address to a frankly and noisily friendly audience. His blue double breasted suit was topped by a blue overseas cap piped with gold braid, in gold embroidery, was the word "Missouri."

When he left the Roney Plaza for the drive to the auditorium, Mr. Truman was wearing his legion cap. Seated on the folded top of an open car, waving happily at the dense crowds which lined the route, he appeared to be what he had said he would be; a President who had left politics at home.

Whatever his own intentions, Miami made a political event of the President's brief visit. When he landed in the Independence at 10 a. m., Democrats swarmed over the airport and, despite Florida's dim view of his civil rights program, crowded into the pictures a score of photographers were diligently snapping.

Gov. James E. (Big Jim) Folsom of Alabama, a Southern Governor who has announced his support of Mr. Truman, stuck at his side throughout the welcoming ceremony and walked with him to his waiting automobile. Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, presidential candidate on the anti-Truman States rights ticket, was at the Airport also, but remained in the background.

And, of course, Florida's Gov. Millard Caldwell was on hand, as was Florida Senator Spessard L. Holland. Senator Claude Pepper, Florida's other member of the Senate, was not on hand.

In addition to a host of Democratic politicians, the presidential airplane was met by officers of the American Legion, headed by National Commander James F. O'Neill. The second battalion of the 325th Glider Infantry, Eighty-second Airborne Division, was drawn up as a guard of honor and came to present arms as Mr. Truman stepped out into the 79-degree Florida heat.

The President was accompanied by Mrs. Truman, their daughter Miss Margaret Truman, and members of the White House staff.

Groves Warns A-Bomb Must Be Kept

Miami Beach, Fla., Oct. 18 (AP). The United States and Russia are [illegible] in an actual war without the use of armed forces, Lt. Gen. Leslie R. Groves said tonight.

This country "must keep the atomic bomb until we are convinced beyond a reasonable doubt of the good intentions of all the major powers," the wartime head of atomic energy warned.

Chinese Reds Get U. S. Arms

Peiping, Oct. 18 (NYHT).—A Chinese Communist broadcast today boasted the capture or annihilation of 100,000 government troops and the seizure of "huge" stores of military supplies and commodities in the conquest of the Manchurian corridor city of Chinchow.

There is little doubt that the Chinese reds got a big haul of arms and ammunition at Chinchow, much of it of American origin. Also in Chinchow were substantial stockpiles of food and military clothing.

This is the second major seizure of war booty by the Communists within a month. At Tsinan in Shantung Province, the Communists say they have inventoried 35,000 small arms, 830 artillery pieces, antitank guns and rocket guns and 15 million rounds of ammunition as the spoils of their victory.

Today, the Communists also announced an important new success in Shantung—the capture of the important port of Chefoo, near the northeastern tip of Shantung Peninsula.

Atomic War Barely Averted In 1946, Pole Claims in U. N.

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—Poland's Dr. Juliusz Katz-Suchy said today "We have already been on the brink of atomic war" once since the defeat of Germany and Japan.

He said this was on September 19, 1946, during the United States-Yugoslav crisis over the shooting down of two United States planes over Yugoslavia.

Only a "veto by the United States Secretary of War" saved the situation, the Polish delegate told the Assembly political committee.

Katz-Suhy said a "group of United States Army leaders" had wanted to use the bomb and establish bases in Germany "at the time of the so-called Tito crisis."

The Polish delegate made his statement during an attack on a Canadian proposal, approved by a subcommittee, to have the Big Five Powers and Canada decide whether the deadlocked United Nations Atomic Energy Commission should resume work on atomic energy control plans.

[partment in Washington would not comment yesterday on Katz-Suchy's statement.]

Baruch Warns U. S. Against War Dread

New York, Oct. 18 (NYHT.)—The United States must continue to make atomic bombs, but it must not let its fear of war freeze the untapped peaceful uses of atomic energy for human betterment, Bernard Baruch told the New York Herald Tribune's annual forum at the Waldorf Astoria tonight.

Saying that he did not believe war was imminent, and hoped it would be averted, Baruch nevertheless warned that the dread of war would make a costly exaction of the Ame rican people in the distortions of lives, hopes and habits.

He blamed the Soviet leaders, but not the Soviet people, for the decisions which have dashed this country's hopes for a world freed of the threat of atomic destruction.

Possibilities for Good

By contrast, he described atomic energy as holding undreamed of possibilities for man's good. Atomic energy was, he said, both a conservation problem and a conservationist's dream.

The author of the American plan for international control of atomic energy, keynoted the opening session of this year's forum, the topic of which this year is "Our Imperiled Resources."

Paul G. Hoffman, Economic Cooperation administrator, described the European Recovery Program as "the most important and positive conservation project ever deliberately undertaken.

He cited two recent developments in Europe as particularly forward steps in improving the world resources situation: "The recent agreements for a program of currency clearance, which will enable freer movement of goods and services between countries, and the proposal of the Organization of European Economic Cooperation for a one-year program which could constitute the first in European history for the deliberate integration of economic resources among free peoples.

Conservationists Speak

Other speakers, all experts on conservation subjects, discussing the resources which sustain the human race in terms of the threat they hold for the future of mankind, in general depicted the danger as exceeding present public realization.

Fairfield Osborn, president of the New York Zoological Society, and author of "This Plundered Planet," viewed the problem from the viewpint danger of a rapidly expanding world population and world-wide failure to safeguard the fertility of the earth, on which all human life depends.

William Vogt, chief of the conservation section of the Pan-American Union, and author of the national best-seller, "Road to Survival," reported on his experiences on a recent 4000-mile tour through the Nation, in which he found alarmingly widespread misuse of agricultural lands. He proposed methods for specific action by individuals.

On the constructive side, Louis Bromfield, author and farmer, gave a detailed account of his noted experiment on Malabar Farm in Ohio, where, he said, proof had been shown that modern agricultural practices can immeasurably conserve and improve the land.

Authorities on Land

Four authorities on the subject of land as a resource held a panel discussion at the session on "What Land Policy for America?" in which Representative Clifford R. Hope (R., Kans.), chairman of the House Agricultural Committee, acted as moderator.

The panel speakers included Gordon R. Clapp, chairman of the board, Tennessee Valley Authority; Farrington R. Carpenter, member of the executive council, American Livestock Association; Kept Leavitt, president of the National Association of Soil Conservation Districts, and Bernard de Voto, author.

In his keynote address, Baruch said there was no way for this country to avoid the "tax of waste imposed by preparedness," for to do so would "risk the immensely greater destructions of actual war."

"Our problem is this," he said. "While preparing against war, to manage the peaceful resources left us so they swell our total substance.

To Free Atomic Energy

"It was to free atomic energy for usefulness that the American people took the bold and unprecedently generous action of offering to give up this, the most powerful weapon in history, on one condition—that no other nation be able to make the bomb.

"Since the Soviet leaders—not the Russian people, who have never known the American proposal, but the Soviet leaders—have vetoed the American dream of a world free of the threat of atomic destruction, we must continue manufacturing atomic weapons. But fear of war must not freeze peaceful atomic use. Our task is to strike a wise balance between peaceful and military development—the same balance needed all through life."

Seen as Investment

Describing fissionable material as "essentially self-breeding," he said that if the experimental breeder pile now being developed for the first time proves sound," it will be possible to use atomic energy as if it were an investment, which would increase itself, even while paying a steady, compound interest."

Baruch mentioned some of the secrets of plant growth which already are being unraveled by atomic isotopes, and speculated on the possibility that atomic energy might some day be used to distill sea water for irrigating desert wastes in the western part of this country.

These were, he said, but dream seeds of the present, yet the need exists because "we are shrinking the earth's potential even more rapidly than scientific knowledge is expanding it."

Finding it more difficult to note progress in spiritual resources today, Baruch said this might be either because such spiritual qualities are not easily measured, or because war is still too much with mankind.

"Perhaps the No. 1 job of conservation, immediately ahead, is to restore and conserve man's faith in his ability to govern himself," he said.

British Aide RoughedUp by Czech Police

Prague, Czechoslovakia, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—A British embassy press attache said he was "thrown head first" into a Czech police car in downtown Prague today and held for nearly two hours charged with resisting officers who arrested a Czech employe of the British information service.

Richard Wallis, the attache, said he was standing at the door of the information office when a Czech employe named Citek was dragged out of the building by police.

"Then I was suddenly pushed out by two thugs and thrown head first into the car," Wallis said. When he returned to the embassy, his coat was torn and his glasses were missing. He said he was informed that he had been seized "for resisting police during Citek's arrest."

British Ambassador Pierson J. Dixon called at the Czech foreign office to protest the incident, but he said Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis refused to receive him.

After Citek and Wallis were hauled off, Czech officials said, the information office was surrounded by police and only Sir Anthony Rumbold, the charge d'affaires, was allowed the leave the building. A spokesman said police searched Citek's desk and removed some of his personal belongings before the other employes were allowed to go home.

Embassy officials said they knew of no charges against Citek.

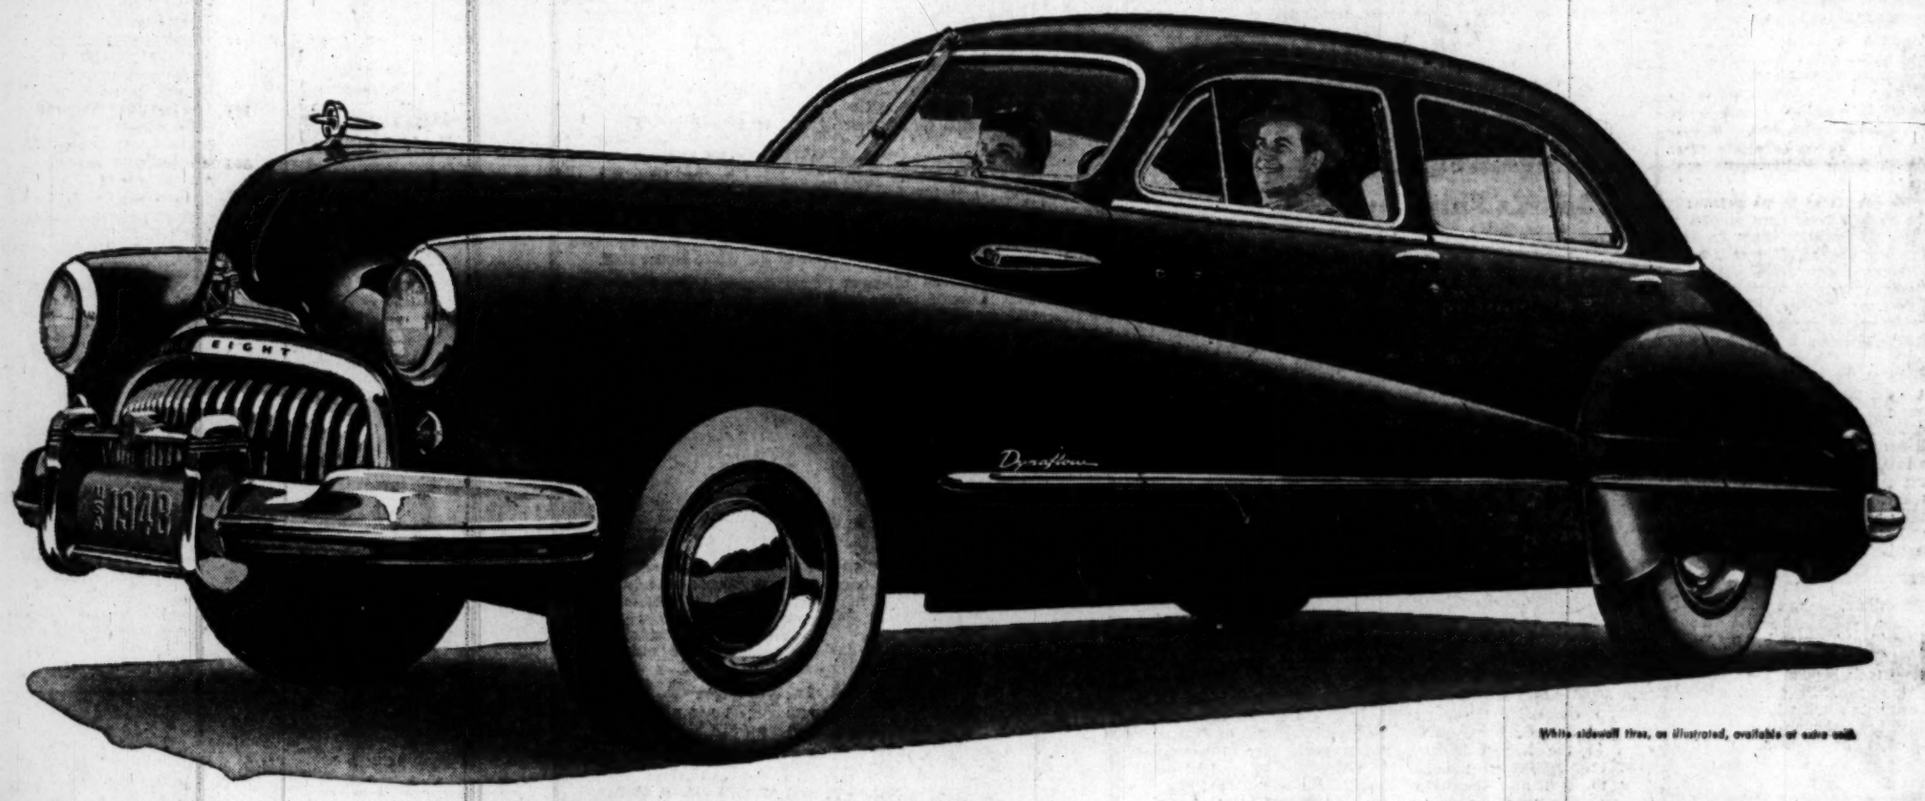
82 YEARS OF RELIABILITY



From Atlantic to Pacific—
DYNAFLOW'S terrific!

WE'VE seen our share of successes over the years—but we'll tell you this:
Nothing has ever prompted the praise or stirred up the excitement that's greeting this Dynaflow Drive.*

Women who've never driven before find that Dynaflow makes the handling of a car simpler than riding a bicycle.

Old-timers—who've always boasted that they can get a lot more out of gear-and-clutch driving than anyone can get with a new-fangled gadget—come back from a sampling of this drive and say, "Where has this been all my life?"

Even folks who sit in back seats, while someone else handles the wheel, find that the whole ride has a matchless smoothness, thanks to Dynaflow Drive.

What Buick engineers have done is step out and away—far ahead of their brothers in the industry.

They've made oil do everything that shifting gears used to do—and do it better.

Oil replaces the friction clutch. Oil eliminates the usual forward gears. Oil transmits power from your engine to the rear wheels by a whole new set of principles that give you a thrilling sense of command such as you've never known before.

Why don't you make a date to sample this driving magic?

Why don't you feel the eager rush—the joyous lift—the nimble response of 150 horsepower, working for you with velvet obedience?

Better yet—get in your order. We'll book it gladly, whether or not you have a car to trade.

Police and Miners Battle in France

Paris, Oct. 18 (AP).—The government's efforts to save France's coal mines from possible damage by action of Communist-led strikers eerupted in violence today.

Police clashed with 1000 striking coal miners at St. Etienne in south central France, leaving wounded on both sides. The police used tear gas during the battle.

The government had dispatched troops and police to the mines threatened by flood and explosion by strikers' refusal to work water pumps and other safety devices. The mines have been idle for more than two weeks, but crews still maintained pumps, ventilator systems and other security devices.

Three Mines Flooded

Communist union leaders had ordered all security measures halted for 24 hours in protest against presence of police in the mine fields.

When news of the clash reached Paris the Communist strike leaders said they would retaliate by not authorizing any security measures whatsoever.

In at least three mines, the police and troops arrived too late. The pumps were already under water.

Interior Minister Jules Moch, in a radio speech announcing dispatch of the troops and police, warned that flooded pumps would mean water in all the pits, destruction of timbering and weeks and months of repair to pay for "criminal neglect" by the strikers.

Cominform Hand Seen

Moch charged that Communist union leaders were "blindly obeying the instruction of the eastern European Cominform, which would transform Frenchmen into pawns on the international chess board."

He said the Communists' purpose is to fight the Marshall Plan for European recovery.

At some mines, pickets did not obey the 24-hour safety strike order and where safety devices were running normally troops did not intervene.

The strike, now entering its third week, has cost France about two million tons of coal. All but a handful of mines have ceased operations and some 335,000 miners have been idle.

The Communist-led National Federation of Labor (CGT) is demanding a minimum monthly wage of 15,800 francs (about $50). It wants the government also to withdraw economy degrees cutting the number of surface workers by 10 per cent.

Non-Communist unions have disapproved the strike, but have gone along with it. Their leaders ordered members back to the pits, but it was believed few would brave the Communist picket lines.

Army and police officers went to the pits together around St. Etienne and the pickets withdrew. The troops threw guards around all mine installations. A few minutes later mine engineers and volunteer workmen went down the shafts to set the pumps going.

Multi-Purpose Projects in West Held Dewey Aim

Sacramento, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Gov. Earl Warren declared today that Thomas E. Dewey, the Republican presidential nominee, favors construction of publicly owned transmission lines to carry power from Western multipurpose projects.

Warren, the Republican vice presidential candidate, made the statement in a news conference when asked about Dwey's interest in Western development.

"There is no question about the interest of Governor Dewey in the development of the West," Warren said. ". . . He has definitely stated that he is for multipurpose projects.

"He has stated to me personally that he will favor construction of public transmission lines to load centers of various communities."

Warren said Dewey has expressed himself in favor of development of Western mineral resources and of stockpiling minerals for emergencies.

Appeals Court Studies Plea to Dismiss Perjury Conviction of Harold Christoffel

By The Associated Press

A three-judge Federal Court of Appeals took under advisement yesterday a plea that the perjury conviction of Harold Christoffel, former Milwaukee labor leader, be thrown out on technical grounds.

Christoffel, one-time president of Allis Chalmers Local 248, UAW-CIO, was convicted in March of lying before the House Labor Committee when he said under oath he had never been a Communist. He received a two-to-six-year sentence.

Judges Henry Edgerton, Bennett Champ Clark, and E. Barrett Prettyman heard two hours of oral arguments presented by O'John Rogge, chief of defense counsel, and Government Prosecutors John S. Pratt and James W. Knapp.

Rogge Questioned

All three judges questioned Rogge closely and at the time were critical of Rogge's main contention that no perjury could have been committed.

Rogge's position as stated to the court was this:

That a quorum—or majority—of the 25 House Labor Committee members must have been present at the late afternoon session March 1, 1947, when Christoffel testified or his statements could not constitute perjury.

That the Government at no time has proved that at least 13 members of the committee heard Christoffel make his statements.

That Judge Edward Curran erred in the District Court trial in ruling that if a quorum was present at the beginning of the afternoon it was not necessary to prove that a quorum remained present two or three hours later when Christoffel took the stand.

"According to your argument," Judge Edgerton told Rogge, "the committee would have to ascertain that a quorum was present before every question asked of a witness."

"In a criminal case where a man's liberty is at stake that is correct," Rogge replied.

Gunmen Slay Red Boss of Havana Docks

Havana, Cuba, Oct. 18 (U.P.)—Aracelio Iglesias Diaz, 46, Communist boss of the Havana waterfront, died today from assassins' bullets.

Police posted heavy guards on the docks to forestall clashes between right wing and left wing stevedores.

Iglesias was presiding at a union meeting last night when a group of unidentified gunmen burst into the hall and opened fire. He was hit by six bullets. Two other persons were wounded.

Succumbs in Hospital

Iglesias died several hours later, after an emergency operation in a guarded hospital. Police kept his death a secret until heavy reinforcements had been moved into the dock area.

Six persons, including two officials of a rightist union, were held on various charges in connection with the killing. Alberto Gomez Quesada, 35, rightist secretary of the Longshoreman's Union, was named by the wounded man as leader of the assassins.

Workers Walk Off Job

When news of Iglesias' death reached the waterfront, hundreds of workers walked off the job and cargo-handling virtually ceased.

Iglesias was the boss of the waterfront for many years. In 1947, he was ousted as secretary of the Longshoremen's Union, following a rightwing revolt supported by Carlos Prior Socarras, then minister of labor, and now president of Cuba.

Despite the loss of his official post, Iglesias maintained a tight control over a large number of longshoremen. He was one of the strongest leaders of the Popular Socialist (Communist) Party. He was elected to the house of representatives this year from Havana Province.

FRESH BLOOD A MUST FOR FREE ENERGY

Do you feel like you are tied to a drag everytime you try to do something? If so, don't let a low blood count hold you down when you may release vibrant energy to every muscle, fibre cell.

Every day—every hour—millions of tiny red-blood-cells must pour forth from the marrow of your bones to replace those that are worn-out. A low blood count may affect you in several ways: no appetite, underweight, no energy, a run-down condition, lack of resistance to infection and disease.

To get real relief you must keep up your blood strength. Medical authorities, by analysis of the blood, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in building up low blood strength in non-organic nutritional anemia. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps you enjoy the food you eat by increasing the gastric digestive juice when it is non-organically too little or scanty—thus the stomach will have little cause to get balky with gas bloat and give off that sour food taste.

Don't wait! Energize your body with rich, red-blood. Start SSS Tonic now. As vigorous blood surges throughout your whole body, greater freshness and strength should make you eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better, have a healthy color glow in your skin—firm flesh fill our hollow places. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle from your drug store. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Dixiecrats Look to Future

Charlotte, N. C., Oct. 18 (U.P.)—A Southwide conference will be held in Memphis, Tenn., sometime before the November 2 general election to consider setting up the State's Rights Democrats as a permanent political party, a spokesman said today.

David Clark, Charlotte publisher and cochairman of the North Carolina State's Rights Democrats, said it is "absolutely silly" to believe that Southerners will return to the Democratic Party fold.

In a statement issued at party headquarters here, he added:

"So vicious and so insulting have been the attacks upon the State's Rights Democrats by officeholders and certain newspapers—including that of Jonathan Daniels, who aspired to Truman's Cabinet—that a call has been issued for a Southwide conference at Memphis, at which consideration is to be given to establishing the State's Rights Democrats as a permanent party."

(Daniels, editor of the Raleigh, N. C., News and Observer, declined comment. He was a wartime aide to President Roosevelt and has served as an unofficial adviser on Mr. Truman's recent campaign trips.)

Clark attacked Army Secretary Kenneth Royall and Senator Clyde R. Hoey, (D., N. C.) and said they were among State democratic leaders who tried to impugn the motives of the State's Righters.

He also attacked Democratic Senator-Nominate J. Melville Broughton for inviting Mr. Truman to Raleigh for two speeches tomorrow.

Court Ruling Sought On Illinois Ballot

By Murrey Marder
Post Reporter

Henry Wallace's Progressive Party—supported by the attorney general of Illinois — yesterday urged the Supreme Court to take emergency action to place the Wallaceites on Illinois' election ballot.

An early decision is expected.

The case presents the unusual situation of a State agreeing with a plaintiff, in this case the Progressive Party, that a State law is unconstitutional.

Opposing both of them before the Supreme Court was Melvin P. Wingersky, assistant State's attorney for Cook County (Chicago), who maintained it is too late to change the general election ballot—with absentee ballots already distributed.

Wingersky also held that the attorney general and the Wallaceites had belatedly decided the statute in question is "conveniently unconstitutional."

Cook County officials are predominantly Democrats, while top Illinois officials are Republicans. Democrats charge the Republicans are supporting the Wallaceites only to split Democratic voting power.

William C. Wines, assistant attorney general of Illinois, not only contended that the State erred in keeping the Progressivs off the ballot, but said it was "illegal to certify the Republicans and Democrats without certifying the Progressives . . ."

The statute in question requires any new political party to obtain 25,000 signatures to get on the ballot, at least 200 of them from each of 50 or more of the State's 102 counties.

Wallaceites obtained 75,000 signatures, but many were held invalid as being spurious, or because they were names of Republican or Democratic primary voters, whose names cannot appear on such a new party petition in Illinois.

The State Officers Electoral Board, said the party, ruled that these were sufficient signatures in only 41 counties, and held the petition invalid. The Wallaceites then unsuccessfully appealed this decision.

John J. Abt and Richard F. Watt, attorneys for the Progressives, called the statute a "flagrant denial of Federal constitutional rights," because 86 per cent of the State's population resides in 49 of the counties.

Wines said that although the attorney general holds the statute to be unconstitutional, inasmuch as the State Supreme Court has refused corrective action to the Wallaceites, and the State Officers Electoral Board has been dissolved, special action is necessary.

Wingersky, however, contended that the Wallaceites should have raised the constitutionality issue before the Electoral Board ruled.

He held that the "election is already in progress" with absentee ballots out and some three million ballots or more already printed. He said it would create a "very serious practical situation" in the entire election if the ballots were now changed, two weeks before election.

Justice Rutledge said it is "very important" to know if it is practical for the court to act. The Wallaceites claimed the ballot can be changed, or "stickers" can be printed, but Wingersky said stickers are only legal in actual "vacancies" on the ballot.

Dewey Sure Of Victory

set up in Washington, a Department of Social Progress.

"I would like to bring to our national Government," he said, "what you folks have so generously supported in New York State: a Government with both a head and a heart. We have to do quite a lot of things in the course of that process to restore competence and courage and integrity to this Government of ours."

In Buffalo, where there is a large number of voters of Polish blood, Governor Dewey appeared to be taking a crack at President Truman's conduct at Potsdam.

He told how, in the last six years, 200 million people in central Europe have lost their freedom under Soviet totalitarianism.

"All that occurred," he said, "during a time when we were fighting and many Americans were dying for liberty or during the three years that ensued.

"Part of that has occurred as a result of concessions made by the present Administration."

At every stop, Governor Dewey talked of unity in the United States and also unity among all the nations opposed to totalitarianism.

"We can again bring hope to millions all over the world," he said, "and most importantly we can make sure that your boys and my boys do not have to live through another war."

A poignant reminder of the last war came at Utica. The train shed there was crowded with the caskets of fallen Yanks, brought back from overseas, and Governor Dewey decided that it was no place to make a speech.

When he came back to Albany this evening, the GOP candidate completed 13,410 miles of barnstorming—4510 miles on this trip and 8900 on an earlier swing through 17 States.

The New York Governor and Mrs. Dewey went directly to the Executive Mansion, where they were to celebrate the thirteenth birthday of their youngest son, Johnny.

Governor Dewey will remain in Albany until Wednesday, when he will leave for New York City to speak at the Herald Tribune Forum. He will speak again Thursday night at a dinner honoring the memory of Alfred E. Smith.

There are no plans as yet for the remainder of the week. In the final week of the campaign, he will make speeches in Cleveland, Chicago, and Boston, and wind up with a rally in New York's Madison Square Garden.

Wallace Jeers Labor Leaders' 'Red-Baiting'

Pittsburgh, Oct. 18 (AP).—Henry Wallace said tonight labor leaders who call people Communist are joining with the "enemy"—the corporations—and this enemy is "laughing up his sleeve."

In a speech at Duquesne Gardens, the Progressive Party candidate for President sought the votes of rank and file union members in this steel center.

He did not name the right wing labor leaders whom he was criticizing. Philip Murray, president of the CIO and the United Steelworkers' Union, which have their headquartrs here, is an outspoken foe of Communists in the labor movement.

Attacks "Red Baiting"

Wallace said it is a "pity" that some of the same men who led labor to victories 10 years ago, men who "built the steelworkers' union and the United Mine Workers' Union" are today "using the same tactics," of "red-baiting" that were used against them.

He declared:

"I do not understand labor leaders who point out that everything the corporations say is a lie, designed to make themselves more money; but who when they say a man is a dirty Communist join with the corporations in discriminating against any worker who dares support the Progressive Party."

Earlier today, Wallace:

1. Flew here from Detroit.

2. Took a mile or so of roadwork in East Pittsburgh. While his police-escorted caravan waited at the curb, Wallace walked up a high hill, scrambled down a steep, muddy, garbage-littered embankment, and finished with about 300 yards of fast trotting.

At Westinghouse Plant

3. Addressed a polite and rather quiet lunch-hour crowd of about 3500 electrical workers at the gate of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation plant in East Pittsburgh. He criticized David E. Lilienthal, chairman of the U. S. Atomic Energy Commission, because that agency, on security grounds, has barred the CIO-United Electrical Workers from bargaining, or employes at Government-owned atomic plants operated by General Electric Co.

"I noticed the other day," Wallace said, "that Mr. Lilienthal doesn't like UE—says it can't be trusted. I would rather trust UE than GE."

At the evening rally, Wallace made a double-barreled attack on the Taft-Hartley law and the Marshall Plan. He said they both "spring from the same source—Wall Street. It is time we dried up that source."

Wallace said U. S. policymakers "used the United Nations not for peace, but for provocation."

Navy Rank Offered To Women Doctors

The Navy wants some women doctors. It announced yesterday a plan for giving commissions to women doctors who have completed internships in civilian hospitals. In addition, it hopes to take 25 women doctors into Navy hospitals as internes.

One of the first eight Wave officers sworn into the regular Navy recently is a doctor, Lieut. Commander Frances L. Willoughby of Pitman, N. J., a graduate of the University of Arkansas. She served during the war at the Naval Medical Center in Bethesda, Md.

Sen. Tydings Sees War or Peace Paramount Campaign Issue

The question of war or peace is the paramount issue in the forthcoming presidential election, Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) told 1000 Democrats in a rally last night at the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

"If there are any who, in their hearts, actually believe that the Republicans can keep us out of war then they should vote that ticket," Tydings said, "but if after considering the record, they are convinced the Democrats are better able to do it, then that is the party who should receive the vote."

Compared with the problem of war or peace, the question of meat prices pales into insignificance, the Senator declared.

Tydings traced the measures instigated by the late President Roosevelt and supported by the Democratic Party, which Tydings said, helped carry us through the perilous war days.

He pointed to various rearmament moves and to the extension of the Selective Service law immediately before the war and asserted that the majority of Republican Congressmen had voted against each of the preparedness measures.

The Senator deviated from his main theme toward the conclusion of his talk to give a plea for re-election of Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer of the Fifth District.

Sasscer spoke before Tydings. He told of his own efforts to secure better prices for Maryland tobacco growers during OPA days. State Senator L. Harold Sothoron of Prince Georges County Democratic campaign chairman, presided and introduced the speakers.

Barkley Sees TVA Menaced by GOP

Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 18 (AP).—Senator Alben W. Barkley told Tennesseans tonight a Democratic defeat in November might hang a question mark over further development of the Tennessee Valley Authority and atomic energy.

In his third invasion of the South, the Democratic vice presidential nominee stressed the long partnership between Dixie and the Democratic Party. He warned that a vote for anyone other than President Truman would be a vote for Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, GOP presidential nominee.

The reception accorded the Kentucky Senator in Tennessee made him forget Louisiana. In that State, he was greeted frigidly last Saturday as he pleaded for unity in the Democratic Party, now torn by Southern rebellion against President Truman's civil rights proposals.

A large crowd met him at Chattanooga, where he arrived by special plane, and a police-escorted motor convoy took him into the city where he spoke before an estimated 2000 persons. Representative Estes Kefauver, Democratic senatorial nominee, joined him at Chattanooga.

In Nashville another large crowd welcomed Barkley and police led a parade into the city for the Senator's night speech (8 p. m. EST).

In a speech here, Barkley did not mention by name the States' Rights wing of the Democratic Party, headed by Gov. J. Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, which is fighting the Truman-Barkley ticket in the South.

The Democratic Party, he said, will remain united and go forward "in spite of temporary differences over special and economic problems."

Barkley referred to the Tennessee Valley Authority as "the most monumental of the creations of the sympathetic Democratic Administration."

But the Republican-controlled Eightieth Congress, he said, repeatedly refused to provide funds for future development of the TWA and Governor Dewey himself has indicated disapproval of any further projects of a similar nature.

"If the status of the Tennessee Valley Authority is endangered," Barkley said, "so is that of another history-making project, the huge atomic energy plant at Oak Ridge in Tennessee. The Governor of New York has announced his intention, if elected, to take what he calls the "dead hand of Government" from the development and use of atomic energy and turn it over to private exploitation for private profit."

Truman in Raleigh After 3-Hour Flight

Raleigh, N. C., Oct. 18.—President Truman landed at Raleigh-Durham Airport at 6:20 p. m., after a 2-hour-and-50-minute flight from Miami.

He was met by an official committee headed by North Carolina Gov. R. Gregg Cherry and Democratic State Chairman Cepus Waynick. The official party left immediately for the 15-mile drive into Raleigh, a trip broken at the city limits to let down the top of the President's car.

He and his party arrived at the Sir Walter Hotel shortly before 7 p. m.

Mississippi Ballot To List Five Parties

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The Mississippi Election Commission today ordered Secretary of State Heber Ladner to list five slates of electors on the Mississippi general election ballot.

The commission ruled that the Truman-Barkley slate be listed under the heading, "National Democratic Party," and the States' Rights slate under "Mississippi Democratic Party."

The Progressive (Henry Wallace) Party slate will be listed as "Independents." The other two slates will be listed under "Independent Republican Party of Mississippi" and "Republican Party of the State of Mississippi." Both Republican slates are pledged to Dewey-Warren.

Anti-Truman Purge Halted in Texas

Fort Worth, Tex., Oct. 18 (AP).—Anti-Truman Democrats today were granted a temporary restraining order to prevent the State Democratic executive committee from purging precinct chairmen who decline to give a Truman-Barkley loyalty pledge.

The action followed adoption of a resolution by the State Democratic convention instructing the party's executive committee to exact such a pledge from county and precinct chairmen.

District Judge W. L. Morris set October 28 as a hearing date on an application for a temporary injunction.

N. Y. Polls to Remain Open 2 Extra Hours

Albany, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Secretary of State Thomas J. Curran today ordered the polls in New York State held open two extra hours November 2 because the registration exceeds six million.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 18 (AP).—Philip F. La Follette, former Progressive Governor of Wisconsin, today indorsed Republican Gov. Thomas E. Dewey for President.

La Follette, three times Governor, said in a statement that "Dewey has demonstrated the better qualifications for the office of President in this critical time."

Porter Cleared Of Assault Intent On Four-Year-Old

Alvin M. Romeo, 17-year-old porter, was found innocent yesterday by a District Court jury of assault with intent to have carnal relations with a 4-year-old girl.

Romeo, who resides at 315 G st. ne., was employed at a delicatessen, 221 Upshur st. nw., in July when the girl complained that Romeo had assaulted her in the bathroom there. Romeo insisted, however, that the girl had opened the door of the room while he was there and that he had ordered her away.

dent of Zenith, would make no comment on the new receivers beyond quoting Brown's testimony before the commission. "He was telling the truth," the manufacturer said.

Existing television receivers can be modified so as to receive ultra high frequency signals by "converters" some manufacturers told the FCC during the "freeze" hearings. The efficiency of the "converters" was debated by witnesses. RCA is known to have constructed converters for demonstration purposes but does not have any in commercial production. Dumont spokesmen said yesterday that this company had neither converters or high-frequency receivers in production.

The freezing order, so far, has had little influence on the radio trade. TV manufacturers have continued to operate at full production and generally have found it difficult to supply demand.

Only 12 channels can be fitted into the entire spectrum space now available to TV. The ultra high frequency field would provide some 69 more 6-megacycle channels if it were all made available for commercial television.

personal papers, we will oppose it," the spokesman said. "If it's a question of looking for a later will," he added with a laugh, "the bank should be the authorized party to do the looking."

The motion requested permission to search any "wills, documents, papers, memoranda, books, accounts, letters, photographs, objects or tangible things," belonging to Mrs. Patterson and now in bank custody.

Asked what "wills" were referred to, Kertz said he had in mind copies of any prior testaments. The private papers "constitute or contain evidence relevant to the issues involved" in the legal contest, Kertz said. Executors of the will have five days to oppose granting of the motion.

Meanwhile, Kertz told a reporter that he intends to petition District Court this week to authorize payments by Riggs Bank to 17 minor beneficiaries of the will.

Payments to these 17, who include ill or needy former Times Herald employes or their widows, Mrs. Patterson's old friends and former servants, have been suspended until settlement of the will contest.

"The countess recognizes that suspension of payments has worked great hardship on some of these beneficiaries," Kertz said in explaining why she will ask that the weekly and monthly payments be resumed," at least in needy cases."

The countess has been sending some money to a few of the beneficiaries who have applied to her for help, Kertz said. He declined to say how many of the 17 she had assisted or to what extent.

The countess' attorney said that it was "erroneous" to assume that payments were suspended because of the will contest. He maintained that they ceased with the death of the donor on July 24.

Supreme Court Will Rule on Quick Divorces

Another decision will be made by the Supreme Court to classify further the status of persons involved in "quickie' divorces.

The Supreme Court yesterday agreed to hear a case in which a Reno-divorced wife and a second wife both claim they are a man's widow and heir.

Another major case the court will review is whether an oil company violates the antitrust laws by contracting to act as the exclusive supplier for independent service stations.

The court has held that the State holding jurisdiction over the persons involved can decide whether legal residence was established for the "quickie" divorce.

In another decision, the court had said that if a divorce action defendant appeared in court during the divorce case, he or she cannot later raise the question of bona fide residence.

The current case involves Lillian P. Rice of Woodbridge, Conn., divorced from Herbert N. Rice in Reno, Nev. She was notified of the divorce, but did not appear. Two weeks after the divorce, Rice was remarried in Reno to Hermoine P. Rice, and Rice died six months later in California.

Upheld by State Court

When the first wife asked to be declared the widow on grounds that Rice did not obtain bona fide residence in Reno, Connecticut courts upheld her. The second wife appealed to the Supreme Court, her attorneys contending the lower courts erred in holding it necessary to prove abandonment of a former legal residence in order to show a valid change of domicile to Reno.

The oil case to be heard directly involves 5197 contracts and other agreements between Standard Oil Co. of California and independent dealers in seven States doing a combined business of about 68 million dollars.

All petroleum products, plus tires, tubes and batteries, were to be supplied to the independents by Standard Oil under the terms. Service stations operated by the oil company's own employes were not involved.

The United States District Court in Los Angeles agreed with the Justice Department that this type of exclusive contract is prohibited by the antitrust laws.

In another case, the Supreme Court agreed to review the Navy court-martial conviction of Chief Signalman Harold E. Hirshberg, convicted of brutality toward two fellow prisoners in Japanese prison camps.

Sentenced to 10 months' imprisonment, reduction in rank from chief petty officer to apprentice seaman and a dishonorable discharge, Hirshberg claimed the court-martial illegal because he had been honorably discharged after the asserted offense and then reenlisted. His trial followed his reenlistment.

A Federal District Court in New York upheld Hirshberg, but was reversed by the Second United States Court of Appeals.

Joan Leslie's Plea Denied

The Supreme Court refused to hear screen star Joan Leslie's claim that she should not be held to a work agreement made with Warner Brothers when she was 17, for a six-year contract starting in 1942 at $600 weekly and increasing to $2250.

In January, 1942, when she became 21, she declared she would not be bound by a minor's contract, and signed a contract with Nero Pictures, Inc. Warner Bros. won a decision in the California Supreme Court, which now stands.

The court, in other actions:

Refused to hear a claim by the Washington (State) Pension Union that the Washington State Joint Legislative Committee on Un-American Activities is unconstitutional. The Pension Union, appealing an unsuccessful claim before the State Supreme Court, said the committee had announced plans to disclose findings on "The Communist seizure and control of the State organization of the Washington Pension Union . . ."

Refused to consider a protest by 76 locomotive engineers of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad against a change in their collective bargaining representative from the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen to the Grand International Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. A national mediation board certified the change to the latter group, which represents other engineers of the railroad.

9 'Diplomats'

105 Traffic Violators Are Let Off

Police "fixed" 105 traffic tickets last week, canceling 9 because of diplomatic immunity.

A ticket was changed to a warning for Thomas R. Sard of 4014 9th st. ne., an executive of the Department of Corrections, who was given a ticket for parking overtime. He informed officers he was on official business and had been delayed.

Adjustments because of diplomatic immunity were granted to:

Milton P. Monteiro, of the Brazilian Embassy, one for standing in a "no parking from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone; another for parking in a "no parking from 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone.

A. Baird, of the British Embassy, parked in a driveway.

Jose G. Gomez, of the Colombian Embassy, standing in a "no standing from 4 to 6 p. m." zone.

Thomas Keep, of the British Embassy, parked in "no parking anytime" zone.

Ali R. Heravi, of the Iranian Embassy, parked in a "no parking 4 to 6:30 p. m." zone.

Doris M. Whitford, Indian Embassy, parked less than 40 feet from an intersection.

Rivera Arcos, 261 Constitution ave. nw., parked left wheel to the curb.

Mihail N. Marinescu, of the Romanian Legation, parking in a loading zone.

Prober Demands Dewey Stand on 'Condon Letter'

Representative Hebert (D., La.) yesterday renewed his demand that Gov. Thomas E. Dewey say before election "whether or not the Congress can expect your cooperation in fighting communism."

Hebert, a member of the House Un-American Activities Committee, made the demand in a letter to Dewey a month ago.

Failing to get what he considered a satisfactory answer, Hebert addressed a new communication to the GOP presidential candidate, saying:

"I personably think that as a member of the Committee on Un-American Activities I . . . have a right to know whether or not you will release the loyalty files and let us see the so-called Condon letter?"

President Truman has refused to let the House committee have files on investigations of the loyalty of Government workers. One file that he specifically refused the committee was that on Dr. Edward H. Condon, director of the National Bureau of Standards.

able to whip through town at much greater speed than the present 30 mile-per-hour limit.

There is a catch, however, to the more liberal view. The vehicle must carry certain specified equipment, such as a siren and big red light in front. And the driver would not be protected "from the consequences of his reckless disregard of the safety of others."

Slow-poke "Sunday drivers," currently required not to drive abreast and to keep as near the righthand curb as possible, would be subject to arrest if they impede or block traffic "except when necessary for safety or compliance with regulations."

Pedestrians are mentioned frequently. One provision says they must cross streets at right angles from curb to curb or by the shortest route to the opposite curb. If croswalks, are provided, however, pedestrians must stay within their bounds.

It has been estimated that 19,000 lives will be saved annually when the full program for the Nation is put in effect.

The District's modernized regulations were proposed by a subcommittee of the Advisory Board's Committee on Laws and Regulations, headed by Nathan M. Lubar, Washington attorney. They include 174 sections designed to become part of "uniform State traffic laws and municipal traffic ordinances" as urged by the President's conference.

They would make District traffic regulations as simple for visitors—who comprise 49 per cent of the daily traffic volume—as for residents, in the word of Traffic Director George E. Keneipp.

The subcommittee was appointed three months after the President's conference. Besides Lubar and Traffic Director Keneipp, it includes Wallace L. Braun, deputy director of vehicles and traffic; Inspector Arthur E. Miller, chief of the Traffic Division of Metropolitan Police; Robert D. Wise, assistant corporation counsel, and M. O. Eldridge, the District's first traffic director.

The committee functioned on the premise that motor travel today knows no State lines and that no greater deterrent to highway safety exists than conflicting State laws and regulations—especially those which tend to erect barriers to the free flow of commerce and trade.

Once this set of revisions, which concerns only operating and parking regulations, is approved, the subcommittee will move on to another mission.

It will be scrutiny of laws pertaining to registration and title of vehicles, operators' permits, financial responsibility laws, civil liability and other technical matters.

U. S. Immunity Sought to Make Siegel Case Witness Talk

Beverly Hills, Oct. 18 (AP).—Immunity from Federal immigration prosecution for Allen Smiley, white-haired sportsman who was with gangster Bugsy Siegel when the latter was slain, was suggested today by Police Chief C. H. Anderson.

But only, Anderson made it plain, on condition that Smiley talk.

Smiley has been on trial for a week in Federal court, accused of perjury in a statement to immigration officers. A native of Russia, Smiley went to Mexico in 1944. The Government charges he swore falsely when he returned.

TWA's WORLD-PROVED CONSTELLATION

Record ON-TIME schedule performance!

During July and August, 1948, TWA Constellations set a new record for dependability. With average flight length of more than 2100 miles, the average arrival time at final destinations was within 10 minutes of schedule! Skilled ground personnel, excellent piloting and the presence of a trained Flight Engineer in the cockpit with the pilots helped make this new record possible. TWA carries Flight Engineers on all 4-engine aircraft.

Over 3 BILLION passenger miles in 3 years!

Constellations in scheduled world service have flown over 100,000,000 miles—a total of more than 3 BILLION passenger miles! And this already huge mileage is growing at an amazing rate. In just one day this month, for example, TWA "Connies" in transcontinental service alone flew 1,392,434 passenger miles. Additional thousands of miles are being flown daily on TWA's world routes which stretch from San Francisco to Bombay.

All-time WINTER performance record!

TWA Constellations, in transcontinental service alone, completed 97% of all scheduled mileage in the period December through March, 1948—an all-time record during one of the toughest winters in history! Constellations can climb high above rough weather—carry hundreds of gallons of extra fuel! And a "Connie" has so much power to spare that, if necessary, it can actually take off and climb with only two of four engines running!

3 to 1 FAVORITE for transatlantic flight!

One of the finest testimonials to the Constellation's dependability is its overwhelming popularity for long, over-ocean flights! In the first half of 1948, of the thousands of passengers who flew the Atlantic, more than three out of four flew in fast, dependable Constellations. TWA alone makes 52 transatlantic flights weekly to and from Europe, Africa, the Middle East and Asia. And TWA round-trip transatlantic fares are now lower than ever.

Hacker Indicted In Girl Fare's Death

Frank Jones, 21, a taxi driver, of 14 Watkins st., Chevy Chase, Md., was indicted yesterday by the Arlington grand jury on a manslaughter charge, the outgrowth of an automobile accident in which a Bethesda girl was killed.

Jones' taxi failed to round a curve March 28 and smashed head-on into a building owned by the Cherrydale Cement Block Co., at 3436 Lee hwy., Arlington.

Killed in the accident was Miss Audrey Martin, 21.

The jury yesterday failed to indict Billy L. McDaniel, 32-year-old former partner of William A. Denekas who was slain by a bomb rigged in his auto on June 7.

McDaniel had been accused of grand larceny in the theft of equipment from the Old Dominion Neon Sign Co., which he and Denekas owned, while the property was under custody of the Arlington sheriff.

The grand jury indicted three Arlington men on charges of murder. Harry Arthur Deskins, 20, of 5008 N. 22d st. was charged with the murder of Elmer Baskerville; Willie Baines, 47, of 2444 S. Glebe rd. with the murder of his wife, Mrs. Julia Hall Baines, and Paul Brundage, 25, 3521 S. Kemper dr. with the murder of Lucille Minor.

Two men were indicted on charges of felonious assault. They were Aubrey Costin, 48, and Astor G. Godwin, 33, both of 4213 Wilson blvd., Arlington.

Indicted on rape charges was James O. Spriggs, 35, of 5135 N. 22d st., Arlington; on hit-and-run charges, Leander Brewer, 28, of 2621 S. Seminary rd., Arlington.

For Churches

Seven Sites Restricted In Greenbelt

The Greenbelt (Md.) Council last night zoned seven proposed church sites for church use only to preclude purchase of the sites by other interests when the town is sold by the Government.

The restrictions were provided in a resolution introduced by Councilman David Granahan, who asked the council to assist the churches in their efforts to obtain property they have tried to buy from the Government for more than a year.

Laws Protected

Even though the town may eventually be acquired by private interests, there can be no change in regulations imposed by the council, since its laws are protected by a charter issued by the Maryland State Legislature. All present laws will remain intact unless altered by the legislative body.

Direct negotiations for purchase of the sites is forestalled by a Federal law which provides that they must be sold at public auction, along with other war surplus property. Inasmuch as they are to be zoned for church use only, it was pointed out, there is little likelihood any other interests will enter bids during the public sale.

The Rev. Eric T. Braund, chairman of a local committee on church sites, told the council seven religious groups seeking to buy land in the town have already selected their sites so there will be no local conflict at the time of the sale.

Resigns in Protest

Mr. Braund offered to resign his post as pastor of the Greenbelt Community Church last week as a protest against the Government's refusal to sell the land directly to the churches. His resignation which he described as conditional, will become effective next May unless there is a satisfactory solution to the land problem.

The minister attended last night's meeting and told councilmen he had been assured only last March that the Public Housing Administration was ready to deal with the churches on the land sale.

Only a short time later he said he was informed that Federal law provided that all property in the town must be sold at public auction which provides for competitive bidding.

Restricts Bidding

If the sites were not restricted, he pointed out, churches might find themselves in the position of trying to bid against "a super market or some other moneyed interest" which could easily afford to outbid the religious groups.

Although a rezoning ordinance will be necessary to restrict the sites permanently to church use, last night's resolution contained a clause which made the restrictions effective immediately pending legal zoning action.

Metropolitan Opera Sues on Chicago Name

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—New York's Metropolitan Opera Association began an attempt in Federal court today to prove that the Metropolitan Association of Chicago should be barred from using its name.

The suit charged that the Chicago corporation's name has caused confusion which has interfered with fund drives by the New York Metropolitan. In addition, the suit contends the Chicago Met hasn't the reputation and standing of New York's Met.

Tire Man Sees Cost-of-Living Drop Next Year

Virginia Beach, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Prospects for lower living costs in 1949 are good, J. Ward Keener, vice president of the B. F. Goodrich Co., said today.

A moderate drop in food, clothing and consumer item prices should occur within six months, "barring a worsening of the European situation," Keener said in a talk at the Institute on Industrial Relations.

Some 200 business executives attended today's opening session of the five-day institute, sponsored by the National Association of Manufacturers. Panel discussions were held on inflation, collective bargaining, costs, wages, production and other subjects.

Keener, presiding at a panel discussion on wage trends, said prices, "especially in the consumer goods lines, ought to taper off by next spring. But no one can deny that some unpredictable development may come out of the clear sky to prevent this."

He predicted industrial activity will be good for a long time on perhaps a moderately lower level.

"While the over-all business picture looks favorable, we are beginning to get soft spots," Keener said, "and they tend to spread. Add to that the fact that break-even points have been climbing with every spin of the inflation cycle, and one is faced with the conclusion that a little ill wind could cause trouble."

Holes in Meteorites Held Not Due to Earth Conditioning

Those mystery holes in meteorites, heavenly fragments that crash with terrific impact, are not caused by earth-conditioning as heretofore supposed, two Smithsonian mineralogists agreed yesterday.

Instead, the cavities, like finger holes in a bowling ball, are more probably natural formations within the space masses long before the meteors fall prey to earth's gravity, they said.

The new theory was advanced by Edward P. Henderson and Stuart H. Perry of the United States National Museum here, in detailed report on the eighth largest meteorite yet found in United States, the 1164-pound iron meteorite discovered by chance four years ago in the Drum Mountains of Utah.

Metallurgical study of the meteorite, now on display at the museum, has shown, they said, that the holes were not caused by weathering after landing or by the burning out of troilite, a sulfide of iron, during the flight of the mass through earth's atmosphere, the two theories advanced in previous studies on other meteorites.

The Drum Mountains meteorite was found in 1944 by two Japanese war internees searching the mountains for materials for their camp classes in gem-cutting.

The iron was found resting almost entirely on the ground surface, with no mark of impact. Force of the impact has been estimated at 20 million foot-pounds by L. B. Aldrich, director of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory.

Weathering of the meteorite, they said, indicates it fell within the past century.

Ever sip cider through a straw?
Works fine . . . with a few straws and a little fair play. But it's no party when one person sips more than his share.
What's true of a party is also true of a party line. When everybody works together, there's plenty of telephone service for all. But when someone makes a series of calls one right after the other, it deprives the other fellow of his fair share of service.
Most folks on party lines realize this. They "space" their calls so that others have a chance to use the line. They make it a point to answer the telephone promptly. And they never interrupt when the line is in use, except in a case of emergency.
When you do these neighborly things, you're helping yourself and others to better telephone service.

Polk's Assassins

So many charges and countercharges have entered the investigation of the murder of George Polk that the formal findings of the Greek government inevitably will be greeted with skepticism. Vociferous efforts have been made to pin the murder on both the Communists and the Rightists since the Columbia Broadcasting System correspondent's trussed body was found in Salonika Bay last May. Most of these charges have seemed to argue from rather than to a conclusion. The issuance of warrants against three persons associated with the Greek Communist Party follows the line insistently pursued by the government, and it constitutes accusations rather than demonstrated facts. Final judgment must, of course, depend entirely on the evidence produced.

Most Americans probably will prefer to base their judgment on the reports of the several outside agencies which have been investigating the matter on their own. Neither the Overseas Writers, which sent Maj. Gen. William J. Donovan to Greece, nor the Newsmen's Commission to Investigate the Murder of George Polk has yet issued its statement. Meanwhile, however, credit is due the intensive effort of Greek officials to solve the crime. The manhunt has been described as the greatest in Greek history. Whether such effort would have been made without American prodding is another question, but it is undoubtedly true that Greek authorities have shown a prodigious exertion. It is just too bad that a comparable effort has not been made to dispel the atmosphere of intrigue and corruption that continues to becloud each move of the Greek government, no matter how well intentioned.

Mr. Thomas' Tongue

It seems a pity that the disciples of Mr. Norman Thomas are neither numerous enough nor wealthy enough to buy radio network time for his speeches, which for candor and pertinacity far surpass those of any other presidential candidate. Indeed, as a political analyst and critic, Mr. Thomas is much superior to most of the highly paid professional commentators.

The explanation, of course, is that Mr. Thomas, knowing very well that he will not be elected or acquire even so much as a single electoral vote, can afford a degree of intellectual honesty impossible in the candidates, who in soliciting the votes of vast and heterogeneous multitudes, find themselves under the painful necessity of having to say sometimes more and sometimes less than they mean, and sometimes perhaps the opposite of it. We do not mean to suggest that if Mr. Thomas were the nominee of one of the great parties, his speeches would necessarily be more equivocal; all we are saying is that the possibility of such a man becoming such a nominee is wholly remote. Senator Taft, whose methods and mannerisms are about as similar to Mr. Thomas' as his principles are dissimilar, probably represents the limit of success to which a blunt and plain-spoken man can aspire in regular party politics.

Mr. Thomas' following now comprises a handful of personal admirers and the tried but faithful remnants of the Socialist Party, shattered by many successive schisms of the right and left, and further depleted by an increasing mortality of party members. With some exceptions, mostly of the church-going sort, the radically minded among the younger generation find Mr. Thomas' special brew of socialist theory less to their taste than the heady liquors of Communist conspiracy or of Trotskyist dialectic, and the more pragmatical are naturally attracted to the Republicans or Democrats or the P. A. C. Thus Mr. Thomas' audiences are now comprised predominantly of persons past middle age, many of them scarred veterans of ancient reform battles, strikes, civil rights crusades and party fissions, witnesses to the disastrous experiments with popular fronts, and wholesale defections to the New Deal, and now bound together by something stronger than ideological ties or common abhorrence of Communists and fellow travelers. Most of them are sadder and wiser for their experiences and have all but lost hope that the world will accept their particular vision of social justice and human brotherhood. Such an audience is beyond being tricked by catchwords, or hypnotized by platitudes or inflamed by demagogic arts; but it relishes the neat thrust, the sardonic epigram, the puncturing of pretense.

It was to just such an audience in Baltimore the other night that Mr. Thomas described the intellectual level of the current campaign as lowest within his memory, which is now a long one. He summarized Governor Dewey's position as follows: "Father forgive him (Truman), for he knows not what he does—but I'll know when I get in." This, observed Mr. Thomas, is all that Governor Dewey has been serving to his audiences, with, however, occasional changes of rhetorical garnish. And of Mr. Truman, Mr. Thomas observed: "We looked at him and we listened to him, and we said to ourselves, 'It's right! Anybody can be President of the United States.'"

Presidential Transition

Governor Dewey was recently reported to be planning, in the event he is elected President in November, to seek a share in the shaping of United States foreign policy between election day and his inauguration on January 20. Now it is indicated, apparently on good authority, that he plans to continue functioning as Governor of New York during that interval. If this report is correct, he would take full responsibility for preparing the New York budget and initiating the 1949 legislative program while at the same time preparing to shift his activities to Washington.

The reasoning behind this unusual decision is said to concern chiefly Governor Dewey's staff. It is known that he intends, if the voters give him the opportunity, to shift a number of his aides from Albany to Washington. These men cannot be put on the Federal payroll until after January 20. Should the Governor resign immediately after November 3, and ask his staff to do likewise, they would be without salaries and offices for 2½ months. Governor Dewey is said to feel that he could continue handling State affairs and prepare to take over his duties in Washington more advantageously with his organization immediately at hand than he could if he were relieved of the Governorship and at the same time be denied the assistance of his "team."

Undoubtedly this shifting of the Governor's "team" would involve a real problem, but it is also obvious that the plan attributed to Mr. Dewey would put him under a burden that no President-elect ought to assume. A modern presidential campaign is one of the most grueling experiences any man has to endure. The successful candidate will need a rest before plunging into the most arduous assignment in the world. If it is Mr. Dewey, he will need time, moreover, to select his Cabinet, to outline policies that he will recommend to Congress, and to familiarize himself with the details of the critical world situation. Whether or not there is a formal cooperative arrangement for continuation of the bipartisan foreign policy, if Mr. Dewey is elected it will be his voice that will be heeded abroad. He will not be able to escape a vast amount of responsibility for steadying the world in the November 3-January 20 interval. Certainly a man facing that burden in addition to leadership in formulating domestic policy and building a new administration on a national scale ought not to be burdened with questions as to how much shall be spent for roads, schools and hospitals in New York next year.

Incidentally, fairness to Lieutenant Governor Hanley, who would succeed Mr. Dewey in New York, seems to call for giving him the dominant role in shaping the legislative program and budget that he will be called upon to defend before the public and the Legislature at Albany. But that is a relatively minor consideration. What is most important is to give Mr. Dewey, if he is elected, the best possible opportunity to orient himself to the vastness of the responsibility he will assume. The Presidency is not just another job which can be picked up with ease and assurance the day after a Governorship is dropped. It is an office of staggering proportions that demands every ounce of the incumbent's energy and more time than he can possibly give to it. We cannot help thinking that Governor Dewey would risk a bad start for his Administration, from the psychological as well as the practical viewpoints, if he should waste any time on State affairs after being entrusted with what amounts to the leadership of world democracy.

Justice And Security

The Scientists' Committee on Loyalty Problems, whose formation has just been announced at Princeton, might have been named the Committee for Justice to Scientists. Its primary purpose is to try to see that scientists associated with atomic energy work receive fair treatment at the hands of loyalty and security investigations. That scientists should find it necessary to adopt such a procedure is, we think, a sharp commentary on the atmosphere of suspicion fostered by the Thomas Committee and the methods employed by it in impugning the loyalty and discretion of scientists in general.

The problem of protecting the good names of individuals engaged in "sensitive security areas" is broader, of course, than atomic science. As the scientists' committee announcement suggests, "the assurance of justice to scientists now may help to assure similar fair treatment to other individuals or groups which will become similarly involved." Members of the scientific fraternity are by no means alone in being exercised about the threat to individual liberties implicit in even the most circumspect clearance procedure. But this is another evidence of the fact that in emerging from the laboratory into the arena of public affairs they have quickly seen the indivisibility of justice for all groups.

Most scientists in the atomic energy field, we believe, are aware of the peculiar position they occupy at the present moment in respect to security. The requirements of national defense, unfortunately but inevitably, make necessary the most careful scrutiny of the loyalty and reliability of anyone engaged in "sensitive" work. But a scrupulous regard for security is not inconsistent with a scrupulous regard for justice. On the contrary, the two go together. The narrowest interpretation of national safety demands that scientists not be driven out of atomic research and development by fear of loose and unfounded damage to their reputations and earning power. And the broadest interpretation of human welfare likewise demands that science not be discouraged or hampered in seeking to perfect the nonmilitary possibilities of atomic energy.

Lagging Reserves

The dramatic staging of President Truman's order to spruce up the Army and Air Force reserves probably exaggerates the significance of what he has done. The situation of these two important components of American military strength is in many ways deplorable, but it is not new. The fact that Mr. Truman saw fit to issue his pronunciamento to Secretary Forrestal from his campaign train suggests that the President may have been interested in propitiating the reserve groups, which have been carrying on a running feud with the Army. Moreover, Mr. Truman's lavish praise for the National Guard seems to us to contain a considerable element of gloss, despite some real efforts to stimulate the guard.

"Get going," is what President Truman said, in effect. Secretary Forrestal has been directed to report within 60 days on the success of attempts to infuse new leadership and a meaningful program into reserve training. There can be no doubt that the directive is timely. Lately there has been an extensive endeavor to revitalize the reserve program, but the present status still is one of appalling disorganization. Although Congress provided for pay of reservists and for retirement benefits, these emoluments are still not reaching the average Army or Air Force reservist. Similarly, there has existed a great confusion about just what reservists are expected to do.

There is room for some genuine doubt whether the country can ever have a really effective organized reserve as the second line of defense until the various competing reserve elements (i. e., the organized reserve and the National Guard) are unified into one component as has been done in the Navy. This is a question of many overtones and complexities, and one which requires both further study and a great deal of courage before it can be tackled squarely. Meanwhile, however, a principal problem in maintaining some sort of workable reserve is to retain the interest of the members. If the President's order results in a program in which the average reservist can feel that he is contributing something useful rather than wasting his time, then the first obstacle will have been overcome.

Strained Mercy

The instinctive reaction to the fine that Municipal Judge George D. Neilson imposed on a motorist arrested for speeding 65 miles an hour while rushing a critically ill child to a hospital is to condemn it as unjust. We ourselves think that perhaps the $10 fine was overdone, and that the same effect might have been accomplished by suspending it. For there is considerable doubt whether imposition of a fine on a man whose offense stemmed from fear for a child's life has any remedial value. It is pretty difficult to act with complete rationality under such circumstances. Nevertheless, what Judge Neilson had to say bears repeating. "The defendant's imprudent response to the emergency—his high speed—might have caused a greater emergency and have sent other persons not only to the hospital but to the undertaker." In other words, the judge is charged with looking out for the interest of society as a whole, and even an act of mercy does not warrant the endangering of other lives—especially since ambulances are limited to 35 miles an hour in Washington.

The same justification cannot be made for the action of police. The arresting officer courteously and properly escorted the mercy car to the hospital. But then, because the motorist in his haste had left his driver's license at home, he was jailed overnight because he could not make bail. Such inflexible strictness seems not only unnecessary, but downright inhuman.

We'll Take October

No one needed to tell thousands of Washingtonians over the weekend that October is the grandest month of all. They found it out for themselves in drives along the Blue Ridge, where the yellow and bronze splotches along the horizon or in neat patterns below accentuate the deepening haze of autumn in the mountains. They saw it in the fields, where a bounteous nature and an October sun have transformed corn shocks into mounds of gold. They found it along the Potomac, where the fall clouds give a unique sheen to wind-whipped water. They saw it in their own back yards, or in the parks, in watching the shimmer of a tree, or in shuffling through a blanket of multicolored leaves, or in sniffing the wispy odor of autumn smoke. To those who open their senses October is not a month but an experience which not even the cold winds of retribution can chill. Usually bright but never gaudy, October is a composite of subtlety and blending which the artist finds difficult to copy. October requires no investment except imagination, and the return it pays is nothing short of magic.

AFTER DARK

How sweet it is, so beautiful
Here in this orchard dripping white;
Here by the hill beside the pool;
Beside the pasture in the night.

So beautiful, so sweet and glad,
I wonder that I live at this;
My heart being wild and breath gone mad
With all these living mysteries.

In Baltimore Too

I have received from the Ford's Theater in Baltimore a mail order application blank which stipulates:

"Tickets sold by this theater are not transferrable and are sold subject to compliance with the known policy of the theater as to persons entitled to admission. If presented by any person not conforming to that policy, admission will be refused. Ford's Theater."

Perhaps the Ford's Theater means to exclude people with blue eyes or red shoes, but it is reasonable to assume, I think, it means it will not admit Negroes.

Mindful as I am of our sins against the Negro, I am not in this letter making any point as to the rightness or wrongness of segregation customs. But it does seem that the actors and their associations who did are cheating the Washington theatergoers. After their big show of principle here, one would expect them to be game enough to refuse to play before any segregated audience anywhere.

Misplaced Sympathy

At intervals each year our neighborhood has been beset with a plague of "handicapped" young men selling (it develops after a long preliminary denial) magazine subscriptions. The latest and most timely was a "victim of infantile paralysis." It wasn't until out of pity I succumbed to a part payment on a magazine which I did not want that I found out from the salesman that he had joined the organization "to see the country"; that he had enjoyed working with the company in various big cities throughout the United States; that he was not working on commission or salary and that all his personal, living, clothing and social expenses were paid by the company—which also provided to this particular group of five young men a manager and two cars for their use at any time, whether for business or pleasure.

I do not begrudge these men their earnings, but I have raged futilely at the tactics of a company which trades on the busy housewife's natural sympathies. There are many young men and women who bend every effort not to take advantage of a physical defect to the bamboozlement of the public.

My part payment I am sacrificing as a lesson learned—the balance I am sending to the Community Chest. Perhaps others will follow my example or contribute instead directly to the organizations which employ the handicapped in useful jobs, or help them physically.

Looking At Russia

Six years ago we were at war with Germany and Japan, and at that time Russia was "our gallant ally". Today we are rebuilding Germany and our "greatest enemy" is the same Russia.

Six years ago Joseph Davies wrote Mission to Moscow in which he extolled the virtues of the Russians. Today we can nowhere find a single virtue to attribute to the Russians.

It has been extremely interesting to reread our propaganda of 1942 and compare it with our 1948 style. It is hard to believe that Mr. Davies in 1942 could justify Russia's attack on Finland, could understand her treaty with Germany and see it as a mere expedient to gain time, could unequivocally commend the Soviets' consistent record of straight dealing, could state that "there is no graft in high places in Moscow, could point out that an incentive system for workers was in effect as a result of economic policies moving toward the right, and in general, make us believe it honorable to be fighting side by side with Russia.

Another article by Demaree Bess in 1944 (Saturday Evening Post) said "Americans cannot gracefully object if some (European) countries elect the Soviet system." Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were conceded outright to Russia. Germany, Italy, Hungary, Bulgaria, Romania, Spain, Poland, Greece, Yugoslavia and Albania were placed in the class of possible and probable Communistic states.

This article saw the Greek civil war (already raging at that time) not as a Communist inspired revolution, but as a real revolt of the masses against the reactionary politicians who were (and still are) so rotten. It clearly foresaw that the prewar "status quo" could not be remade.

Now these prophecies are being fulfilled, but we can no longer understand them. We attribute every evil change to Russian deviltry.

Isn't it time we began to study this Russian problem in context, with perspective, with common sense and without a military foreign policy which knows nothing but force, force and force? I, for one, don't believe Russia has grown to be an ogre in four years except in our propagandized minds.

Natural Rights

In re Mr. Lalley's review (October 11) of Prof. Corwin's Liberty Against Government, it appears to me, contrary to the opening paragraph, that in the United States there have never been conflicts "between the concepts of sovereignty and of natural law," and that Coke's variable views were only in part "translated into terms of political philosophy by John Locke."

Our Constitution of 1789 transferred certain powers from the people to a central government, reserving the residuum to themselves. Both the national and State governments, both sovereign in the internal sense, were subject to natural laws or the law of reason. The difficulties have arisen with regard to what rights are natural or fundamental.

The idea of English judges in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries taking an independent stand against the Crown is mere poetry. As Attorney General, Coke was a blackguard, as in the Raleigh trial. As Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas he limited the royal prerogative in cases in which the Crown was indifferent and popular opinion ran in Coke's favor and the common law. Throughout, Coke made it clear to the Crown that he was really a good fellow. So also when he was demoted to the King's bench and suffered defeat at the hands of King James when he sought to restrain Chancellor Ellesmere's authority.

In 1616, when Coke was dismissed from office, his views became really unequivocal. His opposition in Parliament to the Crown's taxing tactics resulted in the famous Petition of Right, his greatest achievement.

Mr. Feller's High Pitch

Please permit me, as an incorrigible grandstand manager and long-time member of the hot stove league, a word in defense of the editorial writer whose analysis of the first game of the recent World Series caused so much "anguished consternation" to your correspondent, Robert F. Nachtrieb (letter published October 15). What seems to have agonized Mr. Nachtrieb was the suggestion that Bobby Feller might have spoiled the opportunity for the contemplated double play in the eighth inning by pitching a trifle too high to Johnny Sain.

It is true that—everything else being equal, which is very seldom the case—the altitude of a batted ball is determined by the arc of the batter's stroke. The lower the pitch, the wider the arc and the greater the probabilities that the ball will rise—assuming of course the arc is completed. Conversely, a high pitched ball within the strike area, with the batters swinging in a narrow arc, may be deflected downward into a bounding ball.

A bounding ball is well suited to a double play because of the speed with which it reaches the infielders and (assuming no incalculable bounces) the precision with which it can be handled by them. But the defense must also calculate the possibilities that a high pitch, caught squarely at the end of the bat, may travel part of the distance at a slightly ascending angle out of reach of the infielders and so, unless an outfielder is placed to receive it, result in a base hit.

Now let us reconstruct the situation from the newspaper and radio accounts, leaving ourselves, of course, subject to correction by those who actually saw what happened. Sain's purpose, apparently, was to avoid the double play by pulling the ball into right field, hoping that it might land there safely and so advance the winning run (Masi replacing Salkeld at second) to third base or even home. This meant that instead of advancing on the ball, the batter would shift his position in the box and delay his stroke as long as possible.

We may assume that his intention was apparent to the other side, which would endeavor to frustrate it. For Sain's purposes a moderately high pitch (somewhere between the letters and the waist over the outside corner) would seem to have been most advantageous. Evidently Feller gave him the sort of ball he wanted, for Sain swung at the first pitch, lining it to Judnich.

Now I think if I had been catching Feller (which God forbid!) I should have called for a pitch inside and just above the knees. This would have made it more difficult for Sain to maneuver in the batter's box, and thus upset the timing of the delayed swing, so that the ball might be struck too late and on the downward curve of the bat, and perhaps closer to the handle. Possibly Hegan did call for such a pitch, and Feller, whose control at this point seems to have been a bit wobbly, was unable to deliver it. If this was the case, the hypothesis advanced in your editorial was altogether sound.

With Sain out, a double play was no longer necessary; but a ground ball was still desirable, since it would permit the final out to be made at any base. But Holmes, a lefthand batter, was attempting to pull the ball into left field. In this case we know that Feller made the mistake of giving the batter a moderately high outside pitch, which Holmes lined down the third base line to bring in the winning run.

Washington Calling

Dewey And His Party

WATCHING the Dewey team at work in this campaign, the observer is bound to wonder why all this painstaking effort from one end of the country to the other. From the beginning the odds have been so heavily in favor of the Republican candidate that a few speeches broadcast Nation-wide from a few key cities would have sufficed.

Then the man who fully expects to be the next President of the United States would be free to concentrate with his team of able experts on the tremendous problems that will confront him immediately on taking office. He is so obviously the confident champion in this contest and with an almost too easy victory before him.

On January 20 he will be faced with the issue of rearming western Europe. He will shortly have to go to Congress for a new appropriation for European recovery in which he firmly believes. He will presumably begin the pushing and prodding toward a western European union.

There will be the large-size task of reorganizing the Government—the "biggest and fanciest housecleaning" that Dewey has promised audience after audience. The tax revision he has urged will in itself be a Herculean job with the prospect that more tax revenue must somewhere be found.

So why not curtail this superfluous, exhausting junketing from State to State? One obvious answer, of course, is the desire to control the Senate which necessitates going into those States such as Minnesota where there are senatorial candidates in trouble.

BUT AN UNDERLYING and even weightier answer is in the Dewey concept of the campaign. That concept explains the appeal to unity, the warm, vague generalizations that embrace a united American people going down the road together.

Briefly this is the Dewey concept. In the 16 years since 1932 the Republican Party has been stigmatized as the party of reaction. A whole generation has grown up hearing the party identified repeatedly with the Hoover depression.

As Dewey is at pains to point out, the public opinion polls showed before the [illegible] convention at Philadelphia [illegible] could defeat two Republicans [illegible] were President Truman. The [illegible] Both Dewey and Harold Stassen [illegible] are younger men who have not been identified with the GOP of the past.

Dewey's task, as he conceives it, is to convince the rank and file voter that the GOP is a forward-looking party and that there are good Republicans as well as good Democrats. In short, he believes his mission is scarcely less than to restore the two-party system in the traditional American sense. It is to convince the independent voter that he, or she, has nothing to lose and something to gain by a Republican Administration.

In other words, he means to reshape the Republican Party. As a clear indication of this, his closest congressional cooperators in the campaign are such men as Senators Baldwin, Lodge and Ives and Representatives Herter and Dirksen. They are the men who have helped to give the party a new leadership in foreign policy and they have not been reactionary on domestic policy.

THIS WOULD seem to mean, then, another task for January 20 and after. And certainly the refashioning of the party will not be the easiest of the jobs to be undertaken even with a massive November victory as a lever.

The process will be painless if the Dewey team can make it so. But they have not hesitated to use force in the past and they can be expected to use it again, swiftly, adroitly and almost before the victim knows what is happening.

Some of the difficulties in the way of this kind of housecleaning are encountered as the campaign train moves across the country. At Monnett, Mo., Dewey told the rear platform crowd he hoped they would go on voting for Representative Dewey Short.

With his reelection this year Short will presumably be chairman of the House Armed Services Committee. That committee is likely to be vital to a Dewey program. Both before and after World War II, Short was by conviction or expediency a head-in-the-sand isolationist who opposed every move to strengthen America in a perilous world.

In his speeches Dewey cannot flout the Shorts, the Curley Brookses, the Harold Knutsons. They remember on the Dewey team what happened to Wendell Willkie when he flouted and ignored party organization. So the speeches are general and hopeful.

Presumably the trial of strength and skill will come after the new administration in the White House. The old liners are muttering in their beards, promising themselves that they will take care of this young man and what sounds suspiciously like his New Dealism when the time comes. That showdown, if and when it comes, should provide a political contest far more interesting than the current one.

Today and Tomorrow

The Diplomacy Of The Air Lift

BY THE air lift to Berlin the United States Air Force has something which was certainly not foreseen by the Russians, nor, it is fair to say, by the statesmen of the West. The principal effect of this remarkable and brilliant improvisation has been to postpone the necessity for a solution of the Berlin crisis. Without the air lift the choice would by this time have been between appeasement and war—the surrender of Berlin or an armed challenge to the ground blockade.

LIPPMANN

The air lift has enabled us to remain in Berlin and to feed the Germans in the western sectors without attacking, except by diplomacy, the Soviet blockade. As a result, the Russians have been confronted with the choice of accepting the air lift or of firing the first shots in a world war. Thus far they too have preferred diplomacy—as they understand diplomacy.

THE AIR lift has, therefore, succeeded in offsetting, sufficiently for the time being, the inherent strategic advantage which the Russians have because Berlin is deep inside their zone of military occupation. But the air lift is, nevertheless, only a means of postponing a showdown or a settlement. It is not, and it cannot be made, more than that. The air lift exerts no compulsion on the Russians to remove the ground blockade: it merely enables us to refuse to be coerced by the ground blockade.

The air lift is not an instrument of decision but an instrument which provides time during which decisions can be made.

TIME IS being bought by the air lift which, given the circumstances, has had to be bought. The circumstances could and, the view of some of us, should not have been what they are: was unwise to force the German issue this year. But it was forced. After that, time had to be bought. For no one was ready to deal with the German issue which had been forced.

THE MAIN reasons for a postponement of a showdown and of negotiations for a settlement are our own election, the uncertain political condition of France, the primitive state of the Western Union and its defenses, and the lack of an agreed conception here and among our partners as to what is to be the principle and the shape of a German peace treaty.

Though it would have been wiser to temporize with the German question until next spring, until the new Administration was organized, until the Marshall Plan was taking effect, until the plans for Western Union were adopted and in effect, rasher counsel prevailed and it was not done. The air lift has however been improvised. It has done what could have been done more cheaply and less dangerously by diplomacy—that is to say, it has enabled the statesmen to temporize with the German question.

IT IS evident that in one way or another the need to temporize will be there for some months to come. Even if a compromise is arranged in Paris which deals with the blockade, this currency, and a meeting of the Council of Foreign Ministers, such a compromise now can be only an arrangement to postpone the serious business.

For the outgoing Truman Administration cannot negotiate a German peace treaty, not even with the utmost in collaboration under the bipartisan understnding. General negotiations for a German peace treaty cannot be undertaken until the Dewey Administration is firmly installed. For the negotiation of a peace treaty will require new decisions of high policy which are not now covered by the bipartisan understanding. There is some reason to think that this determining fact is understood abroad, not only in London and in Paris but also in Moscow and in Warsaw.

DOES THIS mean that if the mediator nations in Paris are able to arrange a compromise, nothing useful can be done at the Council of Foreign Ministers? Not necessarily. During the interregnum this winter the Council might accomplish much if it limits severely what it attempts to do.

It would be well, it seems to me, for the Council to postpone discussions of the German peace treaty and to discuss instead the protocol of a new armistice agreement. Such a new agreement would deal with zones of military occupation and the relaxation, if not the liquidation, of military government. A new agreement of this sort is needed for the period, inevitably a fairly long one, during which the peace treaty is being negotiated and before it could be put into effect.

Justice Dept. Sues Oregon Medical Units

The Justice Department yesterday announced an anti-trust action against the Oregon State Medical Society and others.

It charges they have conspired to monopolize prepaid medical care in Oregon and nearby areas.

Attorney General Tom Clark said a civil suit was filed in the U. S. District Court at Portland, Oreg., named as defendants were the medical society, the Oregon Physicians' Service, eight county medical societies and eight individual doctors.

Clark said the suit accuses them of conspiring "to deprive the public of the opportunity to acquire prepaid medical care insurance" from others than themselves.

The complaint, Clark said, also alleges doctors have been prevented from practicing medicine in Oregon "on terms of their own choosing and some of them have been denied the use of hospital facilities in Oregon."

Oregon Medical Society Will Fight U. S. Suit

Portland, Oreg., Oct. 18 (AP).—The Oregon State Medical Society "absolutely" will fight the anti-trust suit filed against the society by the United States Government in District Court here today.

Dr. Leslie Kent, Eugene, president of the society, called the action "a bolt out of the blue." "We felt," she said, "that we were meeting a crying need for good prepaid medical service."

The Oregon Physicians Service, a nonprofit corporation sponsored by the Medical Society, provides medical, surgical and hospital insurance for $3.50 a month. Some 105,000 Oregonians subscribed to the insurance and 90 per cent of Oregon's physicians are affiliated with the plan. Subscribers choose their own doctors. The charge for family coverage ranges from $5.50 to $8.10.

The Oregon Physicians Service is approved by the American Medical Association's council on medical service.

Takoma Park Critics Hear From Mayor

Mayor John C. Post of Takoma Park shot back at the Takoma Park Community League last night for statements critical of his administration.

"The league could be so much help to the city if it would devote its time to constructive suggestions," the mayor said at a meeting of the Takoma Park City Council.

The mayor referred to communications sent to the council by the League requesting the council to adhere strictly to the city budget and accusing the council's executive committee of suppressing news of its meetings.

He told the league that any city budget may vary somewhat and that he was unaware of any news being held from the press unless a special committee was working on uncompleted plans.

Regarding the league's opposition to the council's approval of a kindergarten in the municipal building, at 8 Columbia ave., Mayor Post replied: "I can't understand what has caused the furor for the kindergarten when the children have no other place to go."

Building Inspector Roy P. Frye recommended condemnation of Bonifant Flats on Lake ave. because of lack of septic tanks and running water. The proceedings will be studied by Corporation Counsel J. Douglas Bradshaw. About 50 persons occupy the building.

The council appointed H. D. Pudleiner, as a fireman at an annual starting salary of $2280. Curtis Knight was appointed a permanent policeman to fill the place of Corpl. John Whiddon, resigned.

School League Cites Results Of Campaign

More homework is being assigned Montgomery County school children as a result of last summer's campaign by the Parents League for Curriculum Improvement.

Not only is there more home study, according to John H. Hiser, president of the parents' group, but pupils are receiving more textbooks and there is a "better organized school program."

The group was formed last summer to campaign for greater emphasis on "educational fundamentals" and fewer "frills."

Hiser said chapters of the league are being set up in Silver Spring, Rockville and Kensington and that the league will be a permanent organization.

A meeting of the organization will be held in about 10 days, Parke said, at which time a constitution and by-laws will be adopted.

The Federal Communications Commission has called a one-day hearing so the men behind the "something for nothing" shows can tell why they think their programs are not lotteries.

The FCC believes many of them are. It has proposed a set of rules, which, if put into effect, would ban a large number from the air. those for and against the money

The hearing is designed to let shows air their arguments publicly.

Postlude

Kurka Work Played Here By Weiner

By Paul Hume

Stanley Weiner and Shura Dvorine collaborated in a sonata recital last night in the Phillips Gallery.

Familiar sonatas of Beethoven (the "Kreutzer") and Grieg (C minor) surrounded a new work by Robert Kurka. Young Weiner, 1946 winner of the Chamber Music Guild auditions in Washington, and former concertmaster of the New York City Symphony under Leonard Bernstein, plays with real authority.

He knows what music is about, and what is good and important in playing it. His sense of style is excellent; his taste refined. Thus phrasing, and the whole pattern of the Kreutzer sonata was in the vein. It is a pity the violinist allows rather consistently faulty intonation to mar his work. It is the one constant drawback to real achievement in his playing.

Robert Kurka is a young Chicagoan, now teaching in New York City. It is amazing how much musical talent in this country started in Chicago, and something of a pity that so much of it has left that once great center of musical art. His sonata is a bit obvious in its continuing avoidance of consonance, but a rewarding study in rhythmic excitement. Rather reminiscent of Prokofieff in the shape of the melodies, it is properly idiomatic as a violin-piano sonata. Later writing may lend a larger measure of ingratiating sound to Kurka's style.

Weiner played the new work with assurance and gave it a worthy hearing. That he could not win it popular support is not his failure. The evening closed with the Grieg sonata in C minor. Throughout the concert Shura Dvorine's pianism was superb. His sense of the true size of the Beethoven sonata was enormously satisfying, and his technique sure and brilliant.

Contempt Case Stay Given ITU

Chicago, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The United States Court of Appeals at Chicago agreed tonight to grant the AFL International Typographical Union a stay of execution of a contempt of court citation, pending an appeal.

Earlier, at South Bend, Ind., Federal Judge Luther Swygert, who found the union guilty of contempt, refused to grant a stay. He ordered the union to cease unfair labor practices and report its compliance by October 26.

Trade Cooperation

By Sumner Welles

The Theory And The Practice

OUR TARDY but eventual realization that economic insecurity breeds the kind of political and social unrest that causes war was a factor in securing for 14 years congressional indorsement of the Trade Agreements Act. It was the reason for the adoption of the European Recovery Program.

The more enlightened spokesmen for both Democrats and Republicans admit that economic nationalism threatens the survival of Western democracy. They know, for example, that the Versailles Treaty provisions which destroyed the old Hapsburg empire without salvaging the economic union of central and eastern Europe were as much responsible for World War II as was the absence of any effective policy toward Germany.

As has so often been the case in the past, our chief difficulty seems to be our inability to translate into action the lessons taught by experience.

The Trade Agreements Act reversed the trend to economic nationalism. It stimulated the flow of goods across national boundaries. The 42 agreements negotiated have harmed no legitimate American interest. Yet judging by the action of the Congress last summer, should the next Congress extend the act it will impose restrictions specifically designed to shut out imports.

IF WESTERN Europe is now notified that it is to expect curtailed, rather than increased, trade in the greatest world market, how can the European Recovery Program succeed in its basic objectives? How can the American taxpayers anticipate any return upon the immense investment they will have made to promote economic security?

We have officially announced our belief that a western European union is essential to insure the economic prosperity of a region vital to our safety. But there is not the slightest sign that we have made the creation of such a union a genuine priority in our policy.

France and the Low Countries urge that a start be made. Count Sforza reveals Italy's plan for using the European Recovery Program as a force to speed union. Yet the United States acquiesces in Britain's insistence upon blocking all progress because of the short-sighted fears of one or two Dominions that a British orientation toward Europe would be at their expense rather than for their ultimate benefit, and because Mr. Bevin seems to think that all western Europe needs is compensation agreements and old-fashioned military alliances.

Another refusal of American policy-makers to implement their recognition of the danger of economic insecurity among peoples whose support we require was sharply underscored by former Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy's recent plea for a Marshall Plan for the Americas.

MR. KENNEDY calls for a program which would resume many of those constructive forms of economic and financial cooperation with the other American republics that were carried on during the Roosevelt Administration.

No recent aspect of American foreign policy is more difficult to understand than our failure in this critical contest with the Soviet Union to recognize the importance to us of that inter-American solidarity which we found so invaluable a safeguard during the second world war.

Not only was the program of economic and financial cooperation, which was one of the pillars of the good-neighbor policy, scrapped at the very moment when the Latin-American republics were suffering acutely from the economic strains of the post-war period, but our neighbors were told that all they need hope for were the indirect benefits of the European Recovery Program's offshore purchases.

INSTEAD of requesting their cooperation so that the planning of the Economic Cooperation Administrator might take into account the immediate and the long-term interests of the entire hemisphere, we kept the other American republics at arm's length. Up to two months ago less than 2 per cent of the funds used for Marshall Plan procurement had gone to Latin America. The dollars spent for offshore purchases have consequently done little to relieve the economic distress afflicting so many of the other American republics. The result has been growing political and social unrest throughout most of the hemisphere.

Should a bipartisan foreign policy be agreed upon that would include the hemispheric program, give categorical assurance that the Trade Agreements Act will continue unchanged, and facilitate and stimulate western European union, we would have far greater reason for confidence in the years that lie ahead.

100 European Refugees Set To Till Md. Soil

More than 100 European refugees, farmers and their families torn from the land during the war, soon will be tilling nearby Maryland soil if plans by farmers there work out.

Requests for 15 refugee families have already been filed by Montgomery County farmers, according to Gilbert Brown, head of the employment security office in the county.

In Prince Georges County, farmers have filled out applications for "12 to 15 families," Mrs. Marguerite R. Miller, of the employment security office, reported.

Two Fairfax County committees are presently studying placement of DP's there, but no applications have been made as yet by farmers, according to County Agent Joseph E. Beard.

Woodward Net Drops; Blamed On Markdowns

By S. Oliver Goodman

Net income of Woodward & Lothrop totaled $757,050 in the fiscal year ended July 31, 1948, equal to $2.51 a common share, President Andrew Parker reported at the annual stockholders' meeting yesterday.

Andrew Parker

This compared with net of $984,357, or $3.38 a share in the previous fiscal year, he added.

Sales of the Washington department store totaled $38,891,139, a dip of $23,940 from the previous 12 months.

Parker attributed the drop in earnings to heavy markdowns starting in the fall of 1947 and continuing through the spring of 1948. "We can now report our stocks clean and in proper balance," he told shareholders.

"We are quite confident," he added, "that we shall be able, barring a general business recession, to report a marked increase in profit next year. Figures made available to us showed that the profits of the typical department store declined during the spring of 1948. On the other hand, our experience showed during this same season as compared with the previous spring an increase in final net profits of approximately $200,000."

Other highlights of Parker's report:

Inventory of merchandise at cost as of July 31, 1948, was $5,651,719, against $6,237,068 on the same date last year.

Ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 2.11 to 1 against 2.14 to 1 last year.

Ground will probably be broken early next year on a new branch store as Western and Wisconsin aves.

All directors were reelected as follows: J. W. Anderson, Clarence Dodge, W. W. Everett, John T. Koehler, A. Lothrop Luttrell, Andrew Parker, B. W. Parker, P. M. Talbott, Charles H. Tompkins, John Tyssowski and Lloyd B. Wilson.

Chosen to preside at the stockholders meeting was John Tyssowski, chairman of the board, who last July succeeded Brainard W. Parker.

NEWCOMER: Common stock of Virginia Electric & Power Co. was admitted to unlisted trading privileges yesterday on the Washington Stock Exchange. Opening price was 15¾ and it closed at 15¾. Sixty shares were transacted. Closing bid price was 15¼, asked 15½.

Proceeds of $240,300 will be used by Southern Oxygen for purchase and construction of additional manufacturing and transportation facilities and more working capital. For the first six months of 1948, Southern Oxygen reported net earnings of $66,832, equal to $2.78 a common share.

$37,500,000 Md. Bridge Bonds Sold

The $37,500,000 issue of bonds which Maryland is offering to finance a bridge across Chesapeake Bay was "heavily oversubscribed" yesterday.

Alex Brown & Sons, of Baltimore, who headed an underwriting group of 84 members, reported all were sold by 2 p. m. Heavy buyers were banks, insurance firms and trust funds. Bid price on the long term 3.20 per cent issue, originally offered at 103.40, rose to 104.40.

The bridge is a long-time dream of the Free State and State officials hope construction can get under way by December. The span will connect Kent Island, on the Eastern Shore, with Sandy Point, just above Annapolis, and is expected to be completed on or before July 1, 1951.

Offering consisted of $18,500,000 in 2½, 2¾ and 3 per cent serial bonds, due October 1, 1952-1967 inclusive; also $19,000,000 of 3.20 per cent term bonds due October 1, 1972.

The bonds will be payable out of revenues from the bridge. Under the act authorizing their issuance, the bonds and interest paid thereon are exempt from Federal income taxes and from all Maryland taxes.

With the construction of the Chesapeake Bridge plus completion of the Delaware Memorial Bridge, traffic from New York and other northern points will be able to flow uninterrupted by ferries to Baltimore and Washington. Also, the two bridges will provide a modern highway to southern points which will bypass all large cities between New York and Richmond or Norfolk.

Rise in Prices Leveling Off, Bankers Told

The rising price trend appears to be leveling off, Stephen M. Foster told more than 250 Washington bankers at a meeting last night in the Mayflower.

Foster, economic adviser of the New York Life Insurance Co., declared that in his opinion "productivity and wage rates are probably more important than monetary factors" in forces contributing to inflation.

He concluded that, from this point of view, it was encouraging to note that the increase in the wage rate in the past 12 months has been only 8.8 per cent, whereas for 1947 it was 11.3 per cent and for 1946 it was 15.5 per cent. These diminishing rates, he said, offer the suggestion that the upward movement of the wage rate as an inflationary factor may be losing its force.

Frank M. Totten, vice president of Chase National Bank, gave an inspirational address. Robert H. Lacey, president of the District of Columbia Bankers Association, presided and presented an engrossed scroll to Richard A. Norris, past president of the association. Emblems of office were presented to chairmen of the association's three sections.

Attorneys Upheld For Refusing SEC Data on Client

By The Associated Press

Federal Judge James W. Morris decided yesterday that two Cleveland attorneys need not testify at Securities and Exchange Commission hearings on collapse of a proposed $10,000,000 Kaiser-Frazer stock offering last February.

Morris ruled it would be a violation of attorney-client privileges for Marvin C. Harrison and Allan Hull to reveal conversations with Cyrus S. Eaton, principal stockholder of Otis & Co., one of the underwriters of the issue.

The SEC has charged Otis and Co. with violations of the Securities Act in connection with the collapse of the offering of 900,000 shares of K-F common stock.

Both Harrison and Hull—claiming attorney-client privilege—earlier had refused to disclose at SEC hearing the nature of their relationship with Eaton during the period of the stock issue.

Men's Suit Prices Cut By Two More Makers

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Two men's clothing manufacturers have announced price reductions on suits for next spring and summer.

Trimount Clothing Co. said its Clipper Craft suits would be $2.50 lower at retail and $1.65 at wholesale. This will return the line of all worsted and worsted gabardine suits to $45 retail, a company spokesman said. The firm's other lines of suits will remain at present prices.

Max Udell & Sons, Inc., announced decreases of 15 to 40 cents on some of its tropical and worsted suits, with the remainder of that firm's line held at present prices.

Retail Grocery Sales Reported in Decline

The Commerce Department estimated yesterday that retail grocery sales in August dropped 9 per cent from July and 3 per cent from August, 1947.

The drop under August, 1947, was the first year-to-year decline since September, 1945—the month that Japan fell.

Sales in August were listed at $3,013,000,000. Chain store sales, off 10 per cent from July but 2 per cent above August, 1947, accounted for 31 per cent of the total.

Appeals Court Reverses Rink Injury Verdict

Hitting spectators over the head isn't necessarily an integral part of an ice-hockey match, the United States Court of Appeals declared yesterday.

Using this reasoning, the court reversed a District Court jury awarding $2000 for injuries which Mrs. Genevieve Lee Cashdan, of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., suffered at a Washington Lions hockey game in the Uline Arena. It also voided a $1500 award to her husband.

The court found that one of the Uline players raised his stick and tried to strike a member of the other team, but found no evidence of any motive. It was definite, however, as the court said, that the "culprit" missed his opponent and struck Mrs. Cashdan in what was a "rough game."

The trial judge told the jury that the player was an agent of the defendant, M. J. Uline Co., Inc., and that the company was necessarily liable for his acts. The Court of Appeals said the judge's instruction was wrong.

Uline was represented by Attorneys John H. Burnett, Albert F. Adams and Chapin P. Bauman.

Greece Starts Up Stalled Vitsi Drive

Athens, Greece, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—The government today claimed its first success in the stalled campaign against Communist guerillas in the Vitsi Mountains of north Greece.

A communique said picked commandos stormed and captured Mount Vitsi, which commands neighboring mountain positions as well as southern approaches to rebel-held territory.

Teamsters Beat Dickins Suit

Randolph Dickins, jr., 28, a former Navy lieutenant, lost in the United States Court of Appeals yesterday his $200,000 libel case growing out of the "Battle of the Statler."

The winning defendants are the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Warehousemen and Helpers, and Daniel J. Tobin, vice president.

The case arose in 1944 when Dickins, then an ambulatory patient here for battle fatigue, visited the Statler Hotel to go dancing. That same evening the teamsters union held a banquet there at which the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt was a speaker. The court found that Dickins and a friend became involved in a political argument with certain teamsters and a fight ensued.

Later newspapers published a story in which Dickins said he was attacked by the teamsters, and a Senate subcommittee began an inquiry.

Shortly thereafter an issue of the union's International Teamster had a story in which Dickins and his friends were accused, among other things, of using abusive language concerning the President.

Dickins sued, was unsuccessful in the trial court, and appealed.

The Appeals Court, in an opinion written by Judge Wilbur K. Miller, pointed out that when the author of a libel writes under the compulsion of a legal or moral duty or to protect his own right, he is immune from a libel suit unless he is actuated by malice. There was no decisive evidence of malice, the court declared.

Wright Plane Readied By British for Return

London, Oct. 18 (AP).—Wright brothers' biplane Kittyhawk, first power-driven airplane to accomplish flight, came down from the ceiling of Kensington Science Museum today for dismantling and shipment to the Smithsonian Institution in Washington.

The Kittyhawk has been on display here since 1928, when it was lent by the late Orville Wright for an initial period of five years.

Distillers Open Battle of Bottles

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

The battle of the bottle—an international war between domestic and foreign whiskymakers—opened with plenty of bombardment on both sides before the Government Alcohol Tax Unit yesterday.

The row started two years ago when the Scotch Whisky Association asked the unit to prohibit American whisky-makers from using the word Scotch on their labels. They are now permitted to make a 'Scottish-type" whisky.

One group of American distillers made up of Schenley, Publicker and a group of smaller companies, countered by asking that Scotch, Canadian and Irish whisky-makers be forced to make and label their whiskies according to American standards.

Particularly did they demand that (1) labels on imported whiskies tell all the component parts of the whiskies in the bottle, and (2) that they must be all aged in new barrels, as required in this country.

Porter R. Chandler of the New York law firm of John W. Davis opened for the Scotch people. His group in 1946 asked for a hearing on its request that all whiskies labeled Scotch, Irish or Canadian be made in those countries.

He offered 536 exhibits—mainly bottles and advertising—to indicate that American whisky-makers were using the name Scotch on whisky made in this country. He pointed to labels colored in Scotch plaid, with Scotch characters, and thistles on them—which he alleged was for the purpose of "deceiving" the customer. He admitted that since importations of Scotch have increased since the war that such brands have about disappeared.

He particularly eemphasized one brand — made by the Pebble Springs Distilling Co. of Peoria—now being liquidated. A Latin motto on the label proclaimed "For King and Country," while another part termed it "Extra Highland" type.

"I don't know what King in Peoria they had in mind," he commented, "while the highlands of Peoria must be presumed to be extra to those of Scotland."

He also introduced a brand which he indicated was made in this country, but was labeled "Imported Scotch." In smaller letters the label said it has been "bottled in the Virgin Islands."

He offered pictures of other bottles—using pictures, he said, "because they are more easily portable than the bottles. I didn't say potable," he added.

Both Sides Use Consumer Polls

Both sides are using customer polls to establish their points. The Scotch whisky group has a poll by Elmo Roper, indicating that many consumers are confused by the labels. Their opponents have a poll to indicate that few customers know that Scotch whiskies are not as long aged as they once were.

"What would happen," Chandler asked, "if I was to notify you that we were building a distillery in Glasgow to make Kentucky Bourbon or Pennsylvania Rye?"

Chandler introduced several whisky-makers from Scotland, who told of the strict regulations of the British government over distilleries. To counter them, the Scottish - American Distillers of Peoria called Thomas Duncan, a former Scotch distiller, who testified that as good Scotch can be made in this country as can be made abroad.

Harry L. Lourie of the Scotch importers association told the tax unit that the regulations the domestic distillers want enforced on Scotch distillers were regulations the Americans had asked for themselves. He said the foreign distillers are governed by their own laws, which have always been accepted by this country.

To make Scotch manufacturers meet domestic rules in addition to their own would halt all importations, he said. "That would mean one branch of the Government doing one thing, and apother branch interested in restoring foreign trade, doing another."

Spokesmen for the large American distillers will be heard today.

Fort Davis Group Seeks Grade School

The first step in what members hope will result in a new grade school was taken last night by the Fort Davis Citizens' Association.

Meeting at Ryland Methodist Episcopal Church, Branch ave. and S st. se., the group instructed its education committee to consult neighboring citizens' associations regarding a suitable location and purchase of land for the projected school.

In other action, the organization voted to commend the Public Utilities Commission by letter "for its consistent effort toward fair regulation of utility rates," and police action in cleaning up undeveloped lots in the Fort Davis area. A sum of $10 was voted Hilltop Recreation Association for a children's Halloween party.

Chillum Heights Fills Officer Slate

The Chillum Heights Citizens Association last night filled vacancies in its officers' ranks.

W. A. Olsen of No. 1 Milmarson st. nw., was elected first vice president. He fills the vacancy of Olaf P. Solem, who became the association's new president following the death last June of Roy L. [illegible].

The 15 members, who met at Luther Rice Memorial Baptist Church, 5315 N. Capitol st., also elected Maynard W. King, 32 Jefferson st. ne., second vice president, replacing Andrew Stewart, who resigned, and F. C. Magruder, 5308 N. Captol st., treasurer to replace Allen Rogers, who moved out of the city.

Hyattsville Speeds Action On Meters

The Hyattsville Town Council last night geared itself for action on the controversial six parking meters placed in front of the Hyattsville County Service Building.

Last week the Prince Georges County commissioners charged the town had placed the meters illegally in front of the building. The commissioners maintained citizens should not be charged for parking there to conduct county business.

Town Mayor Ceasar Aeillo said last night that the problem is a matter of deciding whether the property in front of the building belongs to the county or the town. He ordered the town engineer, E. P. Waterman, to examine town records and report his findings to the town's attorney, Nicholas Orme.

Mayor Aeillo and Orme will appear before the commissioners Wednesday to seek a settlement of the question.

In other matters before the council last night, H. M. Prangley, president of the Queens Chapel Merchants Association, presented a petition asking the town and the State Road Commission to restore angle parking and to place parking meters in the Queens Chapel shopping center.

He said, if the petition were approved, then a suit against the parking meters filed against the town by Newton Properties, charging that the sidewalks in the shopping center are private property, would be withdrawn. The council approved the petition and forwarded it to the State Road Commission.

One on the Aisle—

Dazzling Night Awaits Capital

By Richard L. Coe

WEDNESDAY—tomorrow—is going to be quite a night.

Apart from the "Hamlet" openings at the Playhouse and the Little, big doings are planned for the Columbia, which, from the looks of things, will have about the best of the week's new bills—"Hamlet" excepted.

The big noise at the Columbia—the regular run begins the next morning—will be "The Secret Land." This is the Technicolor record of Admiral Byrd's South Pole, not, I hasten to remark, because this is the quadrennium of Gallup, Roper and the lesser pollsters, but because Navy Day is upcoming. "The Secret Land" will be released across the country for Navy Day, the twenty-seventh, and Washington will be beating the gun by a week with an honest Injun premiere, a term exhaustively overworked by the publicists, who forget that "premiere" means first time anywhere and dress it up by making it "world premiere."

Strictly speaking, "The Secret Land" has had several unusual previews, one of which I told you about several weeks ago. That was slated to be aboard and LST off the Naval Gun Factory in the Anacostia, but it rained that night and Admiral Glenn B. Davis probably felt rightly that his guests were too much the sissies to watch a flick in the rain—as though THAT hadn't been done before. Anyhoo, we all trooped indoors.

A second preview was held recently up in New London, Conn., where the plot was to hold it in a submerged sub. Just as the picture was about to start, a tube in the projection machine blew, but thinks to the ingenuity of a lesser rating the show went on as scheduled.

No such thing is likely to happen at the good old Columbia tomorrow night, where the last showing of "Luxury Liner" will go on at 5 o'clock, allowing dressing-up time for the reopening at 8, half hour before the posh performance starts.

And the Marx Brothers

To this have been bid Secretary of Defense Forrestal, Secretary of the Navy Sullivan, Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Air Brown, Admiral Denfeld, General Cates, the Marine Corps commandant, and Rear Admiral Richard H. Cruzen, commander of the expedition's task force.

For these gentlemen and the other invited gold braid who may have already seen the Byrd film, this department urges them to spruce up and go anyway. Because . . .

This is a double bill and the other half is "A Night at the Opera," that classic of all the comedies the Marx Brothers made at Metro. You might quibble about "Animal Crackers," "Duck Soup" or "The Cocoanuts" being better, but there's not been a comedy in years to match what the boys do to the opera world.

There'll be a show in front of the theater, too, a big trailer home for eight husky dogs, all lineal descendants of Dick Byrd's pack. This is under the supervision of Capt. Volney Pfifer.

So there you are—dogs, the fabulous South Pole, the mad Marxes and two copies of "Hamlet" all on the same night.

ANOTHER WEDNESDAY event will be the first American showing in the Playhouse Theater's art gallery of paintings by Brian Stonehouse, the British artist who survived a Gestapo death sentence and three years of Nazi captivity. The Stonehouse collection includes portraits of Uta Hagen, now heading the national company of "A Streetcar Named Desire," and Ethel Barrymore Colt, as well as a series of charcoal sketches he made as a prisoner at Dachau . . . Stonehouse is a fascinating chap—was parachuted into France in '42, posing as a French artist, a radio transmitter hidden in his kit . . . After some months the Vichy police caught up with him and turned him over to the Gestapo, just as was James Cagney in "13 rue Madeleine."

UP AT THE DUPONT that afternoon a new picture will take over the screen vacated by "Dreams that Money Can Buy." . . . This is "Naked Fury," also having to do with the trail-blazing that preceded the Allied invasion . . . It's the story of 400 French paratroopers and was filmed by the English and French governments, with dialogue in both languages . . . From Gotham reports (where the film was called "They Are Not Angels"), "Naked Fury" sounds like an intelligent action film . . . Here's hoping.

ISN'T ANYTHING happening today, you ask? . . . Sure, mike . . . The Pix is bringing back "Jenny L'Amour," the French thriller with Louis Jouvet and Suzy Delair . . . AND, those nice Loew people are screening "A Night at the Opera" for the reviewers . . . Just a mad whirl of pleasure, as Nelson B. Bell used to say, with a sob in his throat and a gleam in his eye.

Judge Harron to Speak To Women Voters

The Organized Women Voters of Arlington County will hear Judge Marion L. Harron of the United States Tax Court speak on "Have Women Justified the Suffrage?" at a luncheon meeting Wednesday at 12:30 p. m. in the Little Tea House, 1301 South Arlington Ridge rd.

At the same luncheon the proposed change in the Arlington School Board election date will be discussed by C. Harrison Mann, of the Committee for Nonpartisan Separation of the school board, which favors the measure, and Mrs. W. H. Gammon of the Citizens Committee for School Improvement, who opposes it.

Federation to Elect

The annual election and installation of officers of the Federation of Business Men's Associations will be held tonight at 6:30 in the Sapphire room of the Mayflower Hotel. The election will be preceded by a dinner for members and guests.

Nats Sign Kuhel for Another Season

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE 12-YEAR-OLD HONEYMOON of the Redskins and their Griffith Stadium customers is fraying a bit. That was no mating call you heard from the stands when the Redskins returned to the field for the second half against the Eagles on Sunday. The fans weren't cooing at their erstwhile heroes; they were booing.

POVICH

Disenchantment set in long before the Eagles posted the final 45-0 figures of the Redskins' worst defeat since the Bears hung that 73-0 thing on 'em eight years ago. Even Sammy Baugh, supposedly sancrosanct, got the once-over lightly when he returned to the bench after completing a long forward pass into the eager hands of Eagle Back Jack Myers.

Lex Thompson, owner of the Philadelphia team, who goes in for bobsledding, midget auto racing and heraldry when he isn't watching his club win football games, took away a new inspiration for a coat-of-arms. The prime motif will be Eagles rampant on a field of Redskins, a dead steal from Sunday's proceedings.

The Redskins not only lost a ball game—they got the stuffing kicked out of 'em. The Eagles exposed the Redskins' T formation as a weak T without stimulant to either the football or the customers.

In the Eagles, the customers saw a T-formation team coached by Greasy Neale that had zing in contrast to the Redskins' T. They also had Van Buren and Pritchard, of course, but that fact only emphasized the woeful lack of a Redskin running attack. No matter what the Redskins call it, their T formation is no more than Sammy Baugh throwing passes and when he can't find receivers they're dead skins.

Baugh is wonderful, but there are signs that even his admirers are wearying of him and his passes. The Redskins' customers are starved for the sight of a Redskin running game, and dependent on such as the Steelers' hard-smacking single-wing ball carriers and the Eagles' fancy hand-offs and pitch-outs for their thrills.

The Redskins haven't been an exciting ball team since George Marshall in his outburst of wisdom traded Steve Bagarus to Los Angeles. The customers demonstrated what they liked during the Bagarus era. When he was on the same team with Sammy Baugh, Bagarus and his fancy stepping eclipsed Baugh in the affections of Redskin fans.

ASIDE from BAUGH, the Redskins qualify for only one superlative. They're the most-coached team in the league. But for too many years they've been serving up too much pap and not enough bone-shaking ball carriers. In their single-wing days under Ray Flaherty they were more thrilling than this dull club that looks to Baugh to get 'em out of the ruck.

The emphasis on Baugh is so great in the Redskin strategy that the one ball carrier who could give the customers a belt, Bob Nussbaumer, was used for only three running plays on Sunday. In the Eagles' backfield, operating with the Eagles' T, Nussbaumer would be wonderful, but in the Redskins' T, with its lack of deception, the fellow is hamstrung and wasting his fragrance on a team that is pass crazy.

When Baugh couldn't get the Redskins out of their own territory Sunday, they were a gone gang with nothing else to throw at the Eagles except Jim Castiglia, who gives it a great try but is used chiefly to set up Baugh's pass plays. They were even trying to shake Castiglia loose as a pass receiver Sunday, and that comes under the heading of a desperation play.

TIME WAS when the Redskins' customers could get a belt of Baugh even when he wasn't throwing passes. Those were the single-wing days when they could watch Sammy unload one of his 70-yard quick kicks, but the Redskins' management killed off that fan thrill when they ordered up the T formation for Baugh. Sammy is now reduced to passing and in a 45-0 defeat that can be tiresome for the customers as well as himself.

That nice line they were supposed to have operating in front of Baugh must have been detoured between Los Angeles, where the Redskins trained, and Griffith Stadium. Sammy couldn't get worse protection if he applied to the U. N. Security Council In contrast to the well-protected slot from which Tommy Thompson of the Eagles operated, Baugh was running for his life most of the time.

I don't know whether the other clubs bother to scout the Redskins any more. It appears to be an unnecessary expense. The Redskins' script hasn't varied much in a half dozen years. Stop Baugh and you stop 'em.

Michigan Takes First In Rankings

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Michigan's unbeaten-untied Wolverines took over the No. 1 spot in college football ranks today in the weekly Associated Press poll of the Nation's sports writers.

Grabbing 74 of the 148 first-place ballots, the Michigan powerhouse displaced North Carolina, which led the pack last week. Despite a fourth straight victory over North Carolina State, North Carolina dropped to third place behind Michigan and Notre Dame.

The Irish, 44-13 winners over oft-beaten Nebraska, clung to second place on a splurge of runner-up votes. In the first-place balloting, Notre Dame had only 23 to 32 for North Carolina.

Points, figured on the basis of 10 for a first place, 9 for second and so on down the line to 1 for tenth place, gave Michigan 1336 to 1218 for Notre Dame and 1139 for North Carolina.

Michigan added to its reputation by smothering previously unbeaten Northwestern, 28-0, in what was supposed to have been a real test. The Wolverines may very well have won the Big Nine title by this fourth straight triumph of the season.

California drew strong support from the West Coast, polling 14 first place votes, in taking fourth place with 876 points. A 42-0 romp over Oregon State did the trick.

Army, one of the four unbeaten powers in the East, held tight to fifth place with 775 points, including one vote for first. The Cadets' first real "big game" is coming up Saturday when they meet unmarred Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y.

51 College Teams Unbeaten in Nation

New York, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Only 51 of the Nation's college football teams remain unbeaten and untied today.

Every section of the Nation had its quota of perfect record squads, some big, some little, but the Midwest with 18 and the East with 16 dominated the list.

There were the big powerhouses who were expected to be there like Michigan, Notre Dame, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Georgia Tech, Penn State, California, Army and Cornell, the only major unbeaten combines.

'Bo' Scores On Tatum and Quips the Point

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Bo Rowland, homespun little guy from Arkansas, got the chuckles at yesterday's luncheon at the Hotel Statler in honor of Washington's football coaches.

The willing victims of the little GW coach were Touchdown Club members and guests who devoured 15 minutes of Rowland.

HE FOLLOWED another Southern gridiron humorist, Jim Tatum, whose Maryland team GW, plays Saturday, but Tatum, for once, was left holding his Split-T when the Bo had finished.

"I saw Tatum's team play Duke Saturday," Rowland opened, "and it made me wince because my 15 little boys must play both Maryland and Duke. All that game I kept thinking that one of these many stars on both clubs ha sgot to get hurt."

"MAN, they were hitting hard out there and dern if a few of 'em didn't get hurt, but they didn't stay hurt long. They were back in there a few minutes later going full force again.

"I'll tell you one thing. Soon as Tatum makes up his mind which of his teams he's gonna

'Stonewall' Wins Easily

Throwing punches from everywhere, Stonewall Jackson fought and frolicked his way to a unanimous 10-round decision over Tim Dalton, of Chicago, last night at Turner's Arena.

Jackson weighed 138½, Dalton 136.

The local middleweight had Dalton completely bewildered with his unorthodox and often clumsy style.

Dalton, who came here with a good record, had no chance whatsoever to prove if he was a good fighter because of the clowning tactics of Jackson.

Jackson launched a good offensive in the ninth round and brought blood from both of Dalton's eyes.

A crowd of 820 paid $1817.26 to see the card.

In four-round preliminaries, with local talent comprising every bout, Puggy King, 123, knocked out Walter Ham in 2:35 of the second; Puggy Lyons, 144, decisioned Bobby Suma, 146, in four; Russell Seavers, 198, defeated Ben Harrison, 197, in four, and Angelo Marini outpointed King David, in four.

In the semiwindup, Johnny Holt, 165, Washington, stopped Julian Keane, 163, also of Washington, in the second round of a scheduled five.

Bill Meyer's Pittsburgh Pirates, who led with 1,517,490, and the Boston Braves with 1,455,438 were the only clubs showing gains over 1947.

The unofficial totals: Team.	1948.	1947.

No Spirit, Says Marshall

Edwards Reviews the Licking, Calls It Worst Redskin Game

By Bill Burnett
Post Reporter

Every Washingtonian who saw, heard and read about the Redskins' 45-0 flogging by the Philadelphia Eagles on Sunday was agreeing with what Head Coach Turk Edwards had to say yesterday.

Edwards put it very bluntly: "It was the worst game a Redskin team has ever played!"

Perhaps he included only regular season games. There was that 73-0 thing with the Bears in the National Football League championship game of 1940. He might have included ALL games—and he might have been right.

What are the Redskins going to do about it?

Exactly nothing.

Nothing, that is, to make headlines like firing 20 players and signing 20 new ones, fining every squad member $500, or scrapping the T-formation for the pre-Shaughnessy single wing.

"Things like this can happen to any club," said Owner George Marshall yesterday. "All we can do is see that we never get as far 'down' as we were for Sunday's game. The material is here; all we need is the spirit."

Marshall's spirits were good, anyway. He kissed off the Eagle debacle as briefly as possible and looked into the future with "Watch us go against the Green Bay Packers in Milwaukee this weekend!"

JUST THE SAME, you could almost see the waiver sign hanging over everybody's head at Redskin headquarters, from the coaching staff through the player roster and right down to Marshall's chauffeur . . . It was a meek group of players, with the day off, that showed up for their paychecks . . . Coaches were closeted with Marshall for more than an hour, then began a play-by-play scrutiny of the films of Washington's Birmingham exhibition with the Packers . . . The score of that one was 43-0, Packers, remember? . . . And just incidentally, Turk Edward was coaching that one from the roof, as he did Sunday's game at Griffith Stadium . . . The system, you might say, ha saccounted for an 88-point deficit.

THERE WAS NO significance, 'Skin sources insist, in the fact that Slingin' Sammy Baugh tossed a couple of passes from a double-wing formation Sunday . . . The unhappy saga of Harry Gilmer, Redskin passing hope who is still in Georgetown Hospital with his injured leg, reached some sort of climax last week when his wife and daughter returned to their home in Birmingham . . . Harry won't be able to play for at least a month . . . Halfback Eddie Saenz has three weeks to wait for his broken leg to heal and Center Don Corbitt is out for the year with an arm broken Sunday . . . Halfback Howie Livingston will finish the season on a knee which needs an operation badly.

HEARD AT SUNDAY'S GAME—"What are they saving Bob Nussbaumer for—the June prom?"

"What a chance for a bit of advertising! Instead of calling it a handkerchief, why don't they say 'That's a Kleenex on the play.'"

Tickets on Sale For Sunday's Pro Court Twin Bill

Tickets for the Touchdown Club's pro basketball doubleheader at Uline Arena Sunday night may be purchased at Farkas' Sporting Goods Store, the Fairway Sports Shop and Uline Arena.

The benefit twin bill pits the Washington Caps against the New York Knicks and the Baltimore Bullets against the Philadelphia Warriors.

Yanks Sign Crossetti

New York, Oct. 18 (AP). — The New York Yankees announced today Frank Crosetti, veteran infielder, had been signed as coach for the 1949 season.

Crosetti, 38 years old, was a player coach in 1947 and a reserve infielder in the past season.

7th Place Finish Not Joe's Fault, Griff Says

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

Joe Kuhel was given a vote of confidence and a new managerial contract for 1949 by President Clark Griffith of the Washington Club yesterday.

It was a slightly warmed-over announcement by the Nats' owner who had indicated since midway in the 1948 season that he was committed to Kuhel as manager.

Kuhel accepted another one-year contract, with a salary increase, despite the Nats' seventh place finish last season, in his freshman year at the helm. Griffith and Kuhel reached terms via long distance telephone to Kansas City, the manager's winter home.

"Our failure last season cannot be charged to Kuhel. I feel he will develop into a real good manager," said Griffith in a statement accompanying the announcement. "He took over a young, unseasoned ball club and early in the year had it playing heads-up ball, the kind the fans like."

At one point, late in the season when the Nats plunged into an 18-game losing streak, there were reports that Griffith had cooled toward Kuhel. Seven victories for the Nats in their last nine games helped reinstate him in the club owner's affection, however.

The Nats never were out of the second division after the first fortnight of the season and suffered from both a lack of power and the collapse of veteran Pitchers Early Wynn, Sid Hudson and Walter Masterson. Home attendance, however, was only slightly below 1947.

Nats Need Pitchers

Griffith declared that he was attempting to make trades that would bolster the club, and emphasized the need for pitching strength. "Our kind of a team could have been in the first division with better pitching," he said. "We have opportunities to make some trades and we will."

Griffith expressed high satisfaction with his move of buying Shortstop Sam Dente of the Browns despite that fellow's .269 batting average. "He'll hit as much as .280 for us and he'll make a better double play combination with Al Kozar. Clyde Vollmer, the fellow who led the International League in batting in runs, will give us some more punch in our outfield."

The Nats' owner refused to disclose yesterday which players he considered as trading material, but a month ago he declared: "We'll rebuild our club around Al Kozar, Eddie Yost, Ed Stewart and the pitchers." He declared he did not contemplate trading Mickey Vernon but said, "I will, if the right deal comes along."

N. C. Tackle Shot Accidentally

Chapel Hill, N. C., Oct. 18 (AP).—Ted Hazelwood, first string tackle for unbeaten and untied North Carolina's football team today accidentally shot himself in the thigh on a target practice range.

Doctors at the university infirmary said the big tackle will be confined for two weeks or more.

Hazelwood said he attempted to pull the pistol from his hip pocket on a target practice range when the gun fired.

LaMotta Wins, But Fans Boo

Brooklyn, Oct. 18 (AP).—Jake Lamotta, 165, New York, gained an unpopular 10 round split decision over Vern Lester, 153½, Brooklyn tonight in the feature bout at the Eastern parkway rink.

Lester, originally from San Francisco, forced the fight most of the way. The decision was roundly booed by the 3207 fans who paid to see the attraction.

Hunch Pays a Bunch at Laurel, Shivaree Wins at $16.80

Haven't Won Yet

Lions Meet Hershey at Uline Tonight

There'll be two new combinations in the Washington Lions' forward wall tonight as they come home to Uline Arena, trying for their first win of the hockey season against the Hershey Bears.

Coach Frank Beisler's new strategy will fit Larry Archambeault into the first line along with Frank and Dan Porteous. Formerly, Archambeault worked his wing position opposite Win Mousseau and Kenny Schultz.

The move was dictated by the Lions' need for some ginger in their attack. They've scored a total of four goals in their three losing contests to date, a situation which largely offset the fine goal tending turned in by Lou Crowdis and Paul Gauthier.

Dave McGuire will move up to fill in with Mousseau and Schultz. Spike Babey, George Hayes and Joe Cluman make up the third line.

Gavilan, Rossano Drill Here

Kid Gavilan, top flight welterweight contender, stepped through a brisk workout at the Liberty Athletic Club's gymnasium yesterday where he is working out for his 10-round boxing feature with Vinnie Rossano at Uline Arena Thursday night.

Rossano also reported and loosened up.

The Cuban Kid boxed two rounds each with Norval Gaddis and Emmett Harris.

Boys Club Will Hear Sports Figures Talk

Bob Wolfe, Dutch Bergman, Turk Edwards and several other sports notables will turn out Wednesday night at the Silver Spring Armory to send the new Silver Spring Boys' Club project off to a good start.

Along with them will be several boxing champions of the Military District of Washington and the CAP, who'll put on an eight-bout boxing show. Tickets sell for $1.20 and can be bought at the Armory or at Andy Farkas' Sport Shop.

Ruth Dimisa Heads Women Bowlers Again

Ruth Dimisa yesterday was re-elected president of the Washington Women's Duckpin Association for the third straight time.

The vice president's job went to Bertha Fichthorn of the Federal Ladies' League. Lorraine Gulli was reelecteed as secretary. Frances Johnson, captain of the Chevy Chase Ice Palace team in the Capital Ladies' Major League, was named assistant secretary, while the job of disbursing officer was given to Sophia Dampiar.

Charlotte Hall JVs Whip Western, 8-6

Charlotte Hall's JVs defeated Western's JVs yesterday, 8 to 6, at Western.

Walter Hardy ran 20 yards to score for Charlotte Hall in the first period. Western also scored in the first period on a 70-yard run by Len Weinstein. The game remained tied until the third period, when George Murray of Charlotte Hall tackled a Western backfielder behind the goal line for a safety.

Favored Laran Is Poor Fifth

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Laurel, Md., Oct. 18.—Those who played a hunch collected a bunch in today's featured race, the Halethorpe.

With the low temperature causing many fans to have the shivers it was only fitting a horse named Shivaree should win. Backers of the fleet 5-year-old had a $16.80 mutuel to keep them warm.

Away from the winner's circle since early last June, Shivaree carried the colors of Miss Margie Fisher of Maryland's Baltimore County to a length victory, with S. M. Pistor's Golden Bull second and 2½ lengths ahead of J. W. Brown's Flatbush.

E. A. Nicodemus' Laran, the favorite was fifth as longshots garnered all the money positions in the field of eight.

Shivaree was ridden by Jockey Ernest Wood, who came to the races via Chesapeake Bay's Herring Bay. The youngster, who lists his home as Annapolis, booted the son of Swashbuckler the 6 furlongs in 1:12 4/5 over a racing strip left muddy by last night's rain.

Shivaree, once a quitting sprinter, showed none of his one-time fault today. He raced head and head with Lanlast in the early stages, finally shook off the Vaughan Stable hope and then held on with rare courage.

Golden Bull made several bids to get to the leader but it was strictly no dice. Flatbush closed some ground to nip the tiring Lanlast for the show money.

A crowd of 7500 saw Shivaree's performance, his fourth victory in 13 tries this year which brought his season's earnings to $13,000.

Juvenile fillies competed in the College Park, the day's secondary feature, and this event also went the longshot way.

J. R. Steinman's Sabot, a dark brown filly, came through on the inside to win the test of a mile and a sixteenth which drew seven starters. Apprentice H. M. Guignon rode the winner the route in 1:48. Those who invested two bucks in Sabot's stock collected a $43.20 mutuel.

Merry Risk owned by Mrs. M. Owlsey, was second with Crispin Oglebay's Why The Rush third.

Uline Tries Midget Auto Racing Nov. 4

They told Tom Lane, director of Majestic Raceways, that it couldn't be done, so he's doing it.

In other words, the former big car racing driver and official will introduce big-time indoor midget automobile racing at Uline Arena on Thursday night, November 4.

Associated with Tom will be his business partner and another former big car competitor, Frank Lane. They will feature little car action at Uline's every Thursday night, with a few exceptions, into spring.

The Lane brothers approached Mike Uline, owner of the Arena, with their idea several weeks ago.

"It's a nice idea, fellows, but it can't be done," Uline declared.

"On the contrary," big Tom rejoined, "we've tested your arena for midget racing and it can be done. How about it?"

Uline, himself an admirer of fighting spirit, made his deal.

Lane will work in conjunction with the American Racing Drivers Club. The Uline track will be one-tenth of a mile.

There will be three qualifying heats of 10 laps each involving six machines; two 15-lap semi-finals involving six machines; a 20-lap consolation race with as many as 10 entries, and a 30-lap main event headlining 10 cars.

There will be a 30-minute show, and a good one, at intermission and plenty of frills intermingled with the thrills.

Whew! Yale Fans Hoist 300-Pound Herman Hickman

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 18 (AP).—Rabid Yale football fans carried Coach Herman Hickman on their shoulders onto the Old Campus for a celebration last night, and it was almost as much of a feat as Yale's surprise, 17-7, victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

Hickman weighs more than 300 pounds.

"This is the greatest thing I've ever experienced," said Hickman, who has been hoisted about by experts, having been a professional wrestler.

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—Army and Penn State, Eastern football powers in recent years, announced a two-year agreement today. The first game will be played at West Point, N. Y., on October 1, 1949, and the second there on October 7, 1950.

Breadon Goes Bond for Cooper On Check Charge

St. Louis, Oct. 18 (AP).—Sam Breadon, former owner of the St. Louis Cardinals, came to aid today of his one-time star pitcher, Mort Cooper, when he signed three bonds totaling $2000 so Cooper could gain his release on three bad check charges.

Cooper pleaded innocent before Judge Louis Comeford to charges of passing two $50 worthless checks at the Mark Twain Hotel here last August. His bond was fixed at $500 in each case.

Cooper also gave $1000 bond on a fugitive warrant from Ohio, where he is accused of giving a worthless check for $97.85 to the Squire Clothing Co. of Cincinnati. His hearing was set for October 28.

Justice Still Tops Scorers

Richmond, Va., Oct. 18 (AP).—Wake Forest's Bill Gregus threatened today to turn the Southern Conference point-making derby into a mad scramble.

Gregus, 185-pound sophomore halfback from Toledo, Ohio, had made 30 points—only six less than the current leader, Charlie (Choo-Choo) Justice, North Carolina's candidate for All-America halfback.

Also moving into the scoring limelight was last year's runner-up, Jack Cloud, William and Mary fullback. Cloud's points totaled 24.

Justice was held scoreless for the first time this season Saturday as the Tar Heels defeated North Carolina State, 14-0. Gregus tallied twice in Wake Forest'ss 41-15 decision over Duquesne. Cloud pushed over two touchdowns as William and Mary routed Virginia Tech, 30-0.

Duke's victory over Maryland resulted in North Carolina's Tar Heels taking over the Southern Conference leadership with two loop wins against no defeats.

President, Players Back Stuhldreher

Madison, Wis., Oct. 18 (AP).—Students who unfurled a 10-foot "Goodby Harry" banner at Saturday's Yale-Wisconsin football game were denounced today by the Badger team, student leaders and the university president.

The banner, aimed at head coach and athletic director Harry Stuhldreher, was displayed as an underdog Yale team was beating Wisconsin, 17-7—the Badgers' third loss in four starts this season.

Stuhldreher is in his thirteenth year at Wisconsin. His record is 44 games won, 68 lost and 6 tied.

Dr. E. B. Fred, president of the university, appeared before the team in its dressing room today and said:

"I deeply deplore the regrettable demonstration by some of our students against our football coach during the Yale football game Saturday.

"Upon behalf of the university, I apologize for the unsportsmanslike behavior of your fellow students."

Then Wally Dreyer, a senior halfback, rose and presented Stuhldreher with a billfold bearing the inscription, "We are behind you, Harry—1948 Squad."

In an editorial prepared for tomorrow's edition of the Daily Cardinal, campus newspaper, the editors declared:

"The University of Wisconsin lost a great deal more than a football game Saturday.

"The Yale visitors saw a student body which insisted upon displaying its dirty linen in public. They saw a Wisconsin football team so demoralized by cat-calling and a 'Goodby Harry' banner that the players were as ready to fight in the stands as on the field.

"And, finally, they saw the worst bit of sportsmanship that any student body has ever accorded its teams. . . ."

Lou Goes Out On a Limb

Chicago, Oct. 18 (AP).—Manager Lou Boudreau predicted today his World Champion Cleveland Indians will run one-two in the American League race for at least three seasons and maybe five.

Boudreau stole the show at the Herald-American Quarterback Club meeting with a review of the Tribe's successful baseball campaign in which he asserted:

There was no vote by the Indians naming Gene Bearden to pitch against the Boston Red Sox in their unprecedented playoff game. It was Boudreau's idea, first and last.

That Cleveland's much-discussed pick-off play won 18 or 20 games for Cleveland during the season and choked up the Braves in the World Series.

1½ Billion Dollar Road Block!

RAILROADS MUST OPERATE around the clock every day and night of the year.

Although they know this, leaders of 16 railroad unions are demanding a five-day, Monday through Friday, week for one million railroad employes.

They want 48 hours pay for 40 hours work—in itself a 20% wage increase.

They also demand a minimum of 12 hours pay for any work performed on Saturdays, and 16 hours pay for any work performed on Sundays and holidays.

On top of all this they want an additional increase of 25c an hour for every employe!

You'd Pay the Bill!

Summing up these demands, they mean that these union leaders seek to force the railroads to give one million employes an annual raise which would average $1500 per employe!

The total cost of this would be no less than 1½ billion dollars per year, which is more than twice the expected net income of the railroads this year.

You'd pay the bill, because if these increased costs are forced on the railroads, they must have still further rate and fare increases.

Demands Unreasonable

These employes have had substantial raises during and since the war. Their average weekly earnings are higher than the average weekly earnings of workers in manufacturing industries. They have more job security than the average worker in American industry. They also enjoy paid vacations, a retirement system and other advantages more generous than the average worker receives.

In contrast with the demands of these 16 unions, which add up to the equivalent of 48c an hour, the Conductors and Trainmen recently settled their wage request for an increase of 10c an hour.

Railroads Run for Everybody—Not Employes Alone

The railroad industry must serve not one but many groups—producers, businessmen, shippers, passengers and the general public—night and day, every day of the year. These unions are proceeding in utter disregard of this important difference between railroads and other industries. Industrial plants can be shut down over weekends and holidays, but freight, mail, express and passengers must continue to move. Everybody who enters railroad employment knows this.

Strike Threat

On September 18, 1948, the leaders of these 16 unions began taking a strike vote. But the threat of a strike will not alter the opposition of the railroads to such unreasonable demands!

Failure to See Scars Seals Annulment

New York, Oct. 18 (AP).—A Philadelphia society woman's marriage annulment was upheld today on the grounds that, since she has prominent scars on her body and her husband admitted he had not seen them, the marriage was never consumated.

The ruling was made by State Supreme Court Justice Ferdinand Pecora in the case of Mrs. Evelyn Biddle Dike Chandler de Baillet-latour. Pecora had granted her the annulument last June 10 from Alexandre de Baillet-Latour, who subsequently moved to reopen the case.

During the annulment trial, De Baillet-Latour said he had fully discharged his marital obligations, despite claims of his wife that he had not, but admitted he had never seen any scars on his wife's body.

Reopening the case, Justice Pecora said that he had participated with his personal physician in an examination of the society woman.

The judge said the examination disclosed "several long, deep, discolored scars," and added:

"Indeed they were and are of such a nature that only a person with eyesight so defective as to approach blindness could have failed to see them. Accepting defendant's testimony as given at the trial that he had not seen any scars whatever on plaintiff's body, the conclusion is irresistible that he never saw plaintiff's nude body and that he had never consumated his marriage with her."

Still Worth Something

RELIC OF THE TWENTIES—Parts dealer Henry L. Poole of 1553 L st. se., salutes from behind the wheel of this ancient relic, sold for $30 at yesterday's auction. He thinks its vintage is 1922. It was found abandoned on the street

A 1922—or thereabouts—Model T Ford with no top and practically no seating capacity left, took the antiquity prize at yesterday's police auction as 35 beat-up automobiles, a motor scooter, a motorcycle and three boats brought $1647.

Under direction of Inspector Robert C. Pearce, police property clerk, the department gladly got rid of its collection of unwanted vehicles which have been unclaimed for at least three months.

The vintage vehicle, apparently a touring car, went for $30, amid cries of "Step down on the starter, let's hear it run!" and other wisecracks from hecklers "aiding" Auctioneer Ralph A. Weschler.

Buyer was Henry L. Poole, auto parts dealer of 1353 L st. se., who said he received plenty of calls for model T parts.

Poole was also the biggest operator on the police lot at 1st and H sts. se., acquiring 16 jalopies of the 1920s and 1930s for bids totaling $865. All had tires "on one end or the other," as he said.

Prices ranged from $25 for a 1930 Pontiac bought by Poole to $140 for a 1936 V-8 Ford bid in by Henry Hitt of 6310 Marlboro pike, Prince Georges County, Md., who is in the auto business. T. B. Thompson, of RFD No. 1, McLean, Va., one of the few individuals buying, obtained a 1936 Oldsmobile for $130 and planned to fix it up and run it himself.

A home-made motor scooter, found lying in a street near Catholic University, went for $10, the motorcycle for $25. The boats, picked up from nearby waters by the Harbor Patrol, sold for $4, $5 and $6.

15 B-29s Stop At Bermuda in Ocean Crossing

Hamilton, Bermuda, Oct. 18 (U.P.).—Fifteen superfortress bombers landed here today as the second big postwar movement of United States bombers across the Atlantic got under way.

Eight B-29s of the 301st Medium Bomber Group landed at dawn en route to Scampton Airfield, England, where they will relieve planes of the Twenty-eighth Medium Bomber Group. Later in the day, seven homeward-bound planes of the Twenty-eighth arrived.

Lieut. Col. Frank W. Ellis, Covington, Ky., commander of the east-bound flight, said his planes were going to England for 90 days of temporary duty. He said the assignment was a "routine training mission."

The transatlantic movement, involving 48 superforts and 750 men, is scheduled for completion by Wednesday.

The Federal Diary

by Jerry Kluttz

No Major Changes To Be Recommended In Leave Benefits

LEAVE: No major change in annual and sick leave benefits is slated to be recommended by the advisory group to the Senate Civil Service Committee. If present plans are carried out, the advisers will urge continuance of the present system of 26 days annual and 15 days of sick leave. However, a number of minor recommendations will be made to the committee in January.

Among the proposals set for approval are: that postal employes be given the same amount of leave as all other Federal workers (they now get 15 days annual and 10 days sick); that temporary employes be reduced from 30 to 26 days annual, and that supervisors be required to punish employes who take sick leave when they aren't ill.

CIVIL SERVICE: James Mitchell was sworn in yesterday as the new GOP Civil Service Commissioner. All he had to say officially was this: "I'm glad to be here" . . . AFGE: William J. Houston is the new assistant to James Yaden, president of the AFL's American Federation of Government Employes. He formerly worked with the Washington State loyalty commission . . . FCC: At the Federal Communications Commission there is speculation that Ray C. Wakefield will be reappointed to the commission if the Republicans win the election. Wakefield, who was given the bounce by President Truman, is a close friend of Governor Warren, the GOP vice presidential nominee.

PROBLEM: When is a Federal worker cleared of disloyalty charges? That's a most appropriate question because some screwball is always sure to close his eyes to the factual record and base some statement on a groundless charge.

Several years ago, for example, a Congressman made some vague charges against Arthur E. Goldschmidt of the Interior Department. A special committee headed by Representative Kerr (D., N. C.) not only cleared him of the charges but it emphasized that the evidence showed him to be a "patriotic, loyal, hard-working American."

But now comes a report from Miami that the executive committee of the American Legion has called for the removal of an "Arthur F. Goldschmidt" from the Federal service. Again the charges are vague. Perhaps the Legion is referring to another person as the middle initial of the person in question is different. But if the Legion warmed over the old charge against the Interior official—that's unforgivable.

RRB: The Legion apparently will be asked to go on record for the ouster of eight top officials of the Railroad Retirement Board on a charge that they willfully and illegally discriminated against veterans in the agency. The Illinois State Legion supports the resolution which is aimed at the three RRB members and five other board officials.

However, veterans in the board claim that Patrick F. Murphy, the new RRB executive officer, has gone down to Miami in an attempt to talk the national convention out of passing the Illinois measure.

CAB: Officials of the Civil Aeronautics Board are hoping that President Truman won't take any more Western campaign trips. They are fearful he will order them to issue more certificates for an overseas airline. This is the story:

Several airlines had sought authority for an air route from Seattle and Portland to Honolulu. Both the CAB and the President concluded there wasn't enough business to support such a route.

Then the President made his first trip to the West. On his return he ordered the CAB to issue a certificate to the Northwest Airlines for the questionable route. A couple of months later he made another campaign trip to the West Coast. On his return he ordered the CAB to issue a certificate to Pan-American Airways to fly the Seattle-Portland to Honolulu route.

Under a recent Supreme Court ruling, the President has the final authority to determine overseas air routes. Otherwise, it's reported, there would have been a revolt among CAB members at following the President's orders. As it is, they must follow his orders.

The President's action, incidentally, will be expensive to the taxpayers. Under the law, the Post Office Department will be required to pay mail subsidies to both Northwest and Pan-American on an air route which the Government decided would be "uneconomical" only a few months ago.

JOBS: Civil Service has an exam open for substitute printing jobs such as camerman and platemaker to operate offset duplicating machines. The jobs pay from $2284 to $2974 to start . . . An exam also is open to fill the job of postmaster at Capitol Heights, Md. The job pays $3950 . . . An exam for student dietitians to fill openings in hospitals of the Veterans Administration also is open.

CAFETERIA: Workers in Government building cafeterias will seek another pay raise from the Government Services, Inc. and other operators. An increase of at least 10 per cent will be demanded. Cafeterias operated by the GSI were struck early this year when negotiations collapsed. The contracts expire on January 1 and any pay raise would become effective from that date. However, the union is required to give the operators a 60-day notice if new demands are to be made.

Parole Board Urges Use of Full-Time Psychiatrist

Reports Difficulty In Checking Cases Under Pressure of Present System

Appointment of a full-time staff psychiatrist for the Department of Corrections was recommended to the District Commissioners yesterday by the District Board of Parole.

"Under the present system, it is quite possible for a person suffering from a mental disorder to slip through and be released without adequate knowledge of his true condition, and we do not feel that this system provides the protection to which the public is entitled."

Detection Limited

The board pointed out that neither it, nor members of the corrections staff are "capable of detecting evidence of mental disorder in every case where it exists."

Gallinger Hospital, which furnishes psychiatrists for such examinations on request, the board reported, is "apparently so heavily overworked and understaffed at the present time that sometimes several months elapse before an examination can be made and a report submitted to the board."

Establishment of routine psychiatric examinations in all felony cases, and in cases of persons serving misdemeanor sentences who are eligible for parole was urged as a "regular function of the Department of Corrections" in the report.

Parole Work Increased

The board pointed out that changes in the parole law, making all prisoners serving sentences of more than 180 days (on misdemeanors) eligible for parole, has increased its work appreciably.

The board had only two applications for parole in this category during the 1947 fiscal year, while last year the number eligible for parole under this amendment increased to 179, of which 81 applied for parole.

The board reported it had fewer persons under supervision last year than in 1947—a decline from 1101 to 1033. This decrease, it was stated, was because a smaller percentage of paroles were granted and because fewer prisoners were released on "good time releases" last year than in 1947.

The board urged continued support for efforts of the Department of Corrections to establish a program of vocational training for prisoners as part of their general rehabilitation.

Budget Meeting Of Falls Church Council Put Off

A meeting of the Falls Church City Council scheduled last night to consider the city's 1948-49 budget was postponed at the last minute.

City Manager Roy F. Dunn said the session was put off because he had not completed his proposed budget. He said it would probably be presented to the council tonight.

After the council has studied the budget and made any changes, it will be advertised for 15 days if no taxe increases are called for, or 30 days if a tax jump is indicated. The council then will adopt the budget, following a public hearing.

Jury Indicts Landlord in Murder Case

Charged With Killing Tenant Following Effort to Evict Him

A 50-year-old landlord was indicted here yesterday for first-degree murder on charges of shooting a tenant whom he was unable to evict.

The murder defendant is Rudolph Miller of 1926 2d st. nw. The deceased is Rufus A. Armstrong, 27, of the same address. Armstrong died of shotgun wounds inflicted at his home September 9.

According to police, Miller had been having an argument with Armstrong over a period of months. Miller filed an eviction proceeding in the Landlord and Tenant Court, but was unsuccessful with it. Miller then charged Armstrong with threats. A hearing was held in the United States Attorney's office in July and Armstrong was warned to respect Miller's rights and property, police said.

30 Indictments

This was one of 30 indictments returned by the District grand jury in District Court.

The jury also charged a 47-year-old woman with stealing $1176 from four "patients" whom she offered to cure by non-medical methods.

This defendant is Mrs. Cora Brooks, of 129 E st. se. The alleged victims are Daisy Stroud, 1330 North Capitol st.; Elizabeth Davis, 2002 Rosedale st. ne; Frances P. Brown, 17 46th pl. ne, and Emma J. Reese, of 1913 Gale st. ne.

Police said that after her victims complained to them, Mrs. Brooks declared that she was able to keep out of court by "witchcraft."

Mrs. Brooks demanded up to $500 for her treatments, police said. She offered to cure high-blood pressure, chronic sore throats and business reverses, they declared.

Dollars in Brew

Her medicines included potions from "the old country," herbs from an "Indian reservation at New Orleans," sheep wool and a brew in which a vital ingredient was "nine silver dollars," it was declared.

The alleged thefts were made in 1947, but the case has been delayed because whenever, Mrs. Brooks was to appear for a hearing in Municipal Court, a doctor's certificate was produced declaring her ill.

A first-degree murder indictment was returned against Pierce Jones, jr., 25, of 211 K st. nw. James Johnson, 48, of 1522 8th st. nw., was slain July 24 by stabbing. Police said that Jones accused Johnson of giving information to the police about him.

Two men were charged with operating a lottery and possession of numbers slips. They are Albert Taylor, 38, of 1216 10 st. nw., and Henry E. Fish, 54, of 1007 K st. nw.

Remarriage After Divorce Polled Here

Nearly half of the Presbyterian ministers in the Washington area have united in marriage persons known to have been divorced, it was reported yesterday.

The report was made at a meeting of the Presbytery of Washington City at Westminster Presbyterian Church, 430 7th st. sw.

The study of remarriage practices was ordered by the Presbytery last May following the remarriage in Hollywood of Film Star Lana Turner and Dan Topping by a retired California Presbyterian minister.

The Rev. James F. Lundquist, pastor of Lewinsville, Va., church, said that 35 returns out of a possible 70 have been received. Thirty-two ministers said they had officiated at marriages of persons known to have been divorced, and three said they had not.

Twenty-six of those who gave an affirmative answer said they limited such marriage to persons who "from the Scriptural viewpoint" were the innocent party.

A period of one year from the date of granting the divorce decree was required before remarriage by 31 of the Presbyterian clergymen and one left the question unanswered. Ten said they would refuse to unite in marriage a person of another denomination if they knew that church would prohibit the marriage, and 14 said they would perform such a marriage.

The Presbytery unanimously elected James Sherier, Washington lawyer and active layman, moderator for 1949. The position is usually held by a clergyman.

Mr. Sherier is an elder and clerk of the session of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, and previously had held those positions at Fourth Presbyterian Church. He lives at 2525 King st., Alexandria, and has law offices in the Woodward Building. He also is president of the trustees of Presbytery.

Dr. Frederick E. Reissig, executive secretary of the Washington Federation of Churches, told the meeting that the World Council of Churches was a "daring and dangerous" thing which could have exploded on half a dozen issues.

Dr. Reissig, who was public relations officer for the World Council, said that the basic movement toward church unity was one in which both laymen and clergmen were participating.

Devotions were led by Ruling Elder Wilbur LaRoe, jr., former moderator of the Presbyterian Church in the United States of America.

Bradbury Heights Bus Hearing at 10 Today

An informal hearing on a proposal to re-route local bus service in Bradbury Heights will be held in Room 203 of the District Building today at 10 a. m. by the Public Utilities Commission.

The Washington, Marlboro & Annapolis Motor Lines, Inc., last January requested the change in service, and last month amended its original request.

Alexandria Teacher Pay Hike Voted

Action Would Raise Ceiling to $3700, With Low of $2400 For 1949-50 Term

The Alexandria School Board last night voted to raise teachers' maximum pay to $3700 for the 1949-50 session, providing a $325 increase. The action was taken as the board prepared its budget for fiscal 1949.

Superintendent T. C. Williams said the increase would mean an increased cost of $76,775 when figured over an entire school year. Of this amount, he said, $30,710, would be spent in the fiscal year starting January 1.

Unless the Alexandria City Council cuts the over-all school budget drastically, last night's action means that teachers with bachelors' degrees will start at $2400 a year, the present minimum, and work up to $3700 with annual raises of $100. They now receive annual raises of $75 up to a maximum of $3375.

Teachers with masters' degrees will receive $200 more than the new scale and teachers with doctorates, $400 additional all along the line.

The City Council can cut the board's budget but it cannot specify where the cuts must be made. Last year the council cut the school budget but the school board maintained pay raises which it had previously adopted.

Maximum pay in Alexandria with this raise will still be less than that in Arlington County, Montgomery County or the District, school officials pointed out. It will be more than that offered in Fairfax County, however, and equal to next year's figure in Prince Georges County.

The board last night also voted to retain the system of renting textbooks to students. Annual rental is $1.50 for elementary school students and $2 for high school students.

The board's alternative was to furnish free textbooks with the aid of a State subsidy and use the books prescribed by the State. Williams said that only 16 of the city's 275 teachers want to change to the free textbook system, explaining that teachers wished a wider selection of books than that afforded by the State list.

Williams said he felt that the committee which selects books for the State list "does not have time to make as critical a study as teachers in the schools and that the selections suffer accordingly."

Alexandria Health Board Maps Cleanup

The Alexandria Board of Health last night moved to improve conditions in the city health department, recently criticized by State health officials, with these actions:

1. It is agreed that the new health officer must have a master's degree in public health, or its equivalent, and experience in the field of public health.

2. It voted to ask the State health department to put Alexandria on its list of regular visits from State health officials in the northern Virginia district.

Acting City Health Officer Mary Carne, who is supervisor of nurses, told the board that city sanitarians now keep complaint cards and records of establishments they inspect. Lack of such records was criticized by State investigators.

Miss Carne was picked out for special commendation in the 73-page report, which criticized the administration of the department as well as health conditions in the city.

Mayor William T. Wilkins told the board that the council is unanimous in its desire that the city to as nearly as possibly conform to the suggestions of the survey report.

The Board of Health, which consists of two doctors, two city councilmen, the mayor, city manager and city attorney, is responsible for setting standards for the Health Department.

Meanwhile, City Manager Nicholas A. Colasanto said yesterday that he has received only one application for the position of health officer, vacated October 4 by Dr. W. Lewis Schafer just before publication of the report.

Colasanto has set October 29 as the deadline for applying.

Twice Bereaved in 4 Months

Young Widow Recalls Jockey's Efforts 'to Make the Weight'

Debts Also Stalked Rider Who Killed Himself Near Laurel

By John London
Post Reporter

There are no tears in the blue eyes of the beautiful young blonde as she softly reads aloud the suicide note from her jockey husband of 11 days.

"Well, I told you I loved you more than anything in the world—now maybe you'll believe me," reads the widow of Jockey Edward R. Hopkins, 20, who took his life Sunday.

She puffs on a cigarette, looks up from the pencilled note to explain they were married on October 6 and separated a week ago.

"He was just like a little boy," she recalls. "He seemed to need someone to care for him. And I guess I wanted companionship."

Slight, well-endowed Letitia is only 22. But she doesn't cry much any more. Her first husband, Jockey Benny Leggett, was killed in July when thrown from Alpine Boy, a 12-year-old gelding, at Cumberland.

She reads from the note again:

"Please get them to play 'It's Magic' when I'm going down."

Then the note gets jumbled and unprintable, the racetrack widow says. It asks that he be buried in his racing silks and boots, wills the rest of his racing tack to a friend named Mel. And it begs each of two pals to place a rose on his body when the last rites are done.

"Tish," as she's known around the tracks, folds the note, puts it away in her purse. She says she thinks she knows why Eddy did it, why he shot himself with a .22 caliber rifle near Laurel race track.

Troubled by Weight, Debt

"He went berserk trying to make the grade in weight," says 84-pound Tish as she sips a cold beer. "He was long and lanky and his normal weight was 140. Trying to get down to 110, 112, just made him sick."

Then there were debts, some $1500 he owed around the tracks. In his note he asked her to make them good, "if you get anything out of this" (his death). And he was worried about being drafted into the Army—yanked away from the bangtails.

"Eddie's been around the horses since he was a kid," she says. "He was an exercise boy at Pimlico when he was 13. He got his jockey's license last May. Rode 10 winners in a meeting at Charles Town, W. Va., soon after."

But $1500 in debts seemed like a king's ransom to a guy only riding a year and a half. And he was weighing 130 and he couldn't do any good that heavy, she says. So he borrowed a friend's car and he went on a four-day toot, to Maryland and West Virginia, with a buddy, Wiley Albritton, a 17-year-old groom.

Eddie borrowed a gun; said he was going hunting near Laurel race track. Wiley was with him and got scared when Eddie started laughing hysterically, and shooting up at trees wildly, she says.

Wiley ran off. He said he was about 40 feet away when he turned around, to see Eddie kneel, place the muzzle against his head and pull the trigger, while laughing wildly. He died on the way to the hospital.

"TISH" HOPKINS

Tish bites her full underlip, remembering how Eddie once had threatened to kill her if she didn't marry him. He'd tried to see her Sunday before the shooting, but she was afraid to let him into her aunt's house in Baltimore, she says.

Well, that's the story, as much of it as she knows right now, says Tish as she takes a last sip of her beer, puts out her cigarette. As she gets up to leave the tavern, she smiles wryly at the television screen: It's a rerun of Citation winning the $100,000 International Gold Cup race at Belmont, Sunday.

"Off Jockeys for Good"

"I'm off jockeys now for good," Tish says. "I think I'll switch to prize fighters."

Not that she'll be able to stay away from the tracks, not this girl who was raised in Martinsburg, W. Va., hard by Charles Town.

"Around the track, it's like a big family, everyone's your friend," she says. "But I'll never be a part of it again."

She says she'll pray that her kid, 20-month-old Bonnie Marie, will never see a race track as long as she lives.

Corning to Urge Setting Up Of Clinic for Slow Readers

A city-wide clinic for the diagnosis and treatment of District public school children with reading difficulties will be proposed to the Board of Education at its meeting Wednesday by Schools Superintendent Hobart M. Corning.

Under the plan the six remedial reading teachers who now circulate among the elementary schools will be assigned to the clinic where children will be referred by their classroom teachers.

Associate Superintendent of Schools Carl F. Hansen said that there never has been a complete survey of District school children with reading difficulties but that other cities have discovered that as many as 6 per cent of the children have trouble.

These are children with average intelligence or better who are below their grade level in reading.

Generally difficulties are psychological or physical resulting from faulty hearing, vision, muscular coordination or left-handedness.

Committee meetings of the Board of Education will begin at 2:35 p. m. at the Franklin Administration Building, 13th and K sts. nw., followed by the full board meeting at 4:30 p. m.

Another matter to be brought before the board is a report from Board Member Albert E. Steinem on whether the board has the right to order the Recreation Department to throw open school buildings for inter-racial recreation.

Restaurateur Held on Charge Of Evading $96,868 in Taxes

A 27-year-old District restaurateur who, the Government says, made $180,000 in four years here was held under $5,000 bond yesterday on a charge of evading payment of $96,868 in Federal taxes.

He is Sam Wong, also known as Foo Sam Wong and Frank Wong, of 1750 Q st. nw. He formerly was part owner of the China Clipper, the Dragon Restaurant and Duke's Restaurant here.

United States Commissioner Cyril S. Lawrence held Wong for a removal hearing November 3 on the request of defense counsel for more time to prepare the case. Wong was indicted on the tax charge in Baltimore earlier this month.

According to the indictment, between 1943 and 1946 inclusive, Wong claimed he made only $14,621 net profit, including a two-year loss of $7340. He filed returns claiming he owned only $4825, when actually he owned more than $100,000, the Government reported.

Wong is represented by Attorney Harry S. Ryan, jr.

School Facilities' Expansion Urged For Arlington

There is an "urgent" need to expand Arlington's school facilities, Dr. E. B. Norton, former Deputy U. S. Commissioner of Education, told the Stonewall Citiens Association at Stonewall Jackson School last night.

Norton, who now is executive secretary of the National Council of Chief State School Officers, made the statement in indorsing the Arlington School Board's request for a $4,750,000 bond issue to build more schools.

At 8 p. m. tonight, Norton will address the American Association of University Women at the Lyon Park Community House.

Md. Storekeeper Found Dead From Shotgun Wound

E. B. Sweeney, 63, retired Croom, Md., storekeeper and father-in-law of Vincent S. Free, Prince Georges County police officer, was found dead about 5:20 p. m. yesterday in his home with a shotgun wound in his head.

Sweeney was found by Billy Duley, operator of a store beneath which Sweeney lived in Croom. Upper Marlboro police said that the shotgun apparently was discharged inside Sweeney's mouth.

Besides his son-in-law, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Daisy Sweeney, and his daughter, Mrs. Mildred Free.

Day's Puzzle Of Robbery Sorted Out; 3 Men Held

Police Penetrate Maze in Tavern Stickup After 12 Hours' Work

A District robbery squad struggled 12 hours yesterday through a maze of conflicting reports before finally closing down on three suspects in a $75 tavern holdup.

Arrested were John E. Deadmon, 44, of 3710 9th st. nw., and Vincent W. Bateman, 25, and Lubbie Harris, 28, both of Baltimore.

All were charged with robbery and scheduled to appear today in Municipal Court.

Robbed at Gunpoint

The prolonged hunt started after Larry Kephart, manager, and Maynard Cameron, clerk, of the Little Tavern, 718 H st. ne., reported they had been held up at gunpoint and robbed of $75 by two men about 5 a. m.

Later in the day, Deadmon told them a story about three men picking him up at 9th st. and New York ave. nw., at 4:30 a. m. The men, said Deadmon, robbed him of $12 and then forced him to sit in the car while two of them held up the hamburger place.

Police held him for questioning, later charging him in connection with the Little Tavern holdup.

Seen in Parked Car

The arrest of Bateman and Harris occurred in the afternoon when they were seen in a parked car on Palmer Highway near Ardmore, Md. As Washington and Prince Georges County police approached the car, the two men fled into the woods, police said, but were caught quickly.

The men told police they had stolen the car in Baltimore Sunday night, then came to Washington, where they got drunk, and then loaned the car to three other men, who must have committed the holdup.

Harris was identified in a police line-up last night by Kephart and Cameron as the holdup man, police said. According to police, Deadmon formerly worked in the tavern. Police said Deadmon was declared to have told the others they could get $300 to $400 in the holdup, and reportedly furnished a .32-caliber pistol.

Bateman, driver of the car, and Deadmon waited outside while Harris went into the tavern, police said. A fourth man, said to have been with Harris, has not been identified.

His savings started shortly after he came to this country from Russia, Sandler testified.

Horn-Tooting Arrests

Eighteen motorists have been arrested for unnecessary auto horn tooting since the Police Department drive to quiet down motorists opened October 11.

Most of the offenders, arrested during the first seven days of the campaign, elected to forfeit $5 collateral, according to Capt. Lorraine Johnson of the Traffic Division. A few were let go with warnings, he said.

Object of the drive is to enforce a District law, which permits use of the auto horn only as a safety warning measure in emergencies, and not as a means of tooting the stalled motorist ahead into action.

Groesbeck Interment To Be Private

Bertram Groesbeck, 77, father of Rear Admiral Bertram Groesbeck, jr., USN, an assistant chief of the Navy Department's bureau of medicine and surgery, died Sunday at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, after a long illness.

Death was attributed to leukemia. He entered the Medical Center last August.

A native of Brooklyn, New York, he was born December 17, 1870. He was educated in Brooklyn schools and later attended Brown University in Providence, R. I. Mr. Groesbeck had been a residence of the District since about 1912. He lived at 1714 Connecticut ave. nw.

In 1893, Mr. Groesbeck married the former Miss Leonore Elliott of Birmingham, England. Following her death in 1942, he remarried in 1944.

Mr. Groesbeck started in Brooklyn as an accountant. For a while after he moved to Washington, he was an accountant for the Evening Star. Later, however, he maintained a business of his own, handling accounts for local organizations.

Mr. Groesbeck is survived by his wife, Mrs. Ruth Dunbar Groesbeck, of the Connecticut ave. nw. address; two daughters, Mrs. William Patrick Kelly of La Jolla, Calif., and Mrs. James H. Littlehales of 6 E. Irving st., Chevy Chase, Md.; a granddaughter and two grandsons.

Mrs. Heazelton first came here when her father took his seat in Congress in 1878. She was the widow of George Heazelton, New York and San Francisco businessman, who died in 1914. She had been previously married to the late Haughton Howe, New York and Washington newspaperman.

Butterworth of New Haven, Conn. Burial services will be Wednesday at 11 a. m. at the Rock Creek Park Cemetery.

Mrs. Amelia Gould Stoddard, Writer, Traveler, Dies at 84

Mrs. Amelia Gould Stoddard, 84, whose fiance had to wait a year to marry her back in 1894 while she took a trip to China in a square-rigged schooner, died here yesterday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John F. Tucker, 1723 34th st. nw. She had been confined to her bed since April.

Mrs. Stoddard

Mrs. Stoddard, "who always did about as she pleased," according to her daughter, made the voyage around Cape Horn to Shanghai aboard the schooner John Currier in the company of its captain, Reuben Lawrence, and his wife, after her engagement in 1893 to George Henry Stoddard.

Missionary's Daughter

Born in Alna, Me., the daughter of a Baptist "missionary" in that then wild area, Mrs. Stoddard attended Coburn Classical Institute, a female branch of Colby College at Waterville, Me. She was graduated from there in 1887 with what she told her family was "a smattering of the classics."

A little woman, 5 feet, 1 inch tall, "who never weighed over 101 pounds in her life," Mrs. Stoddard refused to become a teacher, as her family wished, and instead went to work for a newspaper at a salary of $2 a week.

She learned to type, then got a job as secretary to Gov. Edwin C. Burleigh, of Maine, through politicians she met while on the paper. She was the first woman employed in the Maine State House, her family said.

Moved to Boston

While working there, she met a Boston architect who was building an addition on the State House, and later went to Massachusetts as his secretary.

She became engaged to George H. Stoddard, a Massachusetts teacher, in 1893, then decided she "wanted to see the world" and embarked on the trip to China, returning in 1894 aboard a Pacific mail steamer with a trunk full of Chinese silks for her trousseau.

Her wedding dress, which she had made in China, was of white silk crepe, heavily embroidered with huge white chrysanthemums, and cut to fit her 18-inch waist.

"She wanted to be buried in it," her daughter said, but before she died promised it to her 20-year-old granddaughter, Faith Douglas Tucker, of the 34th st. address, for her granddaughter's own wedding.

For many years Mrs. Stoddard and her husband maintained a home in the 2200 block of I st. nw., as well as a summer residence at Idylwood, Va.

Mr. Stoddard, who worked for about 10 years after World War I as a druggist at the Dupont Circle Pharmacy, died in 1939 on his way to work at the Annapolis Pharmacy.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Stoddard is survived by seven grandchildren and six great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 11 a. m. at the Wise Co. funeral home, 2900 M st. nw., with burial in Oakwood Cemetery, Falls Church.

WASHINGTON'S fabulous hostess, Mrs. Perle Mesta (right), chats with the British Ambassador and Lady Franks at the American Newspaper Women's Club tea yesterday held in the clubhouse at 1604 20th st. nw. Sir Oliver and Lady Franks were guests of honor at the afternoon fete which drew dozens of busy feminine scribes as well as official society

British Envoy, Lady Franks Feted by Newspaper Women

By Genevieve Reynolds

DIPLOMATIC, official and residential Washington society joined with the petticoat members of the fourth estate to give a rousing welcome to the British Ambassador and Lady Franks yesterday. Occasion was the American Newspaper Women's Club tea honoring the popular envoy and his equally popular spouse.

The small attractive clubhouse at 1604 20th st. nw., was jammed from starting time at 5 p. m. to long past the official closing hour at 7. Among the first arrivals were the Irish Minister and Mrs. Nunan and Mrs. George (Perle) Mesta who is in town at the Mayflower for a couple of days before leaving for an undisclosed destination. She said that she expects to be back in the city after the November elections.

Mrs. Harold Burton, wife of the Associate Supreme Court Justice, was there in a chic off-the-face red velvet chapeau; Mrs. John Steelman, wife of the presidential adviser, wore a fetching blue and black plumed hat.

Mrs. Arthur Woods and Lady Monroe formed a conventional twosome around the punch bowl; as did Mrs. R. J. Wysor, whose husband is special assistant on the National Security Resources Board, and Mrs. Julian Gillespie. With Mrs. Gillespie was her sister, Mrs. Gillespi Kribs of Dallas, Tex.

Glimpsed in the throng were Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, wife of the Norwegian Ambassador, the New Zealand Minister and Lady Berendsen, Flying Officer C. George Mattusche and Mrs. Mattusche, the former Miss Anita Cajigas, Mrs. Cloyd Heck Marvin, to the club with Associate Member Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, widow of the Omaha Senator and publisher. Dr. Annemarie Langens, editor of the British licensed Telegraf of Berlin, was the only feminine member of the group.

Still other guests included Mrs. J. H. Cerecedo, Mrs. C. M. C. K. Saltzman, Mrs. Augustas Boas, Mrs. Leonie Cooper of Australia, Mrs. Clarence Norton Goodwin, who came with her son, Norton Goodwin; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morris; Miss Grace McGerr, club president, received with Sir Oliver and Lady Franks.

Creating interest were five German writers now visiting this country under the auspices of the four local newspapers. They came

Col. Andrus Tells of Nazi War Criminals

Members of the Woman's National Democratic Club were given inside glimpses of the high ranking Nazi war criminals by Col. Burton Andrus, U.S.A., security officer at the International Tribunal at Nuernberg. Occasion was the club's weekly luncheon yesterday at 1526 New Hampshire ave. nw.

He told the members that Goering arrived in prison with a suitcase full of dope . . . that he swallowed some 40 pills of one kind or another daily. "We cured Goering of the dope habit," he explained. "But the man would become panicky over a thunder and lightning storm."

Colonel Andrus told how Goering concealed on his person the fatal dose of poison with which he eventually committed suicide.

When asked about Ilsa Koch, the German woman who reputedly lined up human beings to see if their tattoed skins would make decorative lampshades, he said that irrefutable evidence had been introduced that such atrocities were perpetrated during the war.

Colonel Andrus said that Rudolph Hess feigned amnesia so often that he almost developed it in reality.

In order to preserve the dignity of the individual war criminals on trial, he said that he saw to it that they were shaved daily and that their clothes were pressed.

"Not once did our people throw jeering, rude remarks at the prisoners," he explained. "The trials were conducted with fairness and magnanimity."

Mrs. Paul Porter, club vice president, presided.

Democratic Council Hears Hildreth

Melvin D. Hildreth, D. C. Democratic National Committeeman, last night told members of the Democratic Women's National Council "never underestimate the importance of a single vote."

Speaking at the club's regular meeting held in the Washington Club he said that in 1880 the Democrats lost by only 12,464 votes in a total of nearly nine million . . . that in 1916 Hughes won Minnesota by less than 200 votes."

One of the most classic examples of the difference of a few votes was evidenced in Colorado in 1918. Five additional votes in each of the State's precincts would have returned John Shafroth to the Senate and given the Democrats control of the Senate, he said.

Mary Haworth's Mail

Wife Weeps Daily, Feels Blue, Because Her Husband Doesn't Satisfy Her Intense Hunger For Romantic Devoted Conjugal Companionship

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a very unhappy person and spend many hours each day weeping and feeling blue. I have a fine home, a daughter 5 years old and a husband who is a good provider.

My husband is one who works nearly all the time and seems to look upon his home as a place for eating and sleeping. Consequently, I am utterly lonely and grieved by a frustrated longing to enjoy the love, courtship and companionship I had expected of married life.

I had a very unhappy childhood. My parents were divorced, my mother married a second time and I left home and worked my way through high school. I married immediately after graduating, probably due to loneliness; and in the seven years since, my expectations of heart-warming devotion have never been fulfilled.

I try to be cheerful in my husband's presence, but have often cried and begged for his love. We get along well but he just dosn't seem to feel the need for love. Am I expecting too much? How can I outgrow this dreadful state of loneliness?

I have wanted more children but Eric, my husband, would rather have the luxuries that money will buy. As a faithful reader of your fine advice, I have hope that you can help me. Please answer soon.

D. S.

Woman's Distress Related to Fear

DEAR D. S.: Your attitude is sickly, in the literal meaning of the term as defined by Webster's, to-wit: "Produced by or associated with illness; characterized by the presence of illness. Tending to produce nausea; sickening. Hence, mawkish, disgusting. Diseased, infirm, weakly, feeble."

I don't deny that you suffer from "a dreadful state of loneliness." I believe this is a poignant true description of your plight; but in this phase of your life, it is not occasioned by outer circumstances. Eric isn't to blame for it, and there is little, if anything, he can do to help you out of it.

You are soul-sick, shut away from life by neurotic inability to share love, to give or receive it, and lacking this capacity at present, as in the past, you are without the all-powerful passport to heart-warming human fellowship.

You tend to hold Eric at fault for this state of affairs; when actually it is a net result of your kicked-about childhood, which turned you loose in the world with love-faculties virtually stillborn, a stranger to the "pitch" of normal affection in any of its various manifestations. Consequently, past and present, you couldn't negotiate a sympathetic true-love relationship with another person—husband, child or friend—even if opportunity for it were consistently pressed upon you.

Man's Defensive Against Hysteria

IT MAY BE that Eric has neurotic difficulty in intimacy, too, thus incidentally contributing something to your despair. But on the other hand, he might be the personification of mental health and sensible devotion, and yet find himself so continually on the defensive against your neurasthenic demands for infant-type coddling, as to be disheartened and defeated in efforts to assuage your anxiety and establish the marriage in wholesome equilibrium.

Unquestionably you need therapeutic understanding, but the average layman can't supply it. Specialist knowledge is required to open your eyes to the fear-factors operating in your unconscious and help you outgrow them, with the result that confidence in your love-worthiness will flourish spontaneously, thus putting an end to your frightened clamor for fervid display of solicitude from Eric.

Half of this fund is to be used for an endowment fund for faculty salaries and the rest will go toward the completion of the building program delayed by the war.

The Trading Post hours are at present 7 to 10 p. m. on Wednesdays and 10 a. m. to 4:30 on Saturdays.

Keep U. N. Even Without Russia, Dr. Potter Says

It would be better to let Russia withdraw from the United Nations, making it a "regional" organization, than to wreck the international group, Dr. Pitman B. Potter told members of the Washington Branch of the American Association of University Women at a meeting in the clubhouse yesterday.

"But this step should not be undertaken if there is a chance for the United Nations to work out as a world-wide organization," he said.

Dr. Potter, who is dean of international relations and professor of international law, graduate division of American University, traced the history of the United Nations, giving the organization's successes and difficulties in the three years of its existence. He pointed out that the U. N. could really be considered 29 years old, since it is a revised League of Nations.

Dr. Potter was introduced to club members by Miss Alida Smith, chairman of the international relations committee of AAUW, who presented the program in conjunction with United Nations Week.

Gen. and Mrs. Eisenhower Join Baby Sitters' Ranks; Baruch Gains His Wings

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

STORIES ARE TRICKLING back from General Eisenhower's installation and from the magnificent "do" staged on the Air Force's first anniversary celebration in New York. General Eisenhower, in full regalia, attended the Air Force anniversary and after the ceremony at Madison Square Garden was invited with Mrs. Eisenhower to a party at the Stork Club. The general shook his head, didn't think he should go in his uniform to a night club even though some seven Congressional Medal of Honor men were along, too. "I'll tell you what to do," he told a top Air Force man, "you take my son John and his wife, they have never been to the Stork Club, and Mamie and I will go home and watch out for the baby." So the General and Mrs. Eisenhower went home and did a stint of baby sitting with their grandchild until very early morning.

Baruch Gains Wings

AT THE AIR FORCE celebration, elder statesman Bernard Baruch, who accomplished such miracles encouraging airplane production both in World War I and in World War II, was presented with Gen. "Hap" Arnold's own wings—the insignia the general wore on his chest throughout the war. Mr. Baruch is naturally very proud of them, wears them pinned inside his coat. At General Eisenhower's installation he was seated behind Secretary of Air Stuart Symington. During a lull in the ceremonies he leaned over, tapped the Secretary on his shoulder. "I read something in the papers this morning about the Air Force which burned me up," he whispered. Mr. Symington hadn't seen the item. "I read everything about the Air Force," Mr. Baruch explained, "now that I've got my wings!" And he patted his lapel affectionately.

Texas Brand

DOWN IN TEXAS, the campaigning, for senatorial nomination, was fast and furious. Contenders for the seat of Senator "Pappy" O'Daniel, who didn't seek reelection, were Democratic Representative Lyndon Johnson and "Coke" Stevenson, former Governor of the Lone Star State. Mr. Johnson squeaked through with 87 votes to spare. Mr. S. countered with a court action to strike his name from the ballot. But the Congressman was upheld. Then the former Governor announced he had decided to support the Republican senatorial candidate.

Fighting broke out immediately and observers from the scene reported all sorts of happy stories the nicest, perhaps, concerning a Texan of Mexican ancestry named Pedro. Right after the primaries Pedro was seen sitting dejectedly on the curb, tears dripping from his eyes. "Why are you crying, Pedro?" asked a sympathetic friend. "Because of my grandfather," he sobbed. "Your grandfather? Why he died years ago!" the pal exclaimed. "Yes, I know. But when he came back to vote—he forgot to look me up!"

Food and Fingers

In our society, it is not a common practice to handle food with our fingers. There are some exceptions, of course—celery, lamb chops with frilly paper around the bone, radishes, fried chicken (with permission). But with very few other foods is the use of the fingers permissible. Whether this is a good idea or not is really beside the point. As far as young children are concerned, it would seem wise to give much more leeway. To use knives, forks and spoons is at first a difficult task and one that should be expected only gradually.

In introducing youngsters to solid food, it seems best not to cause rebellion against the new diet by insisting too rigorously on spoon-and-fork technique. There are a number of solid foods that can be picked up by hand with a minimum of mess.

As a first step toward introducing solid foods, then, try to serve those that can be picked up handily with the fingers. Manners can come later.

For Mothers-to-Be

Protective Foods Are Must in Pregnancy Diet

This is the first in a series of six articles.

By Ida Jean Kain

EXPECTANT mothers who regard the pregnancy period as a time to get in excellent physical condition, have an easier time of it, healthier babies and get back in shape promptly. Since there are so many requests for diets that furnish all the essential foods without boosting calories too high, I am writing this special series.

Many mothers lament that they built up such an appetite during this period they continue to be hungry and can't stop overeating. The woman who has good food habits—which means including adequate amounts of the protective foods in her daily menus—need make no dietary changes for the first three months, other than to step up the amount of milk. From the fourth month on, the normal diet for the pregnancy period is set at 2500 calories. However, the mother-to-be who lives in a small apartment or house and does little physical work will not require more than 2000 to 2200 calories a day.

Pregnancy is a period of growth, and the protective foods which furnish the growth material must be increased. These are milk, eggs, fruits, vegetables, lean meat and wholegrains. The nonessential foods, however, including rich desserts, candy, cakes, cookies and sweet drinks, must be decreased—otherwise the total calories will be too high and an undesirable weight gain the certain result.

In these days of high food prices, the question is how to have protective nutrition within the food budget. In the accompanying box is a general list of foods to be used daily on the 2500 calorie diet—this list includes the most economical sources of the essentials.

The new leaflet Protective Nutrition For Expectant Mothers includes a low-cost, 2500-calorie diet menu. Please send long, stamped, self addressed envelope to The Washington Post with request.

Tomorrow . . . the significance of perfect nutrition with weight control.

Budget List of 2500 Calorie Daily Fare

Milk—One quart whole milk. Or one can unsweetened evaporated milk.

Meat, Fish or Fowl—One large serving, at least ¼ pound. Use liver at least once a week. Beef and pork liver are as nutritious as calves' liver.

Eggs—Two, or one egg and one ounce American or Swiss cheese, or ½ cup cottage cheese.

Bread—Three slices. Should be wholewheat, rye or pumpernickel. Or two slices of wholegrain bread and one small serving wholegrain cereal.

Butter—Two tablespoons. Margarine may be substituted with no loss of food value.

Fruits—Three servings. One should be orange or grapefruit, fruit or juice, canned or fresh. One should be tomatoes or tomato juice. One may be as desired.

Vegetables—Four servings without added fat or sauces. One should be a medium-sized potato. One should be raw—such as lettuce, cabbage, celery. One should be dark green or yellow—such as carrots, spinach, greens. One may be as desired.

Water—At least eight glasses a day.

Supplementary Vitamins—One or two teaspoons of (cod) liver oil or halibut liver oil, or supplementary vitamins as recommended by your doctor.

These foods will supply all of the essential protein, minerals and vitamins. To add sufficient calories, the woman of normal weight may choose from the following list:

Bacon—Two slices, with the fat. Or two tablespoons cooking fat, butter, margarine, salad oil, mayonnaise or French dressing.

Dessert—One serving such as ice cream, milk pudding, cake, small piece of pie or four cookies.

About Replacing Historic China

Where might I be able to replace a broken saucer in historic America china, manufactured by Johnson Brothers, England (Pat. No. 111255—Reg. U. S. Pat Off.)? The saucer is labelled "San Francisco during the Gold Rush." Or is there a firm in Washington that could put pieces together again? J. A. L.

An art shop here does excellent repair work of this type and can be reached by telephoning Adams 5795. I do not know just where you could find a duplicate, as little English china has reached this country since the beginning of the war.

I'm another young housewife with a bit of extra time who would like to do something for European war victims. Can you suggest some place where I could donate a few hours' work a week? It seems to me I saw this in your column once, but failed to clip it out at the time. F. B.

The Quaker Clothing Relief Workroom, which is a branch of the American Friends Service Committee, is in need of workers to mend the clothing that is sent in for shipment abroad. For more than a year this workroom has been sending over 2 tons of garments every month. It is located in the Friends' Meeting House, at 2111 Florida ave., just off Connecticut. The entrance is on Decatur pl. People are needed who can work on Mondays, Tuesdays or Wednesdays, between 10 a. m. and 4 p. m., or on Wednesday evenings. The telephone number is Columbia 9799.

I noticed a request recently for suggestions for keeping glaze in chints, and thought perhaps I would pass along my method. At one time, I had two nice chintz dresses which I laundered a good many times adding vinegar to the last rinse water. They kept their glaze beautifully and I thought someone else might like to try my scheme. J. F. L.

Can you advise me how to remove cold water paint from a stone mantelpiece? Hot water, soap and a stiff scrub brush have helped, but do not reach decorative crevices. P. P. P.

Cold water paint is very difficult to remove from rough surfaces, as you have found to your sorrow. Using washing soda when you scrub it helps—a handful of soda to a gallon of water. Or add household ammonia to the soapy water with which you scrub.

I have a pair of cut steel shoe buckles which my mother had about 30 years ago. Can you tell me what polishing agent I could use to brighten them, as they are quite dull at present? J. G. J.

Cut steel buckles can be cleaned with a mild household cleansing powder and an old toothbrush.

I have noticed letters in your column from readers asking about where to find old records. I have had great success in finding them at a shop in Seattle, Wash. They carry a very fine stock of classical numbers and the last catalog listed fine vocals with such hard-to-find artists as Galli-Curci, Chaliapin, Farrar, and others. All the records I have purchased from them have been in perfect condition and very well packed for mailing, so there is no fear of breakage. A postcard request to Theodore Fillipi, 1107 30th ave., Seattle 22, Wash., will bring you the firm's latest catalogue and they are prompt in answering requests for special numbers. W. T. B.

I have a sofa covered with a very light blue-gray tone. Is there any way to tint this or apply dye without removing the cloth? E. S.

I'm afraid there's no method of dyeing upholstery material satisfactorily on the furniture. Using slip covers is about the only way to change the color of the piece.

IT'S LINEN—this handsome basket-weave carpet styled by Edward Fields in earthy "Grand Canyon" colors. Manufactured from the tall stalks of Oregon flax, it is woven with a gray-green warp and terra cotta woof and in other interesting Western color combinations.

The carpet is being introduced at a press showing at Hotel Statler today, along with seven other unusual ones. They include: A 100 per cent synthetic yarn floor covering, believed to be the first of its kind in the moderately priced field; a wool broadloom rug with a braided texture that makes it a sophisticated cousin of the old-fashioned rag rug; a tufted carpet woven of nontarnishing metallic thread and wool yarn, and a high lustre chenille carpet imported from Scotland. All the rugs will be available through Washington decorators.

Mlle. Dedieu's Book Offers Escape From Banal Menus

IF YOU'RE "eager to escape from the banality of too familiar menus" an excellent way is via a slender blue cookbook written by a Washington woman.

She is Mlle. Lucie Dedieu, French teacher at Madeira School for the past 20 years, who has stored in her memory and published in "Cooking a la Francaise" dozens of French "family recipes."

Mademoiselle Dedieu's book is a distillation of the experience of generations of Gallic cooks. But added to that is her own experience in adapting the recipes to modern American living. All are cut down to a size suited to today's family. Many carry instructions for making in a pressure cooker.

The foreword states that "the flavor and taste of certain French dishes derives often from their slow cooking in a tightly closed casserole," but also points out that the same subtle blending can usually be achieved in 12 or 20 minutes in a pressure cooker.

The seasonings that go into the pot are equally vital in obtaining the special taste and flavor of the French cuisine, says Mademoiselle Dedieu. A generous use of such herbs as parsley, tarragon, shallots, onions and garlic is part and parcel of French cookery, and wines are included in a number of the recipes.

Of garlic, the foreword says: "Timid souls must not be frightened by the large amount of garlic used in certain recipes. The fact, and it is a very well-known one, is that, although raw garlic has a very potent taste and color, cooked garlic is unrecognizable in a dish."

Beginning with Onion Soup and ending with Chestnut Cake, the little book includes a wide range of French dishes in its 50 pages. Many of them are particularly suited to informal entertaining—the sort of distinctive dishes that make guests recall your Sunday night supper with nostalgic hunger for weeks after. One such recipe is for Poulet Marengo—chicken served in a sauce made of wine, mushrooms, tomatoes, and bouillon.

POULET MARENGO

1 chicken, cut as for frying
4 tablespoons olive oil
3 large tomatoes
1 dozen small mushrooms
1 cup bouillon
½ cup white wine
1 clove garlic
1 tablespoonful chopped parsley
1 scant tablespoon butter, mixed with
1 teaspoon flour
Salt and pepper

Heat oil in heavy frying pan and cook chicken until nicely browned. Keep a moderate fire and do not cover pan. It should take 20 or 25 minutes. Remove chicken into a hot platter. Pour the oil into a small skillet which will be used later to fry croutons.

In the frying pan put the peeled and seeded tomatoes, minced garlic, wine, bouillon and the mushrooms, wiped and sliced if too large. Let it boil down to about one cup liquid, then mix with it the butter and flour, salt, and pepper.

"Here's the beef you ordered two years ago"

Actually, it takes an average of about two years and a lot of work for the farmer to "grow" the beef you may order today. But you don't have to order it two years in advance.

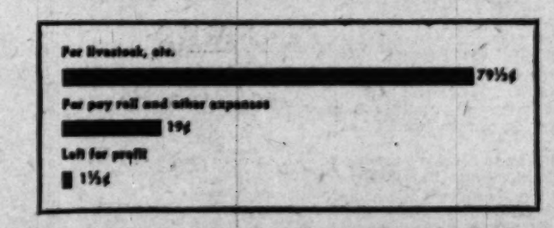
That's where the meat packer comes in. He buys steers as the farmer gets them ready, dresses them, chills the meat, cuts it, and delivers it, under constant refrigeration, to your retailer for your selection when you want it.

And while the meat packer is doing all this, he is carefully and expertly saving a large variety of by-products, the sale of which helps pay the expenses of preparing the meat.

Meat packers perform these services, year in and year out, for a profit (after all expenses are paid) averaging a fraction of a cent a pound.

Cash market. Meat packers provide farmers with a daily cash market for all classes of livestock. This promotes future livestock production and enables meat packing plants to operate efficiently and provide your retailer with as wide a variety of meats as possible.

All meat must be sold. Fresh meat is perishable—most of it must be sold within a few days for whatever price it will bring. Prices are established by the public's demand for the available supply.



From the average dollar received by meat packers, about 80¢ goes to farmers (from which they must pay feeding and other costs). Nearly one-half of what is left goes for pay rolls. Profits average about 1½¢ out of each dollar of sales, or a fraction of a cent a pound.

Fall Is Time For Checking Fire Hazards

When you turn on the heat in your house, you increase the fire hazard by 20 per cent.

That statement is on the authority of a fire prevention engineer, and one very good reason for a fall safety-cleanup campaign.

Many chores around the house fit into both a safety and cleanup program. As C. M. Rowley, a fire prevention engineer of the National Retailers Mutual Insurance Co., points out: "Rubbish in the attic, closet or basement doesn't start the fire, but it does spread it with dangerous speed once the blaze is kindled."

Here are some other breaches of good housekeeping that also are breaches of fire safety rules, according to Mr. Rowley:

1. Leaves, twigs or debris piled in the yard, especially near the house.
2. Rubbish, old paper, rags or old furniture stored in the cellar, garage, attic or extra room.
3. Oily dusting rags, mops or brushes left in the open where they may catch fire by spontaneous ignition.
4. Gasoline, cleaning fluid and other inflammable fluids kept in drawers, kitchen cabinets or other dangerous places.
5. Clothes lines hanging near heating units.
6. Coins or bits of metal used in place of fuses.
7. Oily floors in the basement or garage.

In addition to checking the hazards listed, most householders profitably could spend a few hours checking the heating and electrical equipment in their homes. These two items are the most common permanent hazards in any home. Don't forget, Mr. Rowley points out, heating units cause one in every five fires and electricity causes one in every eight.

Erring Printers Still Delight Readers

We were speaking of typographical errors the other day, but we failed to mention two similar methods of giving the readers a chuckle.

One is the kind of transposition which, for example, might misplace a lost-and-found ad. Jim Wilfong, jr., of 1541 Montana ave. ne., wonders whether the makeup man at one of our afternoon contemporaries thinks he's funny.

He took an ad for a lost pocketbook and dropped it into the middle of a long list of doleful lamentations for the dead.

The other type of error is the fault of a wool-gathering writer. Mrs. J. Abrams of 221 O st. sw. furnishes a classic example from our morning contemporary's beauty column. It advises us to:

"Remove the dead cuticle and fingers in clear water."

But of course the backbone of the Pied Type Dept. is still the humorous printer's error. Like our own account of Miss Minnesota's charms. We said she was:

"Five feet 6½ inches tall, bust 34, waist 24, hips 35, and weight 10 pounds."

Apparently the judges like 'em slim this season. But the readers don't. On that one I heard from Mrs. S. W. Galhuly of 4111 W st. nw.; Peter Fraily of 6208 Hillcrest pl., Chevy Chase, Md.; Steve Karpman of 4419 42d st. nw.; Vivian Pear; Bruce Hollihan of 100 19th st.se., and Robert E. Lee Garcin of 1349 Harvard st. nw.

John Edwin Groscup got a laugh out of our story about the girl who did maintenance work at a local school. Shunning the word "impedimenta," we said:

"She uses a Stilson wrench and other impediments of a jack-of-all-trades."

James T. Hammett of 4616 13th st. nw. is properly puzzled by our afternoon contemporary's statement that:

"Thousands of Southern voters are ready to vote for Dewey, but they have never learned how to split their ballots."

Maybe they ought to ask Mary Worth, in the comic strip next door. She's learned a lot about ballets in the past few weeks.

Even the kids join the fun. Twelve-year-old Mary Williams, daughter of Dr. Edwin G. Williams of 4909 Battery lane, Bethesda, Md., reports that in a book of dog stories she found the sentences:

"He passed a dazed jaw over his eyes."

And the weatherman must have passed a dazed isotherm over his charts when he saw what one of our afternoon contemporaries did to his forecast a while back.

Molly T. Guertler of 608 N. Ivy st., Arlington, Va., and Mrs. Florence Friedman of 4600 Lewis ave. se. join forces to report that by the time the weatherman's words got into print, they said:

"Partly cloudy; war tomorrow afternoon."

It'll be a dreary day, indeed, when that forecast comes true. But probably the best of our typos (from the same paper) is turned up by our old punster pal, Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. In a dispatch from New Delhi we learn that:

"The cease-fire order was effective at 5 p. m. Indian time (7:30 a. m. EDT)."

Nate says all he wants to know is "did we gain a half hour, or did we lose?"

OBJECTION OVERRULED

Now that we have a new legal feature on the preceding page, perhaps I ought to try to meet the competition by telling a story spun by a lawyer friend the other night.

It seems that Herman was a witness in a case, and the lawyer for the opposition was giving him a rough time. Trying to tear down Herman's character, he pried vigorously into the witness' past.

"What do you do for a living?" snapped the barrister.

"A street sweeper," sneered the interrogator.

"Yes," sighed Herman, "but I'm proud to say that I've risen far above my poor father's station in life."

With a gleam in his eye, the lawyer pounced on the bait. "And what was your father?" he demanded. Herman smiled and answered sweetly:

"A shyster lawyer."

CURB LINE; DANGER LINE

Washington is notoriously short of residential garage space, but many private homes (especially of the pre-Cliff Dweller era) do have their own garages.

Yet even those who are lucky enough to have off-street parking facilities often fail to use them. They leave their cars at the curb, in front of their homes.

Lawrence C. Crawford of 954 Washington bldg. points out that they'd be doing the community a double service by parking in their garages instead. First, there'd be more parking space available for the less fortunate. And second, there'd be fewer accidents.

Statistics show that a great many people are killed or injured each year after stepping out into the street from between parked cars.

So if we clean up the curb line, we'll be tackling one of our worst danger lines.

NEW YORK.—One afternoon Mickey Rooney went to the race-track at Jamaica where he met a young, pretty program-seller and invited her to join him for the evening. "I'll take you to dinner at 21, then to the musical, 'Where's Charley?' and to supper at the Stork Club." The young lady told him: "I'll have to ask my parents" . . . She went home and reported that Mickey Rooney had asked for a date. A family conference was held—her father, mother, brother and sister—and they decided that it would be all right, but that she must make the 12:45 a. m. train back to Jamaica, or else. And to make sure she'd be on the train, her brother and sister were coming to N. Y. to wait on the platform . . . At 12:40 Rooney delivered her to her family at Penn Station.

Bob Hope sat next to Mayor Jim Curley of Boston at the World Series, and received a key to the city from him. When Cleveland won, Bob — part-owner of the ball club — told Curley: "Thanks for the key to the city, but please don't change the locks."

Col. Bernt Balchen, the flier who just returned to active duty with the Air Force, joined the Air Force long before Pearl Harbor. During the Finnish-Russian war he bought planes for the Finns and flew them in battle. . . . Once, while he was here on a planes-and-munitions purchasing mision for Finland, a barstandee in a N. Y. cafe tossed a peanut, and it hit Balchen. The thrower apologized, and asked "Did it hurt you?" Balchen said: "No. It it could hurt a person, I'd buy millions of 'em" . . . Balchen, incidentally, says that he is troubled only by one recurrent dream: He dreams that he's flying to Australia with Roscoe Turner, who clasps a pillow to himself and shouts: "Bernt, help me get this up."

At the premieres of the last two Tennessee Williams plays, Williams left his orchestra seat and was onstage so quickly at the curtain-call that one of his friends said, "He's not only an author but also a runner." . . . Theodore, who did his Comedy of Horrors for 26 weeks in Hollywood, has arrived in N. Y. to stage the show here. He'll bill himself as "Bela Lugosi and Boris Karloff's Favorite Comedian."

GIs Cleaned Out Red Nest

By Drew Pearson

The inside story has just leaked out how tough, American paratroopers cleaned out a nest of 15,000 Soviet-Mongolian soldiers who had deserted from the Russian Army in 1945 and holed up in the American sector of Berlin during the early days of the occupation.

Pearson

An account of the incident was given to visiting Senators and Congressmen recently by Gen. Lucius Clay, American military governor in Berlin.

The Mongol troops had stayed behind in Berlin, hiding in the ruins, after the Russian army withdrew to its own sector, Clay reported.

Crazy with lust from their first taste of Western civilization, the savage Mongols lived off the city at night . . . killing, raping and looting. The only United States troops Clay had to keep order were green MP's, fresh from the States, and they were no match for the Mongols. These ruthless warriors from the Siberian plains beat up the American MP's, stole their revolvers and jeeps—and even killed a few.

Hard-pressed, Clay sent a frantic order to hold up the sailing of a battle-seasoned paratroop division just ready to leave for home. Diverted to Berlin, Clay outlined the situation and appealed to the paratroopers for help in cleaning out the Mongols.

The combat troopers organized into groups of five and combed the American sector, flushing the Russian deserters out of their hiding places. They met brutality with brutality, beat up the Mongols, broke arms and legs, killed a few who resisted. Then they loaded the battered Mongols into trucks and dumped them at the gates of the Russian sector—where they faced court-martial charges for deserting the Soviet army.

It took 10 days for the rugged paratroopers to clean up the job and was the first contact American fighting men had with Soviet fighting men.

No More Pearl Harbors

High Pentagon officials, worried over the Berlin crisis, are determined not to be caught napping. They have devised a special telephone system so they can be reached day and night. Some of them recall the dinner-table conversation between the late Secretary of the Navy Knox and War Production boss Donald Nelson on December 4, 1941—three days before Pearl Harbor—as told in Bruce Catton's book, "War Lords of Washington."

"I feel that I can speak very frankly, within these four walls," Knox told the dinner guests. "War may begin in the Pacific at any moment. Literally, at any moment. It may even be beginning tonight, while we're sitting here . . .

"But I want you all to know that no matter what happens, the United States Navy is ready! Every man is at his post, every ship is at its station. The Navy is ready. Whatever happens, the Navy is not going to be caught napping."

"Every bit as bad," Knox nodded vigorously. "It can start at any minute."

"You know, if we do have to fight the Japs, I can't see that there'd be much for our Army to do,' 'observed Nelson.' "Won't it be pretty much a Navy show?"

"Oh, yes; of course," Knox agreed. "We're all ready for them, you know. We've had our plans worked out for 20 years. Once it starts, our submarines will go in to blockade them, and sooner or later our Battle Fleet will be able to force an action. It won't take too long. Say, about a six-month war."

Ross Takes The Rap

It looks as if sweet-tempered Charlie Ross, the President's slow-thinking press secretary, has been selected to take the rap regarding the abortive Vinson mission to Moscow. Furthermore, it looks as if Charlie deserves part of it.

Sixty-four-dollar question debated by White House insiders is whether President Truman authorized Ross to advise the radio networks prematurely about plans to send the Chief Justice to Moscow.

Truman says he did not. He tells aides emphatically that all he did was direct Ross to "arrange radio time for an important announcement."

His further plan was to advise Secretary of State George Marshall well before the broadcast—and certainly before the radio executives who leaked the story. The President made this point emphatically to Marshall when the flabbergasted Secretary of State flew back from Paris.

The President seemed about equally angry at Ross and the radio people for the slipup.
